QUALIFICATIONS OF THE UNDERGRADUATE VICE-PRESIDENT DESCRIBED

By Dorothy Miner

Although the office of Undergraduate Vice-president is not ordinarily a very conspicuous one, it has an importance which is actual as well as potential. Under the amendment to the By-laws recently passed by the Representative Assembly, the Vice-president no longer has the duties of Chairman of Honor Board, but instead has the responsibility of enforcing all Student Council and Undergraduate regulations, and of maintaining the order and decorum of students in College buildings and on the Campus. As Chairman of the Board of Senior Proctors, her sphere of activity extends from the management of elections to the orderly conduct of midyear and final examinations. For these various duties the officer needs to have efficiency and executive ability, as well as a personality which shall render her necessary contacts with individuals and organizations effective. The Vice-president is a member of Student Council and must be able to contribute constructive ideas and sound opinions to the problems of Student Government. In the ab-

JUNIORS AND FRESHMEN SUCCESSFUL IN BASEBALL

The fates seemed to favor youth on March 11, as the Juniors defeated the Seniors with a score of 6-11 and the Freshmen defeated the Sophomores with a score of 9-23. The Junior-Senior game showed more poise and was a much faster game. The Juniors played very well, but the Seniors lost their heads.

The Freshman-Sophomore game was not so good. The Sophomores played under difficulties as they lacked two members of their team, and as this was the first game in which they had played. The Freshmen seemed to know more about baseball, since the Sophomores did not work out any of their plays. The teams were as follows:

JUNIORS	SENIORS
H. Robinson	P. Quinn
M. Meyers	C. H. Burtis
E. Gedroice	1st. D. Avery
Kaufman	2nd. Sender
Kridel	3rd. Stillman
Martin	S.S.

COMPLETE TEXT OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION RESOLUTION

The following resolution, drawn up and passed by Student Council, was submitted to the Assembly at a special meeting of the Representative Assembly last Friday:

Whereas it is the aim of the Physical Education Department to establish habits of health among the students by requiring definite hours of exercise each week, and Whereas the students are in absolute accord with the aim of the Physical Education Department but feel that some change in application would more readily effect the desired results, and

Whereas under the stress of increased senior duties in the way of academic requirements, and contacts with the outside world necessary during the last college year, it becomes more difficult to fulfil the Physical Education requirement at definite hours, and

Whereas it would seem to be more in harmony with the policy of the new curriculum to encourage greater student responsibility; to place the emphasis in Physical Education more on accomplishment than on merely fulfilling required hours of attendance,

Be it Resolved that it is the opinion of the Representative Assembly and Student Council that it would be desirable to discontinue the definite Senior requirement in Physical Education for those students who have satisfactorily completed three years of required work and that the

EVERYONE NEEDS CAREER SAYS DEAN GILDERSLEEVE

Everybody should have a career, whether she needs it financially or not, claimed Dean Gildersleeve in her address to the sophomore class on Tuesday, March 16, at one o'clock in the Theatre. By career, she means, some interesting occupation which takes a good deal of time and thought, and gives satisfaction to the individual and to the world. Each one should have some main interest about which she knows a great deal. Then, when the question of a career arises, she can follow her inclination and information. The point to recognize is that the individual must decide for herself the thing she wants to do. She is more

The new curriculum decided upon this term, does not seem to have satisfied the desire for change. At the Representative Assembly, March 12, a resolution consisting of two parts was presented concerning a change in the physical education requirement for Seniors:

1. Be it resolved that it is the opinion of the Representative Assembly and Student Council that it would be desirable to discontinue the definite senior requirements in physical education for those students who have satisfactorily completed three years of required work; that the responsibility of taking the proper amount of exercise and the time when it shall be taken be left to the responsibility of the individual student.

2. Be it resolved that it be suggested to the physical education department that each student before graduating, besides passing her motor ability tests, fulfill certain other requirements; such as swimming, learning to play any individual game, and one team game, or such a program as the department shall see fit to suggest.

OPERA TICKETS OFFERED AT REDUCED RATES

Through the courtesy of Otto Kahn, director of the Metropolitan Opera, Professor Braun has been able to effect an arrangement whereby for certain operas each week Barnard students and staff will be able to secure seats in the dress circle and balcony regularly listed at $4.50 and $3.00 at $1.50. Naturally, these cannot be the choicest seats but represent an unusual opportunity, nevertheless. If the demand continues as large as the first week's trial would indicate, it will be necessary to limit the opportunity to perhaps the first 25 or 30 who apply.

The operation of the plan is exceedingly simple. Students apply in Miss Weeks' office for the desired tickets which must be paid for either at that time or at the latest within two days of the performance. The tickets are then sent up to Barnard and called for up to three o'clock of the day of the performance. This obviates one of the most irksome features of Opera attendance, namely

COMMENT

The first part of the Physical Education resolution passed by the Representative Assembly at its special meeting last Friday is a compromise, and like so many compromises, loses the entire purpose of the original resolution. The resolution, conceived by Student Council, indicated the desire that required gymnastics be abolished for Seniors. Those who framed the resolution wished Seniors to have the privilege of deciding for themselves whether or not they should take any exercise. The compromise, on the other hand, specifically states that two hours of physical education be prescribed each week.

True, it would be a convenience to be permitted to extend the scope of activities beyond the limits of the college gymnasium and swimming pool to include such sports as ice skating or riding. It would also be a help to the commuter to be able to take her required exercise on her local golf course on a Saturday or Sunday afternoon. All these advantages are admitted, and are perhaps sufficient excuse for the passing of the resolution. Nevertheless, the fact remains that required physical education for Seniors is approved by the Representative Assembly. This implies no real change from the present system.

As for the second provision of the resolution, asking that the physical education department require that each student be able to swim, to play any individual game, such as tennis, and to play one team game, such as baseball, "or such a program as the department shall see fit to suggest," this is a sensible suggestion. How many students are not surprised to learn that Barnard does not require for a degree the ability to swim? It is the minimum that college physical education should do for one, to teach one to be able to save one's own

FORUM COLUMN

For the expression of public opinion

To the Editor of Bulletin

The letter of Miss Josephine Fitor and Miss Mary Steele Johnson which appeared in last week's Bulletin raises a most interesting point. I heartily agree that it is of particular importance that each incoming student should be given adequate opportunity to comprehend the full meaning and scope of the Honor Code. There is, to be sure, nothing very complex or obscure about the Code itself. It is a very simple statement of a very simple standard of honor, and the extent of its application is stressed. It is not, however, the standard of honor, but the extent of its application, which I feel is so often misunderstood. There is, of course, no adequate reason why students should have one ethical code for mid-year examinations, and another for Economics reading cards, but the fact is that some seem to.

Perhaps we take too much for granted in Barnard. We assume that students of college age are mature and intelligent enough to assume a certain moral and civic responsibility. The idea is not to train them in ways of honor, but to respect the sense of honor which they are supposed to have. Honor Board is in a particularly difficult position here, for we have on the one hand the indignant protest of students who regard as a personal insult any reference to the fact that dishonesty does occur in the student body, and on the other the complaints of those who think that students cannot understand what the Honor Code means!

Whether or not a delay in the signing of the Code would very much alter matters is an interesting problem, and one which might well be considered before issuing the copies of Honor Code for next year. It used to be the custom to have the Freshmen sign the Code shortly after entering College, but the present plan of sending the copies out during the summer was adopted two years ago. It was felt that the Code would receive a more careful and thoughtful reading if presented at that time instead of during the confusion of the opening term. The various underclassmen with whom I have discussed the matter seem to feel that the present system is satisfactory in every way, but evidently this opinion is not unanimous.

Personally, I feel that the soundest solution of the problem lies in preliminary honor system education in the preparatory and high schools. The "school-boy pact" point of view, in which the teacher is regarded as being on one side and the pupils on the other, accompanied by the theory that anything is all right as long as one can get away with it, such a habit of thought should be displaced at eight and not eighteen. The Women's Intercollegiate Association for Student Government is already carrying on work designed to make honor system the rule rather than the exception in high schools, so that by the time student reaches college, no period of adjustment will be necessary. Such an attempt is a most constructive one, and results should soon begin to be evident. In the meantime, the suggestion that some temporary arrangement should be made for new students is certainly worthy of consideration.

BARNACLE QUARTERLY

Not content with being the only college periodical, so far as the reviewer knows, to be founded by freshmen, our BARNACLE in the senior year of its founders, hits upon a new policy altogether unique. A soberly quarterly is to be supported by a flippant monthly, as a manager runs musical shows for the sake of Shakespeare or the drier Ibsen. The inauguration is auspicious. This first Quarterly is a dignified and consistent periodical, with enough variety in the material and enough real quality to keep it from being dull. But why should the innovation not be sufficiently daring to slough off that most irritating feature of BARNACLE tradition, the villainous and unnecessary habit of cutting stories in two? This practice when applied to Miss Turner's FAIRIE RIDER amounts to something like rough treatment. For Miss Turner has a style of her own. Her narrative slips along with the light spontaneous fluency of the tale that is told. She has crossed the short story with the tale and produced an original form most happily suited to carry the material she works. Miss Prosser's sea yarn also shows the happy influence of oral fiction. It is a type new to our college paper, vigorous and authentic. Miss Prosser uses the jargon of sailing like a professional of the sea, with perfect freedom and without affectation or effort. She manages also to convey that delightful doubt as to credibility with which the true salt ever savors his tale. The end, however, is painful and should not have been.

The verse contributes both variety and character to the general effect. Miss Deutsch's A LA MODE, especially the Whitman passage, maintains its author's reputation for sound wit; Miss Garwood as usual takes rank as the BARNACLE laureate; while Miss Horwitz's MARTHA and the anonymous TO THE HEART-BREAKER supply just the element of discreet frivolity permissible in a QUARTERLY devoted to literature. The number on the whole impresses the reader as more like a magazine than anything we have had for many a year.

ETHEL STURTEVANT.

In regard to the rather appalling statement in the letter of last week, concerning the "flagrant disregard of the Honor Code among all of the classes", I can only suggest that as the writers seem to have an intelligent interest and regard for the effective working of the Honor System, which I sincerely appreciate, one more definite report of the matter should be made to Honor Board. There is, of course, some dishonesty in the college, or the Honor Board would be unnecessary, but the revelation of "flagrant disregard among all the classes" comes as a distinct surprise. If such a condition exists, it can only be fostered by ignoring it. Honor Board has the authority and experience to deal with such matters in an impersonal, impartial, and effective manner. Whatever the writers have in mind should certainly be investigated properly.

Very sincerely,
DOROTHY MINER,
Chairman of Honor Board.

STUDENT COUNCIL REPORT

The method of selecting the students to the Fellowships created by this year's Drive was one of the topics of discussion at the meeting of Student Council on March 11. It was felt that greater enthusiasm could be raised in future drives and more personal interest aroused in the work accomplished by the holder of the fellowship, if she were elected by the whole student body from nominees selected from the graduating class by the Fellowship committee which is composed of faculty, alumna, and student representatives. This method would insure that the holder of this Fellowship have not only intellectual qualifications, but a personality which would make her residence at a foreign university a contribution to international understanding. In discussing the exchange students to be brought to Barnard, it was felt that these same qualifications should be sought for, and that a definite place for this student should be made in the activities of the college so that her experience could have an effective sphere for its influences. It was urged that all suggestions as to the type of exchange students or the method of selecting them be given to Miss Turner or Constance Rouillon.

The Constitution of the National Student Federation was read and discussed. This is a temporary plan to provide for investigating the practicability of a national student union.

Alice Killeen gave a report of the progress being made in the plans for refurbishing the Studies.

Respectfully submitted,
DOROTHY MINER,
Undergraduate Vice-Pres.

MORNINGSIDE HEIGHTS IS A NEW TYPE OF INTELLECTUAL CENTRE

On Morningside Heights, in New York, a new type of intellectual world centre is in process of being made similar to those cities of antiquity Athens and Rome, which attracted students from every land.

Twenty-five years ago it was considered too far up town to be in close touch with the great active forces of the city. It was devoted mainly to baseball fields and vacant lots although Barnard had already erected one of its buildings there and the Seth Low Library of Columbia had just been completed. The early sections of the Church of St. John the Divine were also under way.

Since then, there has been remarkable progress and Morningside Heights, architecturally, will be a unique and inspiring spectacle. Besides the new buildings which Columbia is erecting, there will be the Christian Missionary Building which is to house a Church Hospital, bank and a hotel. Two blocks away, the Rockefeller Church will contribute to the new skyline a 400 feet Campanile, equipped with a Carillon of 53 bells from the famous foundry at Croyden, England. A Gothic mask will shroud its 20th Century skyscraper construction, representing a radical innovation in ecclesiastical architecture.

There is also the Cathedral of St. John the Divine whose pyramidal spire and twin square-topped towers will typify the permanent quality of this Morningside Heights development. These institutions will represent the triune nature of man for they minister to the mind, body and soul.

Intellectually, the development is international in scope and character. Students from practically every land are studying on Morningside Heights. Especially since the War has the influx of students been tremendous and necessitated Columbia's expansion. We find men and women from China, India, Japan, South Africa, Armenia, and Greece studying politics, medicine, engineering and economics that they may teach the systems of a successful nation in their native lands.

The last vestige of the old Bloomington Asylum on the Columbia Campus and of the Leake and Watts Orphan Asylum are doomed to disappear. Eight, ten and twelve-story dormitories, laboratories, theological quarters, and clubs are to arise in rapid succession. The Italian Culture Centre and Club has already been erected. The idea of permanence everywhere enters into the calculation, for Morningside Heights is building, not for the present alone, but also for generations yet unborn.

CLASSICAL STUDENTS SHOULD GO ABROAD

Miss Ruth Lustbader, Barnard '23, spoke to the club about her recent trip abroad at a meeting of the Classical Club on Thursday, March 11. Miss Lustbader was a major in Greek and Latin while in Barnard and was awarded a fellowship in archaeology at Bryn Mawr. She toured the Mediterranean countries and Egypt for the purpose of studying various excavations.

Miss Lustbader spoke of the beauty of Greece that had far surpassed her expectations, and particularly mentioned the impressiveness of Delphi. She told of the customs, dress and appearance of Athens, Crete, and other points that she had visited; and mentioned incidentally that Fords and western dress were quite common in many parts of Greece.

Miss Lustbader advised people interested in the classics to go abroad as soon after graduation as possible, because she believes that her three month trip contributed more definite knowledge than a number of years of graduate work could have done. If it is necessary to do graduate work first, Miss Lustbader, emphasized that this should be done outside of New York City, because of the distractions of the city.

MATH-SCIENCE CLUB VISITS TELEPHONE EXCHANGE

The Math-Science Club conducted a field-trip to the Cathedral Telephone Exchange at Manhattan Avenue and 108th Street last Saturday morning.

One of the instructors of the Telephone Company led the group around the Exchange. They were shown how messages are received from subscribers on the Clarkson and Cathedral Exchanges, are then transmitted to a central station, and from there to the desired parties. They also saw the Cafeteria and Rest-rooms which were attractively furnished.

The most up-to-date feature at the Telephone Exchange is the receiving board for numbers called by subscribers using the Dial System. This is a far cry from the primitive telephone invented just fifty years ago.

MENORAH TEA TO BE HELD

The Menorah Tea will be held on Monday, March 22, from 4 to 6 in the Conference Room. This is the first social event of the season. There will be a musical program as well as a speaker. Students who are planning (a) to transfer to professional schools with the intention of counting the first year in an approved professional school in place of the senior year at Barnard and (b) students who wish to take methods courses at Teachers College during the year 1926-1927 are requested to inform the Registrar of Barnard College of their plans on or before MARCH 31. Proper blanks for this purpose can be obtained now at the Registrar's office.

Request for this information is made at this time in order that the Dean and the Committee on Instruction may pass on the applications before students are required to file their elective blanks for next year.

Since the Teachers' College catalogue for the coming year may not be ready for distribution at this time, students should apply for the courses under the headings and numbers given in the current announcement.

SENORITA BORI ENTERTAINED AT BROOKS HALL

The Spanish students who had received invitations to Professor Dorado's reception for Wednesday evening in Brooks Hall were anxious to see first-hand la Senorita Bori, Spanish prima donna of the Metropolitan and el Senor Mezquita, the great Spanish painter, who were the guests of honor.

Professor Dorado, who is the head of the Spanish Department at Barnard, entertained several Spanish intellectual and artistic people at dinner Wednesday evening. It was in honor of the first performance of a Spanish opera in Spanish at the Metropolitan. La Senorita Bori sang in "La Vida Breve." Among the other distinguished guests at the dinner, were Mezquita, the Spanish artist, Alexandra Berea, Spanish Consul General José Camprubi, the Marquess de Loriano, Marcial Rosel, a Spanish writer, J. Tablada, Mexican author, Mr. Algara, Argentine writer, Mr. Torres Perona, Editor of the New York Spanish daily, La Prensa, and Mr. Bori, brother of la Senorita, Professor William R. Shepherd and Frank Callcott.

After dinner, Professor Dorado received students and other guests in the Blue Room of Brooks Hall. Conversation was carried on chiefly in Spanish except when la Senorita Bori and others assisted those who were not Spanish by speaking English or French. The famous opera star mingled with the guests in an informal friendly way which surprised and delighted the Barnard students.

JOHNS HOPKINS WILL ABOLISH UNDERGRAD SCHOOL

The undergraduate school of Johns Hopkins will disappear and the last two years of college will be added to the university. The new plan will entail scrapping the A. B. degree. The university, which is devoted to intensive scientific research is hampered now by a large undergraduate school which has little interest in the aims of the university itself.

"It is certainly true," says President Goodnow, "that advanced work cannot be most advantageously done in an atmosphere which is dominated by vocational aims and by the presence of a large body of students who are instructed in a mass and in predominately elementary subjects."

Monday, March 22—"Boheme, Petruschka".

Wednesday, March 24—"The Bartered Bride."

Thursday, March 25—"Vida Breve", "Le Rossignol" (Talley).

The first week was successful. Forty-five to fifty Barnard students attended "Falstaff" last evening.

COURSE FOR SOCIAL WORKERS IS OFFERED

The Training School offers a fifteen months' course of graduate study and field work in preparation for Jewish social work. The regular course begins in July of one year and ends in September of the following year. The course of study aims to meet the needs of college graduates planning to prepare for Jewish social work as a profession. A number of tuition scholarships of $250 and several maintenance fellowships of $1500 are available to especially qualified students.

The School is a national institution, having been initiated and being sponsored by the National Conference of Jewish Social Service. This assures the successful placement of the graduates of the School.

The Board of Trustees comprises some of the foremost leaders in Jewish communal work throughout the country. The officers are: Julius Rosenwald of Chicago, president; Louis E. Kirstein of Boston and Lee K. Frankel of New York, vice-presidents; I. Edwin Goldwasser of New York, treasurer and Solomon Lowenstein of New York, secretary. Maurice J. Karpf is the Director.

Further information and catalogue may be obtained by communicating with the director of the School at 210 West 91st Street, New York City.

likely to give and get satisfaction doing the thing that she likes best. But, however important inclination is, it must be coupled with information. For instance, there must not only be a romantic desire to be a nurse, but also information as to how to be one.

A maximum of information demands the best possible professional training. Men are more likely to give years of this training after college than women, but it is the duty of woman, to herself, her family, and her sex to get as good a foundation for her career, as men. Medicine and architecture demand long preparation, and are difficult in the start; for these reasons only those with a strong desire to be doctors or architects should undertake such careers. Miss Gildersleeve considers teaching the most thrilling profession of any, but she strongly advises only those to teach who have a sufficient love for it. Social work, personnel management, business and finance all afford admirable opportunities, but the individual must guard against being an underling; she should rise as high as possible.

Everyone should try to adapt her courses to her career, by questioning the faculty, Miss Doty especially, and people already in her proposed profession. She should realize also that she comes to college, not merely to prepare for a profession, but to enrich and enlarge her mind and character, and to learn what others have learned before her. Proper training includes a cultured and refined voice, manner, appearance and clothes. A general education helps in every field of life. Each one must be captain of her fate, and decide where her life-work is going to be.

Plans for the Walter Hines Page School of International Relations are rapidly going forward and the school is expected to open next fall at Johns Hopkins University. This school will be the first of its kind to further sound international relations by a scientific approach to international problems.

The school which is to be a memorial to Walter Hines Page our ambassador to England during the World War will have a twofold purpose:

(a) To develop a science of international relations.

(b) To glean facts upon certain problems and to produce a fast growing body of individuals trained in the science and capable of service in the government business of education.

CHEMICALS WILL BE USED TO BREAK ICEBERGS

Dr. Howard T. Barnes, the research specialist and Professor of Physics at McGill University, will head an expedition in June to Greenland to study the effect of heat mines in breaking up the icebergs where they are formed. Thermite is the name of the chemical by which Dr. Barnes will try to burn up the icebergs. It is not dangerous in itself but contact with ice makes it develop intense heat in a few seconds and causes the ice to explode before it can melt. Dr. Barnes has tested it and has pictures showing such wrecking.

life, in case of the necessity. The first provision of the resolution would have been much better if it had remained as it was originally planned. The two hours a week provided for in the amendment are not so important as the ability to swim or play some game with enjoyment. If the latter requirement were made, no specific period of exercise would be necessary, for the practice needed in order to pass rigid tests in swimming and games would naturally occur at least two hours a week.

RESOLUTION PASSED

Elizabeth Reynolds and Anna Worthington spoke for these resolutions as they stood. Most objections were not against a change, as such, but against the particular system introduced by the first part of the resolution. Some persons felt that two hours of work should be required, but that the time and the kind of work should be left to the individual's discretion. Others emphasized the need of some change, with the point that a strict system of gymnastic work continually interrupted a morning's study. The necessity of gaining in some line in accordance with the new curriculum was stressed. The first part of the resolution was voted down 20 to 13. A new form was suggested to the effect that physical education be required, and that the students having passed three years of prescribed work be permitted to take two separate periods of exercise of one hour each per week; such exercise to be taken at any time during the calendar week, and the choice of such exercise to be varied at the discretion of the student. This motion was carried.

The second part of the resolution, as first suggested was passed on Monday, March 15.

REPRESENTATIVE ASSEMBLY

The Representative Assembly on March 15 abolished the office of Executive Chairman and combined the duties of that officer with those of the Vice-President. The chairmanship of Honor Board by the same amendment to the By Laws, was made a separate position, instead of one of the duties of the Vice-President, as at present. This amendment was the result of an opinion that the duties of the Executive Chairman are not heavy enough to require a separate officer, and would be appropriate for the Vice-President, while the Honor Board could best be managed by a student elected for that purpose alone.

It was moved to reconsider the first part of the Physical Education Resolution passed at the last meeting, but the motion was defeated. The second part of the resolution suggesting the requirements of definite achievement, such as the mastery of swimming, a team game for Barnard, etc., for a Barnard degree, was passed.

The method of selecting the students to be exchanged as a result of the Fellowship Drive, was considered at some length. Many suggestions were offered, such as that she be a member of the graduating class, that she be nominated by the Fellowship Committee and elected by the student body, or that she be nominated by the Representative Assembly and selected by the Fellowship Committee. The nationality of the student to be brought to Barnard was also discussed, particular interest being shown in the proposals that either a German or Soviet student be brought.

COMPLETE TEXT OF PHYSICAL ED. RESOLUTION

responsibility of taking the proper amount of exercise and the time when it shall be taken be left to the intelligence of the individual student, and

Be it Resolved that it be suggested to the Physical Education Department that each student before graduation besides passing her motorability tests fulfil certain other requirements such as swimming, learning to play any individual game and one team game, or such a program as the Department shall see fit to suggest, and

Be it further resolved that copies of this resolution be sent by Student Council and the Representative Assembly, to the Faculty Committee on Instruction, the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, and the head of the Physical Education Department. After some discussion the preamble of the resolution was accepted. The first Resolved clause failed to pass but was amended to read as follows and then passed:

Be it Resolved that it is the opinion of the Representative Assembly and Student Council that it would be desirable to discontinue the definite Senior requirement in Physical Education for those students who have satisfactorily completed three years of required work and that such students be required instead to take two separate periods of exercise of one hour each per week, such exercise to be taken at any time during the calendar week, and the choice of such exercise to be varied at the discretion of the students.

The Training School for Jewish Social Work offers a fifteen months' course of graduate study in Jewish Family Case Work, Child Care, Community Centers, Federations and Health Centers.
