COLLEGE ASSEMBLIES

The first meeting of the Barnard Committee on Assemblies was held last Friday in Room 115. The members of this committee, of which Professor Braun is chairman, are, from the faculty, Dean Gildersleeve, Professor Clare Howard and Professor David Muzzey, and from the students, Miss Helen Jones, ex-officio, Misses Orilla Holden, Marjorie Marks and Evelyn Orne, with Miss Kitay as chairman of the student section. It is particularly desirable that the students should know who the members of the committee are, in order that they may bring to them any suggestions they may have to make as to meetings and speakers.

The general plan of last year so far as it concerns the allotment of dates will again be followed. There are to be two more big meetings in the University Gymnasium, one on January 11th, and another in April. The Thanksgiving service on November 23rd is also a University assembly. Beginning with October 4th, the first Tuesday assembly hour in each month of various kinds, although some additional days made be made available for such meetings if the students themselves should desire it. On October 11 Dean Gildersleeve will address the college, or in case the gymnasium is still in use as a dormitory, the Dean will speak to the Juniors and Seniors on that date in the Theatre and to the two lower classes a week later. For the last Tuesday in October, the 25th, a political mass meeting is planned in the hope that some light may be shed on the issues of the Presidential campaign.

Special efforts will also be made to encourage and improve our assembly singing, a matter which will be in charge of Miss Orilla Holden and a committee.

Three ways to help in making these assemblies a real feature and force in our college year: Regard your regular attendance as a stated college duty; encourage the music committee in every possible way; and bring your suggestions as to programs and speakers to any member of the Assembly Committee.

RELIGION 7

In order to fit more conveniently into the programs of students, Mr. Pomroy's course, Religion 7, The Present Elements in Christianity, will be given the second semester instead of the first. The hour will remain the same, Thursday from 2:10 to 3:50.

VIRGINIA C. GILDERSLEEVE,
Dean.

REPORT OF STUDENT COUNCIL

A meeting of Student Council was held on Wednesday, September 29, at twelve o'clock. It was decided that hereafter the Council should meet regularly on Thursdays instead of on Wednesdays. Garda Brown, '23, Edith Cahn, '22, and Eleanor Tiemann, '21 were appointed by Student Council as members of the Executive Board of the Board of Student Presidents. It was agreed that the constitution of the class of 1924 should be based upon the most desirable points in the constitutions of the other three classes. A petition was read from the chairman of the 1922 Junior Show Committee asking for Student Council's permission to hold regular weekly meetings from three to four on Wednesday afternoons. The petition was refused, on the ground that there was no reason why the four o'clock ruling should be broken in this case, as the meeting could be held some other time after four. The request for thirty hours of rehearsals and two performances was granted.

The week beginning October 4 was set aside for the signing of honor system pledges. All new students who have not yet signed are urged to do so at once.

RESOLUTION

On account of the necessity for haste, Student Council took the name of Undergraduate Association in sending the following resolution to Mrs. Schiff upon the event of the death of her husband:

Resolved, That the Undergraduate Association of Barnard College extend an expression of deepest sympathy to Mrs. Schiff on the recent loss of her husband. The memory of the late Mr. Jacob H. Schiff will always be loved and revered by Barnard College for his unforgettable interest in its welfare.

THE SEPTEMBER BEAR

A college literary magazine is valuable as a spontaneous expression of the literary tastes and creative instincts of the student body. It loses its worth if it is in any way forced, or its contributions written as a matter of duty. We have generally thought that the literary ability and interests of a college can be measured by the amount of writing its students do outside the regular work of their classes, not under any compulsion, not to meet any requirement of the curriculum, but purely for the natural joy of self-expression and artistic creation. It is to be hoped that The Barnard Bear, which has started the year in a promising way, may continue successfully, and that there will prove to be plenty of members of the Barnard community who will write just for the joy of writing and the exciting expectation of seeing some of their productions in print.

The diet of "wild honey in the wilderness," of which the Editor-in-Chief speaks in her pleasant editorial, has apparently not been conducive to much poetic production. Miss Rathborne's "Fragment" is indeed somewhat fragmentary, though pleasing. Barnard's record in the past leads us to hope that there may be a more abundant output of poetry in later issues.

The two short stories, though somewhat slender in plot, are both well written and interesting. Miss Mark's "Time Regulated" gives us in brief space a vivid picture, and is rather touching, though decidedly less so than Miss Reynard's charming portrayal of little Pietro and the tragedy of his comrade Cassandra.

The playlet "Friends" by Miss Weiss is a creditable study in the portrayal of the every day and often unnoticed tragedies of child life. It is a difficult subject and the writer has not quite succeeded in carrying out her idea effectively.

Miss Jennings' Valedictory is interesting, even though it is not exactly a valedictory, and though one may disagree with most of its ideas. One doubts whether "courage to act upon knowledge which we realize to be incomplete" is really generally given by a college education, and whether, if given, it is as valuable as the writer believes. It is rather striking to note that Miss Wallerstein, in her equally interesting and somewhat sounder essay, implies that the search for truth, the open-mindedness and the ideal of abstract justice instilled by college training, tends to paralyze action. This is probably the more usual belief. One

BOOMING THE FACULTY

It is a tradition that editorial writers point the admonitory finger; that they spend their time commenting on the stupidity, cupidity, or rare virtue of mere mortals as though the August scribe lived apart in a neat vacuum quite untouched by human blindness and longing. Nevertheless, the intention of the present editorial is not so much to criticize as to express a desire, which, we trust, has been in the hearts of many.

During four years at Barnard we have felt acutely the lack of personal contact between faculty and students. The exceptions to the rule only emphasize the fact that the majority of the faculty is an unknown quantity to the majority of the students. Lecture hours provide intellectual cognizance; teas, polite but stilted conversation. We seldom reach the human understanding which makes for mutual sympathy and helpfulness. We do not know our Dean as well as we could wish, although that is no fault of our gracious "First Lady." Maybe if the entire faculty were to move to sunny, informal Students Hall, we might find it easier to run in for a chat. As it is our faculty is so hidden away around the mazy corners and forbidding doors of Milbank that we expend our courage in a journey of exploration. A result is that we are profoundly ignorant about our faculty and often run off campus for speakers when we have an expert passing unknown amongst us. "Bulletin" has this year adopted a policy of printing news about the faculty. It may help you to appreciate what you have at home. It is occasionally embarrassing to have someone from another college say "Oh, you have the famous Professor X at Barnard!" You gasp and wonder what you have been missing. We trust our faculty will not resent our bringing them thus into the limelight and exposing them to public attack, as it were, but we are conscious of a chasm. The faculty are busy folk, we know, and the students are rushed now and then, but there ought to be time in the week for us to cultivate one another. A French person has commented on the delightful "commraderie" existing between the American professor and his students. With such a foundation to work on, what could we not erect? Has anyone the blueprints?

MASS INERTIA

College students, generally speaking, are in the habit of soaking up knowledge like sponges and giving nothing in return. Witness the paucity of class room discussions in almost any course given at Barnard. Look at class and club meetings where the president does all the talking and the other members of the society merely look intelligent and say nothing. This attitude on the part of nine-tenths of the student body, if continued, will soon be the ruination of many of the extra-curricular institutions which the active one-tenth of the college is at present trying so hard to preserve. Most of the events that take place at College are brought to a successful close through the sheer determination of the leaders not to fail in their undertaking. However, even though such a system may develop qualities of leadership in the chosen few, it is nevertheless most unjust to place all the responsibility upon one person. Unless a sufficient number of girls is interested in a college event, it is better that the event should never take place at all.

At the present time Barnard students are faced with the question. "Shall we enter the Intercollegiate Debate again this year?" Those who have attended the debates at Barnard for the past three years and have seen the home team carry off the laurels from Mt. Holyoke, Smith and Vassar will undoubtedly answer in the affirmative. However, the percentage of the college that has shown any interest in intercollegiate debating up to the present time is very small indeed. Barnard has so far made a good showing in debating but all institutions will totter sooner or later, unless they are built on a firm foundation. Just as a roof will cave in unless it is adequately supported, so the Intercollegiate Debaters at Barnard will soon have to drop out of the ranks unless the inert nine-tenths of the college stand in back of them ready to aid in research work and to do everything in their power to make the Intercollegiate Debate a success. It is up to those who wish to see Barnard hold its place in the intercollegiate field to leave the dormant masses and gain the ranks of the active members of the college.

NOTICE

By ruling of the Committee on Instruction, all work that is marked incomplete at the mid-years or deficiency examinations must be completed within two months of the opening of the following term. Otherwise it automatically becomes an F.

The dates in 1920-1921 when outstanding work must be in the hands of the instructors are: November 23 for 2nd term of 1919-20; April 2nd for 1st term of 1920-21.

A. E. H. MEYER.

Registrar.

POLDEKIN

All students and teachers of Barnard College are invited to attend the performance of Poldekin between the dates October 4-16 at one half the box office prices plus the war tax, provided they present a proper identification when applying for seats. Cards of identification can be obtained in the Reception Room at Milbank Hall from Miss Libby.

1921 CLASS MEETING

The first part of the Senior Class meeting held on October 5 from 1 to 2 was devoted to announcements mostly of a financial character. The would-be college vendors tried to advertise their wares in the most attractive manner possible, but although the pleas to buy Mortarboard, Bear and Mysteries Supper tickets were very urgent, the strongest appeal was made by Helen Shire when she announced that the dues of the Political and Social Discussion Club has been reduced from $1.00 to $.50. Such underbidding on the part of one club should be prohibited by an act of Student Council.

The meeting was then turned over to Clara Weiss who afforded much amusements while trying to make the class sing to the strumming of a ukelele. If Clara's wit and musical instrument are present at all song practices, we can assure her of a full attendance in the future.

DEBATING CLUB

Unavoidable events do happen at times even in the best regulated clubs. It was not the fault of the Debating Society that at the beginning of this year it was without a president, for Frances Williamson, the president-elect, left Barnard to study law at Yale. Since clubs cannot exist very long without a leader, a meeting of the Society was called on September 30 to elect a president. After Louise Schlichting had been elected president and Margaret Wing vice-president, there was a discussion as to what the membership basis of the club should be. It was decided that the members of the club should be divided into two groups: 1. Those wishing to do research work for the debaters. 2. Debaters. Membership in group 2 is competitive and will be decided by tryouts consisting of a three minute speech on any topic whatsoever. All those wishing to join should speak to Louise Schlichting immediately.

B. O. S. P.

The Executive Board of the Board of Student Presidents meets every Tuesday at 12 in the Conference Room. All business concerning dates for clubs or class meetings and everything about the Point System should be brought before the Board on those days. Applicants should either appear in person or send a written notice to Beatrice Wormser, Chairman of the Board.

IN MEMORIAM

It is with deep sorrow that we have heard of the death of one of the time-honored institutions of Barnard College. For the past few years, the Société Française has played an important role in our college life but has at last succumbed. May it rest in peace!

FRESHMAN MEETING

With surprising speed and pep, the class of '24 has gotten their class organization in running order and at their second meeting, September 30th, had some good rousing songs and cheers to spring on the expectant Sophs. After their attention had been called again to Field Day, Miss Weathers, the newly elected Freshman chairman, appointed the following girls temporarily: Vice-President, Blanche Edwards; Secretary, Marion Sheehan; Historian, Barbara Krieger; Cecily Applebaum, chairman of the Committee to draw up a Constitution. After an exciting discussion of plans (concerning which nothing will be told), the meeting broke up with everyone looking around for several peppy cheer leaders who will be able to organize the enthusiastic yelling of the class of '24 into the best cheering ever heard in Barnard.

wonders, also, whether students really think they have no field for original and spontaneous effort in their studies because they have little if any share in planning the curriculum. Teachers would like to think that in outside reading, writing, laboratory and other types of research, and thinking, students have endless opportunities for the use of their own initiative and creative power. It is true, however, that we all, both instructors and students, tend too much to regard class room lectures as the most important part of college work, and fail to realize that far more important is the independent work done by a student outside the lecture halls.

Miss Wallerstein's "The College Woman and the Labor Movement" gives us a very interesting glimpse of the reaction of the college trained mind to intercourse with labor union problems, and illustrates that open-minded balance of judgment of which the writer speaks. It is one of the most worth-while essays which the Bear has printed in recent years.

The reviewer has pleasant recollections of a delightful group of students whom she had the pleasure of guiding in the paths of mediaeval literature some years ago. The result of their reading Chaucer, ballads and old romances was their suddenly blossoming forth in plays, stories and poems of their own creation. Something like this is the ideal which every teacher of literature has—that the inspiration of reading should cause original production quite outside the definite academic requirements of any course. Let us trust that nourished by sustenance of this sort, the Bear may flourish greatly throughout the coming academic year.

VIRGINIA C. GILDERSLEEVE.

A. A. SPORTS

Big Circus Coming to Barnard

Have you forgotten the thrills of your first circus? Do you remember the painted clowns, the trapeze swingers, the acrobats in pink tights, and all the kaleidoscope happenings crowding in one after another? Don't you often wish now that you could taste the sugared pop corn and sip pink lemonade again? You will have the chance within the next few weeks to visit another circus just as entertaining as your first, and best of all you may even take part in it yourself.

A. A. is planning a big circus in which the different clubs and social organizations of Barnard will participate. It will be held in the gymnasium just as soon as its present tenants have vacated. There will be all the main shows and side shows of the real performance, and—well, you will hear more about it from the posters.

Poster hours will be held from 2-4 on Monday, October 11th. Come and bring all the material that you think would be suitable for circus posters. We will meet in Undergrad Reading Room prepared to turn out advertisements that will run Barnum and Bailey out of business!

Tennis Tournament

Play off your matches just as soon as possible, so that the tournament can be finished while warm weather lasts. Couples will be posted on fourth floor of Students' Hall.

Field Day

Track is coming along in spite of the combination which the weather and John Jay Hall seem to have formed against it. In order to beat these arch-conspirators at their own game, everyone is urged to take advantage of all the fair weather that comes and get in those two practices a week. Don't forget open-hour track every day at four.

Eligibility Rules

1. Special O. K. for track from Dr. Alsop.
2. Academic and social O. K.
3. Must be living up to the requirements of the Physical Ed. Department.
4. The number of events a girl may enter depends on her physical condition. No girl may enter more than three events—no more than two running.
5. To enter track every girl must have had at least 8 practices, reporting not less than twice nor more than four times per week.

Go to the doctor now and get that O.K., then come out with lots of pep.

SENIOR-FRESHMAN PARTY

The old idea that all Seniors are awesome and dignified creatures and that all Freshmen quiver at their approach and are properly submissive. . . If such an idea ever did exist at Barnard. . . has been forever eliminated by the combination of '24 and '21. In fact, were it not for certain bits of chromatic neck-wear, it would have been hard to tell which was which at the party in the Theatre last Friday.

It all began with a Paul Jones. . . and was interspersed with numerous other Paul Joneses, during the afternoon. There was a highly technical marshmallow race, run off in many heats, where the majority of Freshmen proved the athletic prowess of their class by agily twisting their tongues about long cords, and arriving at the marshmallow first. At just about this time the refreshments appeared. Then there was more dancing—more Paul Joneses—and finally, after cheers from both classes everyone discovered all of a sudden that it was getting late, and that they really had to go.

NOTICE TO

LUTHERAN STUDENTS

The Church of the Advent, Broadway at 93rd Street, cordially invites all Lutheran students of Columbia University to attend a supper to be held for them at the church on Thursday, October 14 at 6 P. M. Here is a good opportunity for you to meet the Columbia Lutherans. If you are coming to the supper please sign up in R. S. O. office before Tuesday, October 13.

'23 WELCOMES SOPHOMORE TRANSFERS

Last Monday afternoon, in the Theatre, the Sophomore Class played hostess and extended the glad hand to its transfer sisters. The new sophomores were labeled as to name, with boldly lettered placards, and led onto the stage to be introduced by Garda Brown, as circus master in a tall silk hat, put them through their paces amid the applause of the class. Games followed, interspersed with the ever popular dance. Refreshments? Rather! And a jolly good time, with all laurels to Nancy Boyd and her entertainment committee.

1922 AGAIN

1922 had its first class meeting of the year on Tuesday, October 5th and proved that they are Junior with a vim. Edith Cahn gave a nice welcoming talk to make every one feel at home, and the rest of the hour was mostly announcements as to twenty-two's and other activities. There were endless exciting news items about mortarboard from Evelyn Orne and her workers—some secrets about the Freshman-Junior party from Marg Cannon, hints of Junior Show from Helen Mack—an urgent invitation from Edna Wetterer to enter Field Day and more than an invitation from Kitty Coffey to pay Undergrad dues. Then the Soph Mysteries Chairman came in and invited '22 to go to the Mysteries though that really wasn't at all necessary. The only disheartening notice was the resignation of Helen Mack, class song leader, who also has the burden of Junior Show on her shoulders and feels she must spend all of her time on that. The resignation was laid on the table until a special meeting can be called for a new election. The meeting adjourned with much singing. Watch '22—the class with pep!

CLASSICAL CLUB MEETS

Classical Club opened its fall program on October first at 12 o'clock in Room 304, Milbank. Thelma De Graffe was elected President and Mabel Wahlers, Secretary and Treasurer, to consummate plans of the club. These include a tea to the college Monday, October eleventh; a Christmas party; and by taxing its members, supplying a year's subscription of a classical paper to the American School at Athens.

The class of '23 met in Room 304 Students' Hall during Assembly hour last Tuesday. Among the important issues of the meeting was the election of a new vice-president, and the vote on class rings. From a list of four candidates Winifred Lane finally came out victor in the race for vice-president. Some important announcements about Mysteries were made by Katherine Shea, Mysteries Chairman, following which, the remainder of the meeting was turned over to Charlotte Townsen, cheerleader.

MARRIAGES

Wendela Alice Liander was married to Otto Albert Friend on September 11 in New York. Mr. Friend is an engineer, having graduated from the University of Michigan in 1910. Mr. and Mrs. Friend will be at home after November 1, at 154 West 84th Street.

Gertrude M Bergstrom, Barnard '18, was married to Mr. Mark Leslie Thompson of Lafayette, Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stuart Ogden have announced the marriage of their daughter, Margaret Armitage Ogden, Barnard '19, to Mr. Arthur James Markham on September 25 at St. Michaels Church, New York City.

JOHN JAY HALL

Three apartments on 1st, 3rd, and 11th floors of John Jay Hall are ready for occupancy and others will be available soon. Meanwhile the Broadview, where the Alumnae Co-operative Dormitory has been housed for two years, is taking care of a number of students. The capacity of Brooks Hall by a rearrangement of furniture has been increased to take care of several extra girls.

R.S.O. is giving a tea in the College Parlor, Friday, October 15, at 4 o'clock. Miss Cummings, the new director of Religious and Social Organizations, will be there to make us enthusiastic with the plans for the year. This is a get-together party for everyone from the Freshmen to the Seniors and the Faculty is most cordially invited.

BARNYARD GOSSIP

Dr. Lamson, Room 209, Milbank: "I have been so embarrassed! Can't you switch off some of those Freshmen who come up to my office and ask for a physical examination?"

The Deanery

In accordance with the custom of most colleges of providing residence for the head, the Barnard Trustees voted last spring to place at the disposal of the Dean, as an official residence, an apartment in DeWitt Clinton Hall, 39 Claremont Avenue, a house which Columbia bought for the use of officers. The apartment is on the tenth floor with a beautiful view of the campus and river. The furnishing is now being completed and the Dean hopes in the near future to entertain as many officers and students of the college as the somewhat small dwelling will permit. The apartment will be used also for the accommodation of distinguished guests of the college. Professor Caroline F. E. Spurgeon, visiting Professor of English Literature will live there during this term.

"22," noting, at the end of a list of required reading, the cabalistic symbols "op. cit.," "Oh, isn't that lovely! These are optional!"

The college is very happy to welcome two Serbian students, Miss Milana Ilitch and Miss Leposana Mladenovitch, brought to America by the International Siberian Educational Committee of which Dr. Rosalie Slaughter Morton is chairman. Miss Ilitch is specializing in English and comparative literature and Miss Mladenovitch in chemistry.

Society Item

Among those who have returned to town for the winter season is "Rags." He motored in from his summer residence at Bar Harbor and is at present recuperating from the trip.

A check for $25,000 from Mrs. E. H. Harriman was received on Monday, completing the payment of her pledge of $50,000 which she generously promised the Endowment Fund.

Don't you love to meet the little familiar things around college again—the paper hand towel, egg salad, Raphael, and the dear time-worn signs "Come to Tea" and "Get your O. K. for athletics." (They might make a sequence, n'est pas?)

How many haemoglobins have you?

FACULTY NOTES

Monsieur René Vaillant has been appointed Lecturer in Romance Languages for this year, taking the work of Dr. Alexander who is unfortunately ill and unable to return to college this fall.

Senorita Carolina Marcial Dorado, our new associate in Spanish, was the first graduate of the American College in Spain to come to the U. S. as a teacher. She established the Spanish Department in Wellesley College and then went to the University of Porto Rico for four years. She has come to us from Bryn Mawr. In addition to her work at Barnard, she is the head of the Spanish and French Departments of Ginn and Co. Senorita Dorado has written a number of widely used text books, of which the best known is probably "Espana Pintoresca." Among her other works are "Primeras Lecciones de Espanol," "Primeras Lecturas," "Vistas Sudamericanas."

Miss Eloise Cummings has been appointed Director of Religious and Social Activities to succeed Miss Scudder who left to be married. Miss Cummings is a Vassar graduate of 1917. Last year she held a similar position in the University of Pittsburgh.

INTRODUCING MISS CUMMINGS

Please, oh all of you Y. W. C. A. people, past, present and future go to the Conference Room next Thursday at four o'clock and meet Miss Cummings, the new R. S. O. director of Barnard. Miss Cummings is going to talk on "Christianity in the College," and is very anxious to meet all of you. Unfortunately the Freshman-Junior party is the same day so Sophomores and Seniors—do make a special effort to welcome Miss Cummings.

BROOKS HALL ENTERTAINS
THE NEW GIRLS

Brooks Hall old girls turned out most gallantly attired as men on the eve of October the first, and escorted the new girls to a dance given in their honor in the large drawing room. There were programs and all the newest steps and cats of the most delectable variety. A spirited cabaret, which varied all the way from ballet dancing and circus stunts to a touching presentation of "Babes in the Woods," capped the climax of the evening.

FACULTY NOTE

Mrs. Carol Lorenz Hier, Barnard 1916, is assisting the Dean in entertaining alumnae, students, and guests of the college in the position last year held by Miss Eggleston. She will be glad

FRESHMEN CLASS MEETING

By the way the 1924 class meeting on Tuesday started, all the Freshmen thought that there must be a concerted effort on the part of the upper-classmen to empty their pocketbooks. First they were reminded of the Blanket Tax which must be paid before they are admitted to any college activities. Next Mortarboard was boosted as the book all Freshmen should have. After the club 'dues' sheets had been given out and explained, Miss Shea made many formidable announcements concerning Mysteries. Tickets may be obtained for the dinner Wednesday, Thursday, Friday at noon in Students Hall for 60 cents. After the chairman had reminded all the Freshmen about signing up for the Honor System, the class of '24 after listening to the enthusiastic efforts of many classmates in cheer leading, selected with great deliberation Priscilla Trumbull as their song and cheer leader. Miss Kahrs then called for a voluntary field day committee to take charge of the various events. The volunteers are Miss Auerbach, baseball; Bazinet, running; Cooper, hurdles; Grant, high jump; Springer, basketball throw; MacBride, javelin throw. Just before the meeting broke up, the college cheer leader, Miss Holden gave the Freshmen some practice in the college songs.
