CONFERENCE AT BRYN MAWR.

The delegates who were sent to attend the conference recently held at Bryn Mawr would like to give the rest of the College some idea of their visit there.

We arrived at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. At the station we were met by two of the College girls and were most cordially welcomed. They insisted upon carrying our suit cases, and all but offered to carry the delegates themselves, so hearty was their greeting. When we reached the College buildings we were taken to Rockefeller Hall and given two adjoining rooms. This was quite a concession, as it is a rule of the College that no one excepting the students may stay in the buildings. That same afternoon we went to a hockey game between the Alumnae and the Undergraduates, at which great enthusiasm was displayed. Exciting as this game was, it was far surpassed by the one held the following morning between the faculty—both men and women—and the Alumnae. As we of Barnard have not yet aspired to set ourselves against the faculty in athletic sports, we found this game exceedingly interesting and amusing.

After the game was over, we had a joint meeting of the 22 delegates and the Undergraduate Association of Bryn Mawr, at which the president of each Association gave a brief history of its organization. Of course, the systems of self-government differed in the various colleges, but all spoke of the help they had derived from the last conference. The colleges represented were Wellesley, Vassar, Bryn Mawr, Smith, Mt. Holyoke, Baltimore, Brown, Wilson, Cornell, Wells, Simmons, and Barnard.

The Dean of Bryn Mawr, Miss Thomas, invited the presidents of the different college associations to a luncheon at her home, a beautiful little house on the Campus. After lunch, the Dean gave a short talk about the government of Bryn Mawr, which, it appears, is the only college where there is absolute self-government by the students.

In the afternoon there was a closed meeting of the delegates. The question of forming a permanent organization of Student Government Associations was discussed. As no definite conclusion was reached, it was decided to leave all arrangements to a committee of five, who should report at the next conference. That evening the Sophomores gave their play, which is one of the big things of the year. Although they were ambitious in giving "Two Gentlemen of Verona," they proved themselves equal to the task.

On Sunday we visited the different buildings on the Campus. They are gray, and most of them are covered with ivy, which makes them very picturesque. The Campus is quite large, especially as compared with our own. The lecture rooms, however, are not so bright and cheerful as ours are.

Monday afternoon we were taken for a drive through the country. It was a glorious day, and the woods and country roads were beautiful. This was a pleasant end to our stay, for the next morning we left for home.

I have tried to give some slight idea of Bryn Mawr and our life there for three days, but I do not think I ever can make you feel how cordial, hospitable and charming the girls themselves were. I sincerely hope that some day in the near future we may have our own dormitories, and then, perhaps, we will be able to return the kindness which has been shown by Bryn Mawr to Barnard, through its delegates.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1905.

When talk of a college dormitory is more constant than usual, when the discussion of plans make their fulfilment seem almost a probability, it has occurred to the editors that it would be interesting to learn how many of the present Undergraduate body would live in the dormitory. We somehow feel that the number would be much larger than that which represents the Barnard contingent in Whittier Hall. But in a matter of this sort, knowledge is the only thing that gives satisfaction. We want to know—and we are sure there are others who would be much interested—we want to know how many girls could live in a Barnard College dormitory. Figures, of course, cannot be exact in a case of this sort—the percentage would be fluctuating, very naturally. Nevertheless, we would like to get even an approximate percentage. To this end we ask every girl who thinks there would be a possibility of her living in the dormitory to send her name, without delay, to the BULLETIN. If this is done promptly and conscientiously, the BULLETIN will be able to print some statistics in the next issue which should, we think, be of value in the discussion.

There have been notices on the bulletin boards of the studies making this same request, and also offering facilities for "signing below." We put them there because it seemed the thing to do, and not because we really expected any results. Possibly, at present writing, there may be a few names inscribed, but when we last made the round of the studies, our notices were innocent of anything except what we had written on them ourselves. Not for a moment do we think that this shows any lack of interest in the question. It merely tends to confirm something we have long suspected. We don't believe people read the notices on the bulletin boards. Scraps of paper are frequently three and four deep upon a single pin, and we have seldom noted anyone stop long enough to know what was at the bottom. More than this, few people even read the topmost papers. We have heard girls begging piteously for information on some subject that is carefully explained upon the bulletin boards. We have also noticed their pleased surprise when referred to the same. Not only from observation can we affirm this state of affairs; we have been guilty ourselves.

Whatever the explanation for it may be, we feel that perhaps lack of time is a partial excuse. It does take time to read everything on the bulletin boards, and one notice might easily be overlooked in the general confusion. The editorial column is, however, quite different, and we feel a girl must be in excessive haste if she does not at least glance through it before the week is out. Therefore, confident of prompt replies, we ask for the names of all those girls who could live in a Barnard College dormitory.

CORRESPONDENCE.

While we are glad to publish letters signed by their writers, unsigned letters will receive no attention.

To the Editor of the BARNARD BULLETIN:

I feel sure that all of the Barnard girls who lived in Fiske Hall before it was needed for class rooms and laboratories would endorse your editorial in the BULLETIN of November 6th. Those of us who have had the opportunity of living in a dormitory of our very own feels, perhaps, more strongly on the matter than any one else. The members of 1904 who were lucky enough to spend their Freshman and Sophomore years in Fiske cannot easily forget what a large part of college it was to them. And their less fortunate friends whose homes were in the city will remember the winter afternoons spent—not wasted, we think—over tea and college gossip in the big corner Studies overlooking the river, the many times when a rehearsal or a brief served as an excuse for spending the night in the dormitory, or the still more numerous nights spent there with no excuse at all. Though we had it for so short a time, it was truly the centre of our college activity, and we have had nothing since to take its place. Such a centre Whittier Hall can never be to us. The fraternity apartments do something toward keeping up college spirit, but the proportion of students living in them is very small, and at best they can merely form small niches rather than the single centre that we want.

Every one knows, however, that we need a dormitory, and need it badly. But since it seems to be still with other castles in the air, the question is now whether or not it would be wise, if possible, to have a temporary home exclusively for the Barnard students. That planned by the Alumnae Committee ought by no means to put off the day when we shall have the permanent building we want so much. It need not be an excuse for the delay of further help, as has been suggested. Any temporary measure to help us in a great present need should not and would not, I think, be taken as evidence that we can do without help in that direction for some time to come, but would rather show that we deserve more. We need not be arraid that the friends of Barnard would be satisfied with such an arrangement for any length of time, or for a longer time than they could help.

Fiske Hall had immediate influence on the life at Barnard at a time when that life was yet in the making, as it were. We have now no lack of college spirit; but we do want to be able to gather together our somewhat scattered forces into a new and still stronger college life. There are many of us who look back with regret for the good old days of Fiske; we cannot but believe that to have even a temporary dormitory would be well worth while.

WOMAN'S UNIVERSITY ORCHESTRA.

The first meeting of the Woman's University Orchestra will be held at four o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, November 21, in Room 608, Mines Building. Students are requested to bring their instruments with them.

Students wishing to join this orchestra are requested to leave their names at the office if they have not done this in answer to the preliminary notice posted some time ago.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

ANNE CARROLL, Bus. Man.

THE UNDERGRADUATE ASSOCIATION.

A special meeting of the Undergraduate Association was held on Thursday, November 16. The resignation of Miss Murtha from the duties of chairman of the Executive Committee was accepted, and Miss Toms was elected to fill the vacancy.

DEUTSCHER KREIS PLAY.

The Deutscher Kreis gave a one-act skit entitled "Gott sei dank der Tisch ist gedeckt" on Friday, November 10. The committee, Irma Jellenik, '07, chairman, is to be congratulated on their choice of a play. It was very short, simple and unambitious, but it gave the girls a chance to show their ability to speak German and to take part in a performance of that sort, without attempting anything that might have been beyond their somewhat untried powers. The cast was as follows:

Oberst Hammer.....Miss Tompkins, '09
Leonhard.....Miss Abraham, '09
Franz.....Miss Wolff, '08
Adelheit.....Miss Herrmann, '06
Hermine.....Miss Hochheimer, '09
Güstenchen.....Miss Lehrburger, '09

The girls all did good work in their parts and the whole play went off well and left a very pleasant impression. Ice cream and cakes were served afterward to the guests.

Died, on July 3d, 1905, Evelyn Osborne. Class of 1900.
