DR. H. R. MARSHALL ON "THE SEAT OF CONSCIOUSNESS."

On Thursday afternoon, March 11, Dr. Marshall talked to the Barnard Club and its guests on a subject that gave promise of great interest. He was particularly pleased to use a good deal of the biological terms that were used in the theory rather unimportantly. His main theme was that the theory that no change in the nerves is without a corresponding change in consciousness, why not accept the converse: that there is no change in consciousness without a change in the nerves? He thus maintained that the relation of body to mind, of physical to mental, is not haphazard, but closely connected, and that the theory is supported by all the evidence that is resulting similar actions. As to the position of the nerves, there are a great many bunched together in the skull, which are more active than other nerves in other parts. When these nerves are active, above the threshold of awareness—that is, under extreme excitement—there is a corresponding, though less visible, activity in the noetic or subconscious realm below the threshold; this is substantive consciousness.

BULLETIN ELECTIONS.

At a regular meeting of the Managing Board of the Barnard, held Thursday, March 11, 1910, Miss Platt, 1910, was unanimously elected Editor-in-Chief for the year 1909-1910. Olive Thompson, 1910, was elected Business Manager, and Mary Bailey, 1910, Assistant Business Manager. They will start their work in April under the direction of the former officers, and will take full charge in May.

MRS. ALLEN'S LECTURE.

On Friday, March 12, Mrs. J. S. Allen, under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A., gave an exceedingly interesting stereopticon lecture on the work among the Indians and the Mountain Whites. After her talk, refreshments were served in the Undergraduate Study, and an opportunity was given to meet Mrs. Allen.

SCHOLARSHIP NOTICE.

The attention of students who wish to apply for scholarships for the coming year, 1909-1910, is called to the following resolutions:

All applications for scholarships must be filed before 4 P. M. on Thursday, April 1, 1909.

Students holding scholarships and wishing to retain them another year must file new applications.

The necessary application blanks can be obtained at the office of A. E. H. Meyer, Secretary.

Y. W. C. A. CONFERENCE.

The opening meeting of the Metropolitan Student Conference was held at Earl Hall on Friday evening at eight o'clock. Mrs. Whitman presided. After a few words of welcome by Mrs. Merrett, Miss Conde, Student Secretary for the National Board, spoke of the necessity and efficacy of prayer in all our work and, particularly, in the Association work. The meeting closed with a prayer by Miss Conde and then an opportunity was given to the delegates to meet each other. There were delegates present from the Nurses Club, the Studio Club, Adelphi College, and the Albany Normal College. Most of these girls were members of the Cabinets of their Associations as the Conference was a technical one intended especially for the Cabinets.

The meeting, in the theatre, on Saturday morning, opened with devotional exercises led by Miss Conde. Dr. Lord then gave a few words of welcome from Barnard College. He said that the early missionaries went out to their posts with two questions in mind, "What good was there to be done?" and "How to do it." These same questions outlined the work of the Y. W. C. A. and the purpose of the conference.

The next speaker was Miss Katherine Reid, Honorary Secretary, Glasgow, Scotland, who talked about the World Movement. Perhaps Miss Reid brought out more clearly than ever before the fact that each Association, however small, is a part of the World Movement and necessary to the success of that movement.

After this, the relation of the National and Territorial Committee was discussed by Miss Elizabeth Forbes, a member of the New York and New Jersey Territorial Committee. She showed that each Association is related to the National Committee through the Territorial Committee.

Y. W. C. A. ELECTIONS.

The following officers for the year 1909-1910 were elected by the Y. W. C. A. last week:

President—Mary Witter Bailey, 1910.
Vice-President—Christella MacMurray, 1910.
Recording Secretary—Margaret Hart, 1911.
Corresponding Secretary—Laura Bennet, 1911.
Treasurer—Annie Wilson, 1912.

TEA AT BROOKS HALL.

On Thursday afternoon Miss Weeks and the 1910 girls, at the dormitory, gave a tea for the class at Brooks Hall. It gave the girls a chance to meet Miss Weeks informally and everyone voted the tea a great success.

BASKETBALL.

On Monday, March 8th, the basketball season came to an end with two interesting games between the Juniors and Freshmen and the Seniors and Sophomores. The line-up was as follows:

1910.	Centre.	1911.
Hazel Woodhull	Shirley Gleason
Mabel McCann	Side Centre.	Mary Stine
Clarita Crosby	Right Forward.
Rosetta Platt	Mary Wegener
Nannette Hamburger	Right Guard.	Phoebe Hoffman
Maud Emery	Left Guard.	Gladys Segee
Mabel McCann		Pauline Cain

1909.	Centre.	1911.
Julia Goldberg	Lilian Schofield
Edith Seguire	Side Centre.	Frances Randolph
Adelaide Smithers	Right Forward.	Vera Fueslein
Dean Smith	Left Forward.	Elsie Gleason
Hortense Murch	Right Guard.	Ethel Leveridge
Eva vom Baur	Left Guard.	Molly Conroy
Umpire—Miss Calhoun.		Elinor Burns

Referee—Florence Sammet, 1908.
The first game was very exciting. The Juniors showed the best fight they have put up all year. Hazel Woodhull and Rosetta Platt played especially well. Among the Freshmen, Shirley Gleason's playing was particularly good. The first half closed with a score of two all. The second half also was a tie, the score being four all. In an extra period Rosetta Platt made several thrilling attempts, finally scoring the decisive goal. The score then stood Juniors 6, Freshmen 4. The second game was less evenly matched. The Sophomores defeated the Seniors by a score of 20 to 2, thus winning the championship with a clean record of six games won. Dean Smith who played basketball for the first time deserves special congratulations. The only noteworthy feature of the game was the one basket made by the Seniors, thrown by Adelaide Smithers.

After the games the Juniors gave the Freshmen a spread.

Baseball has now taken the place of basketball, and will be followed later by hockey.

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 17, 1909.

It is too bad that college girls should be so rushed that they have no time to attend the really splendid and important lectures, art exhibitions and other things of the kind which are some of the advantages of a college in a big city. For example, we are afraid that very few Barnard girls have seen the collection of Lincoln relics which was at our own University Library for several weeks, or the collection of Sorolla paintings, and the ignorance concerning our own Metropolitan Museum is surprising and unfortunate. Except for the very few instances in which certain courses require or advise trips to museums or attendance at lectures, these things pass by unnoticed. But we are neglecting a great opportunity when we do let slip these chances to broaden and cultivate our minds. A college education should not be restricted to the courses which we can take under our own faculty, for everyone knows how many limitations must be placed upon these, both in number and in scope. It should be something broader, a general culture, for which we are given the taste and the opportunity by the fact that we are a part of our college or university and are influenced by its general atmosphere. Many of us say that we have no time, but sometimes it is possible to "make time," and a strenuous effort should be put forth when it is a question of our receiving or losing something important for our cultivation.

To the Editor of the BARNARD BULLETIN:

It is reported in college that the Young Women's Christian Association has now under consideration a plan for broadening its basis of membership, that is for removing the present disabilities of Roman Catholics, Unitarians, Universalists and Christian Scientists. Such a plan I cannot refrain from hailing with joy and I wish its supporters every success in putting it through.

I speak from hearsay, for I am not a member of this association, never having "seen my way clear," as the old-fashioned phrase is. My reason for staying out I venture to make public only because I know it to be the reason of a number of other persons beside myself: we could never give allegiance to a society which, daring to take to itself the name of Christ, yet shuts its doors against a throng of his avowed followers. To be sure the children of the oldest as well as of the newest of Christian churches are allowed by the Y. W. C. A. a privilege called "associate membership." This privilege consists in paying a dollar a year, after having been informed, often, I must say, with the greatest tact, by the recruiting officer that one is not thought worthy of full and active membership. To these recruiting officers, by the way, belongs high praise, for not merely tact is required of them but a courage little short of sublime.

Such a state of things could not last long in this age of the world and in a college like Barnard which we have always thought was inclined to be broad-minded. The members of the Christian Association have evidently realized the difficulty of their position and are trying to put it right. The obstacle to change, of course, is that these rules are the rules of the national Y. W. C. A. and our Barnard branch, if it decided not to obey them, would have to break away from the larger institution. It naturally hesitates about doing this, yet surely it is not well to remain in an organization whose exclusiveness we cannot approve, and whatever loss of support the Barnard association might feel at leaving the national body would, I believe, be more than compensated by the support it would be likely to gain in college. Not only the sects now excluded would be added to the number of possible recruits, but also those of us who, while legally qualified, have been estranged by what seemed to us a narrow policy. The Craigie Club was organized on the understanding that it would join the large Christian Association when that should be graciously pleased to admit it and this would

New York and New Jersey, explained the city work, a subject that is not well known. The city Associations have a three-fold purpose, intellectual, physical and spiritual development.

The next address by Miss Pearl Archibald, Industrial Secretary for New York and New Jersey, upon the industrial work showed what a complete change the Association can bring to the busy lives of these working girls. There has been a remarkable growth of this work during a very short time.

After Miss Archibald's talk, the conference was adjourned for luncheon which was served in the Barnard lunch room.

The afternoon meeting opened with a short address by Miss Louise Wohnquist, National Secretary, on the Social Spirit. She emphasized the need of this social spirit in all Association work as, in that way, it can help girls who might, otherwise, find college life a lonely life.

The next address was by Mr. Edward Cope Wood, Finance Secretary for the Y. M. C. A. of the University of Pennsylvania, on the best method for carrying on a financial campaign.

Then Mrs. Whitman, who was presiding, spoke a few minutes on Bible Study. Bible Study should be emphasized because Christianity is a historical fact and it must be proved to be true. A remarkable intellectual quickening, an intimacy with Christ and a great interest in missions are what one may expect to gain from Bible Study.

Dr. Sailer, Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, said that Mission Study should accomplish the following results. It should arouse interest, organize our ideas on the subject and give us an ability to continue the study.

Miss Conde gave her ideas for the qualification of officers. They should have conviction, courage of conviction, conscientious-be a tremendous gain, for I have noticed that the Roman Catholics are usually among the most devoted and efficient workers. I do not know whether any girls not professedly of the Christian faith would care to join such a society or not, but perhaps some of them might, for there are great Jewish theologians who have all veneration and rare sympathy for Christ, as for instance Dr. Max Nordau, who says, "Jesus is soul of our soul, as he is flesh of our flesh. Who, then, could think of excluding him from the people of Israel? Saint Peter will remain the only Jew who said of the son of David: 'I know not the man'.—He honors our race and we claim him as we claim the Gospels—flowers of Jewish literature and only Jewish." At any rate a cordial and a humble invitation should be open to every girl in college to complete, not "associate" fellowship, where there would be no rule more restricting than "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy might," (Deuteronomy, VI 5), and "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," (Leviticus, XIX 18). Surely the support of the "heretical" sects, of the older church and, perhaps, of the older religion would more than make up for the backing (whatever that amounts to) of the national Y. W. C. A.

Looking at the thing from another point of view, we might say that it is a question of fitness in nomenclature. The one for whom this association is named was extremely broad-minded; so much so that he was harshly censured for it. He had friends of every possible kind and description and I do not find that he ever required them to hold any particular theory about himself. Probably each one of the twelve disciples had a somewhat different notion of their master. So it would seem that we must either make our society conform to the spirit of Christ or we must change its name. For his, to quote the "Servant in the House," is a dangerous name to play with.

LILIAN WADSWORTH CLOSSON, 1909.

ousness, common sense and compassion. She concluded with a brief outline of the relation of the Association to the Advisory Committee.

In the evening the Studio Club gave an informal reception with a musical program for the delegates. The Conference closed with a Vesper Service at Earl Hall on Sunday afternoon, at which Miss Conde made the address.

DR. COFFIN IN CHAPEL.

Friday noon, Dr. Coffin gave an energetic address that made all who heard him feel as if the ground of faith would always be secure if only we could have his spirit of accepting the relations of science to the Bible. He spoke on the origin of Christ, and of the trouble that so many have in explaining His birth. No theory of origin has as yet been universally accepted, and scientific theories, why should it be? It is not the origin that we are interested in, but the things that Christ did and is doing; if there is a God in heaven, do we know of any more divine representative of love and life and faith and trust than Jesus Christ? No matter what our creed or faith, is that not enough? Don't try to explain these events, but look at the result, at the influence of the thing itself, and judge from the deed, not the source, as to its divinity or truth.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NEWS.

At Bryn Mawr College the second number of the register of alumnae and former students, giving accounts of the occupations of the 2,045 former students, has just been issued. 927 women have obtained the bachelor's degree, and 77 of these have gotten that of master of arts, and 13 that of doctor of philosophy. 23 doctors of philosophy, besides these, took the bachelor's degree at other colleges. Of the doctors of philosophy, 75 per cent. are teaching, 47.2 per cent. in colleges; 16.6 per cent. (Continued on col. 3.)
