THE MOCK TRIAL

The interested outsider might easily be led to inquire into the "realities" of Barnard doings. At present, there seems to be a decided tendency for pseudo-serious forms of amusement. Last week there was a "mock" wedding; this week we have had a "mock" trial, and already eager stump speakers are converting voters for next week's "mock" election. Great expectations had been aroused by the news of the Freshman vs. Sophomore law suit, which was to be tried on Friday, the 23d, at noon, and those who had eagerly awaited an interesting and perhaps literary debate, were greatly surprised when the prisoners, plus their witnesses, lawyers, and judge, beat a rather hasty and undignified retreat from the court room without even waiting to perform the simple task of refuting the charges of the prosecuting attorneys.

After a goodly number of Juniors and Freshmen had assembled in the court room, the various participants in this interesting case entered with due solemnity. Evan Vom Baur acted as presiding judge, and proceeded to call the case. The plaintiff, looking decidedly the worse for wear, and two Freshman witnesses, were duly sworn. The crier then made the charge of 1912 against 1911, which was, in brief, that of assault on the public road, and highway robbery. The prisoners, three Sophomores, were then led before the bar by the sheriff, and pleaded "not guilty," with great unanimity. With true judicial formality the prosecuting attorney, Dorothy Kirchwey, then affirmed her readiness to begin proceedings. It was at this point that the prisoners' attorneys, Lillian Closson and Mary Swenson, objected to the trial as irrelevant, giving for their reasons the minority of the accusers, and the illegal form in which the writ had been filed. Immediately the judge dismissed the case, and left the scene of action, followed by all parties belonging to the prisoners' side. The court, however, nothing daunted, continued to sit, for all present were fully convinced that such a withdrawal, even if caused by a secret fear of defeat, was altogether too "unprecedented" and "unheard of" (to quote the defendant's attorney's words) to be effective. Lillian Eggleston assumed the judicial chair, and the trial proceeded in due form, though there was a decided discrepancy when the prisoners' witnesses were called to be sworn. The chief point made by the prosecuting attorney was a comparison of 1911's conduct with the lynching processes so prevalent, and much sympathy and indignation was

SPECIAL UNDERGRADUATE MEETING

A special meeting of the Undergraduate Association was held on Thursday, at noon, in the theatre. The meeting opened with a hearty cheer for Eleanor Gay from the Senior class. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and accepted. The report of the Executive Committee was read and accepted as follows:

Article I.—Appropriations.

Section 1.—That an appropriation of $15 be made for insertion in the Columbian.

Section 2.—That an appropriation of $3 be made to rent six pictures from the Board of Education for the Undergraduate Play Room.

Section 3.—That an appropriation of $3 be made to defray the expenses of the tea on opening day.

Article II.—Delegates to Holyoke.

Section 1.—That the President of the Undergraduate Association, and the President of the Junior class, be sent as delegates to Mt. Holyoke.

Article III.—A political campaign.

Section 1.—That a political campaign be held by the Undergraduate Association on Tuesday afternoon, October 27th, from 4 to 6, in order to arouse more interest in the present political situation of the country.

Section 2.—That three candidates represent respectively the Republican, Democratic and Socialistic parties.

Section 3.—That a telegram of congratulations be sent to the candidate receiving the largest number of votes in the Barnard election.

Section 4.—That registration for this election take place in the corridor on the second floor, on posters put up for the purpose.

Article IV.—Senior Precedence.

Section 1.—That in order to promote Senior precedence, which is greatly lacking at Barnard, the Senior class have the exclusive right of singing one of our college songs, "There's a College on the Hill-Top."

The president then spoke of the lunch-room, the use of the ventilators, and the new resting-room, after which Miss Lexow addressed the meeting in behalf of woman's suffrage, urging every one to attend the lecture on Monday afternoon. There being no further business, the meeting then adjourned.

COLUMBIA CHAPEL

Professor Devine will speak in the Columbia Chapel on Friday, October 30, at 12 o'clock, on "Social Work in New York City." Chapel at Barnard will be given up in order to allow every one to attend.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

There was a regular meeting of the Athletic Association on Wednesday, October 21st, with the president, Hazel Woodhull, presiding. The minutes of the last meeting, the reports of the treasurer and of the tennis, hockey and basketball committees were read. Miss Vegener was elected Freshman member of the basketball committee and Miss Weil Freshman member of the tennis committee. Then Miss Calhoun addressed the association and said among other things that the stress this year should be on games rather than on contests, and that the contests should be sprinkled through the year instead of being all crowded into field day. She said also that Greek games should be enlarged to include all four classes, that the Seniors and Sophomores should work together on the chorus against the Juniors and Freshmen. She suggested that field day be dropped entirely, as there is no adequate place for contests.

THE BOTANICAL CLUB TEA

The Botanical Club Tea, held in the Botany laboratories on Wednesday, October 21st, was very successful. The laboratories were effectively decorated with autumn leaves and berries and garden flowers. Pictures of various flora were put up for the occasion in one of the laboratories, and Prof. Richards and Dr. Hazen explained them to the guests. The pictures have been presented to the college by the club. There were good things to eat, which were especially appreciated by the undergraduates. The reception committee consisted of Miss Bracket, the president of the club; Mrs. Thomas, Miss Parker and Miss Latham. Among those present were Prof. and Mrs. Brewster, Prof. Curtis, Prof. Loyd, Prof. and Mrs. Britton, Prof. and Mrs. Boas, Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Meyer, Prof. Knapp, Miss Hirst and Miss Weeks.

HERR FREDRICH ABEЕ

Barnard had a visitor on Friday, October 23, in the person of Herr Friedrich Abee of Horace Mann School. Dr. Abee has recently come to this country from Germany. He is particularly interested in studying American methods of education. In an interesting little talk, which he gave before one of Mr. Porterfield's classes, he showed how Germany, which has served as a model to America for the higher education of men, is now modeling her women's colleges after ours, and introducing our methods of higher education, women being admitted this fall for the first time, on the same basis as men, to the standard universities.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1908.

Brooks Hall is making a new departure this fall in the matter of government. As a result of the work of a committee of students, appointed at the beginning of the college year, aided by certain of the faculty, a constitution has been drawn up, providing for an association called the Brooks Hall Student Association. The preamble of the constitution clearly states the case in the following words: "The Council of Brooks Hall, which has had full control of the residence life, believing that the welfare of the hall will be advanced by an efficient system of self-government among the students in all that relates to the conduct of the students, individually and in relation to other students, hereby transfer to the Brooks Hall Student Association, full legislation and executive control in the following matters:

1. Maintenance of quiet in the building.
2. Seating in the dining-room.
3. Order and decorum in the building and on the campus.
4. Entertainment (except official functions).

The plan has met with such unqualified approval on all sides, from both students and faculty, that there is no need of argument in its behalf. All democratic communities recognize the value of self-government. The greater the responsibility placed upon the individual members of the community, the greater will be the respect for order and the law laid down by the community. Constraint of superiors is sometimes irksome, especially to college girls, but if the constraint is imposed by themselves, or by officers elected by themselves, there should not be, and as a matter of fact, seldom is, any rebellion against authority. Although this is a new scheme in Brooks Hall, it is not unfamiliar to the students. We as a college believe in self-government on the academic side of our life, as is attested by one existing form of college government. Surely, then, as a college we will advocate the extension of this self-government across the campus, to regulate the residential life of Brooks Hall. The scheme has been accepted by those most concerned, the girls living in the dormitory, but it behooves the rest of the college to give their support and help in working out the plan. The constitution, though drafted, is not in its definitely final form, and there are as yet no by-laws. As soon as the latter are drawn up, the Association will begin its real work.

BROOKS HALL

On Wednesday, October 21st, the Brooks Hall Student Association elected its officers. The elections resulted as follows:
President, Helen Scheuer, '09.
Vice-President, Gertrude Hunter, '10.
Secretary, Helen Brown, '11.
Treasurer, Lilian Egleston, '10.
Proctors, Antoinette Fransioli, '09; Jessie Nottingham, '10; Hetty Dean, '10; Eleanor Graham, '10; Miss Browning, '11.

On Thursday, October 15th, Mrs. Kendrick, the lady principal of Vassar College, visited Barnard. She was entertained at Brooks Hall. She was shown all over the dormitory, from the kitchens to the infirmary, and expressed herself as delighted with everything. On Friday morning she made a tour of the college itself. She displayed and expressed much interest, especially in the Physics Laboratories.

The new order of Chapel service seems to be meeting with success. The shortened and simplified exercises have brought out a large number of girls on Tuesdays and Fridays. Considerable dignity, also, has been added to the service by the new method of seating and of leaving the room. We would suggest, however, that more dignity still might be secured if there were less conversation before the services begin. Many of the students feel the loss of the helpful addresses to which they have been accustomed, but if the omission of these, through shortening the exercises, draws and holds more girls, the object of this change will be secured, and the gain will overbalance the loss. We urge more of the students to take this opportunity of a short rest from the strenuous college day.

aroused. The verdict of the jury for the class of 1911 was "guilty," and Judge Eggleston then ended the case. A matter of universal interest is the fine, to be decided by the class of 1912, which the Judge imposed on the class of 1911—for contempt of court. And thus, notwithstanding the peculiar absence of the defendants, this mock trial was brought to an entertaining and amusing conclusion.
