

Register for Physical Education Yesterday

A savagely fighting and gracefully attired sophomore class team, armed to the teeth with the spirit of Hermes and divers other spirits, will mass its ranks in the gym in a valorous attempt to resist the onslaughts of a power laden Freshman aggregation in tomorrow's annual Greek Games Festival.

The contest will start in a swirl of sheets and pulchritude as the sophomore champion, elucidating like mad, will fling the challenge of her class in the very teeth of her adversaries, to be answered in kind by her yearling counterpoint. By this time both spectators and contestants alike will have been aroused to a pitch of excitement which is further stimulated by a stirring deraignment on the part of the high priestess, a character who serves the dual function of referee and narrator—if you like Greek, that is.

Sexy Theme

The next feature of the contest will see the frenzied frosh, fighting magnificently to uphold the honor of the corps, take on the opposition in a furious dance contest, with each team exerting itself to the limits of propriety and physical endurance to give a superior interpretation of the Herman theme. Be it understood that this theme involves the spirit of mischief, license, and all sorts of abandon, so spectators, especially your dates, ought to have themselves a really enjoyable afternoon. After all, it's Spring.

Spectacular Climax

From this point, the proceedings rapidly approach the climatic torch race in a rush of songs, poems, and lyrics with the final culminating sensational battle heralded by a preliminary skirmish involving a series of hurdle and hoop races and the spectacular discus throwing event. The aforementioned torch race literally and figuratively will wind up the embroglio in a blaze of glory as the embattled Evzones vie for the crucial deciding points that will mean the laurels for '51 or '52.

Vie to Steer And Develop

Libby Dogue, Mimi Noez and Plenny Sechs were nominated for the position of senior representatives to the Development Plan Steering Committee at a meeting last Tuesday. The election will take place next Monday.

Following the nominations, speeches were made to present the candidates qualifications for Development Steering. Susan Plink described Miss Dogue as best-suited for the position "as she has had long experience in development and is interested in development and I think she would make an interesting and able Development Steer." Miss Dogue has been a member of Student Council and belongs to the Dissension Club.

Bum Steer?

Supporting Miss Noez was Polly Glot, who stated, "Mimi knows just how to accomplish the work of Development Steering thoroughly and efficiently. She would be willing to work on development at any time, and she has remarkable capacities for work. Her ability to get along with people is remarkable, and I believe she would bring remarkable ideas to Development Steering." Miss Noez has been active in the Anthropology Club and the Engineering Society.

Fit to Develop

Patty Kake described Miss Sechs as, "The girl best fit to develop. She has every qualification for leading in such work, and I know she would lead us to new heights of development." Miss Sechs is at present a junior sponsor of activities, and was winner of last year's intercollegiate fencing bout.

DOODLE SPACE

A.A.

At the A.A. meeting held last week, a crowd of five students were present when several noteworthy suggestions were made.

M. L. Hefferpan head of A.A. however, warned reporters and the audience that these suggestions are only tentative and may never become plans.

Why?

The first suggestion, forwarded by the Madame President, was immediately shelved as being too radical. Like treatment was made of the following three suggestions. Which suggested: the name of Athletic Association be changed, Parliamentary Procedure be abandoned for a speedier procedure, and a third suggestion which was not heard due to a vociferous battle over the last cooky. The dispute was settled by an arbitration committee whereby each combatant received half of the delicacy.

A.A.

A.A.

She Said it and Was Glad

Following the new business, the old stuff was read from the minutes. Surveying the Association's contributions this semester, the secretary was embarrassed. But we know things have been done! Bulletin would like to suggest that the minutes of A.A. be set in order. There is nothing so frustrating to an organization as drawing complete blanks in their semester plans.

How to Cook Your Goose

Norine's Daily Dish

(For the busy school girl)

If all the ingredients are at hand, it really takes little time to mix a batch of luke warm term papers for classes. And you will find that the faculty will eat them up like hot cakes, especially when they run into class hungary for knowledge in the morning. They especially like papers which are fresh and new. One left over from another course, or written the week before it is due is never as tasty as one whipped up the night before.

Half Baked Term Paper

First the student should be in the right mood. She must not be too drunk, but above all, she must not be too sober. One shot of the Schenleys will relax tension; two shots will bring inspiration. But a third may bring oblivion and should be resorted to only if the term paper is not well cooked by 3 a.m. Are we ready then girls? Now measure out one sheet of paper, grease the typewriter, and insert sheet. Type title of paper, then write paper to suit. To do this, take three obscure sources and shake in whole paragraphs at will. Next, take reliable source and sift through. If carefully beaten in with synonyms and antonyms whole sentences from this reliable source may be mixed in to give the paper authoritative flavoring. Pour a few appropriate jokes into the dry mixture at intervals, careful not to curdle them with translation into intellectual terms. Next cut in a few quotations from class lectures to give interest and spice to the paper. Stir until clear. Fill up at least ten papers with the mixture. Serve well typed up on attractive typing paper. Schenleys should be poured over whole saturated with Schenley sauce. Although not digestible, the faculty will be able to suck on it for awhile, and the remainder can be used for hash in some future course.

Tomorrow. Eggplant.

Ulterior Motives Appear; Barnard to Invade Capital

At the conclusion of the Games, the tired and bedraggled warriors, their non-combatant classmates, and upper classmen/women and their guests are all invited to the Brooks Hall Living Room to participate in an orgiastic baachanal in honor of the speedy god. Tea will be served—Courtesy of Spec Sports.

Four new courses, to be offered by visiting professors, have been listed for the coming year. In announcing these courses, the Curriculum Committee has stressed that "they will fill a serious gap in Barnard students' course of study." The courses are open to Barnard students only.

Dr. Shurley I. Kann, whose picture appears above, will teach Ulterior Motives in the Physical Education Department. Dr. Kann received her doctorate at Andalusian Normal and is the author of "The Best at Bay."

Mr. Draw Pearsin will present a course in Advanced Animadversion under the auspices of the Philosophy Department. This course will include field trips to Washington.

Dr. Halbert Kinbey, D.T., will offer a course in Modern American Life, which will include extensive laboratory work and a term report.

Dr. Prudence Blowynd, a Barnard graduate of 1901, will present a comprehensive survey in her course Modern Marriage, to be given in conjunction with the present course in Abnormal Psychology.

In running after a Columbia man, which is proper etiquette according to women who have run, do not run too fast. You might catch him!

Larry Olivier, Ham Sandwich Charming

I saw the most charming sight today. It was charming. As you know, your reporter went over to England for a few minutes to catch Larry Olivier, her old, old friend. "Schmuella," Larry said to me in his charming way, "Schmuella, so glad to see you. It is always charming to see you." Now the charming sight, was Mr. Olivier eating a ham sandwich. I never, and neither did you—imagine that the winner of the Academy Award could eat a ham sandwich. "Schmuella," he continued, "I like the fact that the Award came from America, because America has the greatest number of hams in it. The Award was a charming surprise." I promised him to give you all his best regards and then hopped a plane to get to Walt's studio on time. As you know Disney is planning to produce a tragedy. "Schmuella" he said admiring my new suit (Bonwit you know,) "Schmuella," if Annie can do it so can I. "(Anatole Litvak, of course.)

Errol Flynn is getting another divorce. I think that is charming. It is only fair that a man with his talents and looks get around more than Tommy Manville. Errol claimed they were not running a race. But we know better, don't we.

* * *

Do make sure that you see "Hamlet." You have never laughed more than you will laugh through this. Its a gorgeous and charming film. Tell them I sent you!

* * *

David O. Selznick has announced that he has a new find. Her name is Ethel Barrymore. They say she is charming. He will plan all the new "Lassie" pictures around her. If he listens to me, he will change her name immediately. It's the kind of name that will never look good on a marquee. Are you listening Davie?

* * *

Marilane Zuinan has won the Academy Award for best Actress. As you remember, I predicted Tomada Ploon should have won. You and I know that, don't we?

* * *

Well, its been charming. See you tomorrow. Go to see "Tarzan in New Orleans." It's the best picture of the year.—Tell them I sent you!

Expose Faculty Folly; Charge Bursar Stole

With the most extravagant publicity ever given a New York production ($5,000,000 worth) the Faculty Follies came to town this past weekend with a bang, that is, a fanfare. First nighters screeched at the antics of John (the mouth) Smith, Anne Heene (the legs) Serra, Corinne (the kid) Bize. Never before was New York blest with such revivals.

The stupendous writing staff consisted of Noel Coward and many others.

Simple Tale

The story was a simple one. To the three unities was often added a fourth, unity of actors and audience. (E. G. Magician? Act and Beer Cans-on-the-Floor-of-Brinckerhoff act) What could be more simple, interesting, nice than a play combining an evening with London aristocracy Hands Across the Sea) and one with the "Goons" of the Bursar's and Dean's Office, who incidentally stole the show for most screeches.

Superb Cast

The staff, that is the cast, was superb. Four stars to Gertrude Rich for a splendid job! Bouquets to Marion Streng, superb as usual! Henry Boorse deserves a medal for his splendid performance! Applause for Joseph (the Swan) Brennan (And who would have known)! A dollar for Lorna McGuire for tactfully saying "Have I checked you yet?!" Four splendid stars for the whole performance!!!! The proceeds for the first two nights, went for the Barnard College Development Plan.

Greek Reprisal

The appearance of Greek Evzones on the scene of Greek Games tomorrow in the gymnasium marks ill omen in our already weakening ties with Barnard's ancient ally. Greek official sources have long regarded women as pitfalls. Foreign Minister Constant Tsaladoil pointed out as Hellas men fell for Helen estranging relations with Troy, the same reaction in the Barnard gymnasium might prompt his government to withdraw their already reluctant acceptance of Marshall Plan Aid.

Tsaladoil's fears are well grounded. Only the other day the contingent of Evzones who do not speak English very well heard of the KKK and were much alarmed that such an organization had entrenched itself in our great democracy. The interpreters hastened to mend the delicate rift by explaining that the Evzones had misaken KKK for KKE. When they learned of the nature of the KKK not only were they relieved but showered praises upon Americans for their patriotic fervor.

Our main concern is of course with tomorrow's events. When participants in the entrance pageant shout Nike, the evzones may mistake it for risqué. Thinking it to be an immodest reflection on the Greek tradition, Tsaladoil would be justified in his threatened reprisal.

The Chase

Who chases whom?
That is the question!

When pigeons coo, and squirrels bicker
And even profs begin to snicker
At couples strolling in the park—
We remember that youthful lark:

Who chases whom?

When males begin to notice females,
And bachelors start to take a chance,
When students cease to study details,
And think about romance—

Who chases whom?

Some think the female's always fishing,
But we know that He is wishing,
When spring is come and the moon is beckoning)
That She will smile at Him. No questioning—

Who is chasing Whom!!

Jane Bore Attains Lifelong Goal of L.W.O.C. Faithfully Keeps Boy's Tatoo on Left Elbow

By Kidney Skolsky

Jane Bore, my tintype for today, is known as the L.W.O.C. of Barnard College. (That's Little Woman on Campus).

She always wanted to be an L.W.O.C., and is thrilled at having realized her lifelong ambition. "There is nothing like reaching one's lifelong goal," she says.

She rides to school in her old 1947 Cadillac driven by her old 1897 chauffeur. When she goes out she uses the 1949 Cadillac and the 1926 chauffeur her date. "Alas," she admits, "no one else will go out with me But that doesn't matter; I'm an L.W.O.C. and that's all I care about."

She claims that once she had a boy friend named Zalton; he looked just like a Charles Adams cartoon. "I simply love Charles Adams' cartoons; don't you?" she crooned in her cracking soprano tones. She admits that he ran away from her because he didn't like the way she buttered her bread—That's what she says!

She has many friends; their pet name for her is "Repulsive."

She's a Republican; her father was a Republican; her grandfather was a Republican; that's why she's a Republican.

She goes home from school right after classes. She doesn't like the library; she doesn't like her teachers; she doesn't like school government (unless it's Republican); she doesn't like anything — except Charles Adams cartoons.

She thinks she's the average American girl — from the Adams point of view.

She goes to college just because she wants to be an L.W.O.C. "One can't be an L.W.O.C. unless one goes to college. "But I sacrifice the hardship of getting an education, just to attain my lifelong ambition."

"People are bores," she says.

"I'm a Bore, too — but a real one."

She hates lots of things, but she particularly hates egg-nogs. "I don't know why I hate egg-nogs, but I just hate them."

If she ever has nothing to do, and she usually has, as she never does anything, she loves to listen to the 4 a.m. disc jockeys. "They have the most scintillating personalities," she says. "They simply transport me out of the world of reality into the world of charm and mysticism."

She has a pet crocodile whose initials are C.A. When she's lonesome she takes it to bed with her.

She sleeps at night in long silk pajamas covered with prints of Zalton and her crocodile, C.A. She keeps all the windows locked and the doors shut; she's afraid Zalton might return when she isn't looking her best.

She has a tattoo of Zalton on her left elbow.—C. A.

Q. Dear Miss Mix-in,
Last week I went out on a blind date. When we returned home my date said that he would phone. Miss, Mix-in, my problem is this. He hasn't telephoned yet and it is seven months since I saw him. Will he call? Should I continue my twenty-four hour vigil by the telephone?

Anxiously,
Hopeful

A. Dear Hopeful,
Your problem is indeed a difficult one. After weighing all evidence I have come to the conclusion that there are only two possibilities left. Either your blind date will call you or else he won't.

Q. Dear Miss Mix-in,
I am desperate. I haven't had a date for two whole weeks. I am going to be an old maid. What shall I do?

Impatiently,
Forlorn

A. Dear Forlorn,
Take heart, my dear. I quite agree with you that you are doomed to a solitary existence, but it can be a useful one. My advice to you is that you learn to knit and then apply this art to making baby clothes for your friends' children.

Cocktail Dance Men Men Men?

Barnard's latest Cocktail Dance was held in the Wedgewood Room of the Waldorf Astoria March 32. About one hundred and fifty girls attended.

Present were two hundred and fifty graduates students from Harvard, Yale and Cornell. There were also some professional men and quite a few rising businessmen. One of the girls I may B. Hardup '54 commented "Wow." Her friend Hope Always '55 remarked "Yummee."

Handsome Males

Unbiased observers agreed that the dance was unusual since most of the men were over six feet tall, had handsome, distinguished features, and as one girl said "You could almost see the Calvert glass in their hands." The girls commented favorably on the absence of Columbia men who they feel generally lower the tone of the little parties.

Later one glowing student reported "They were so eager." She referred to the way the men had cheered as the girls walked in, carried them on their shoulders to the dance floor and danced all afternoon carrying on a brilliant conversation throughout.

Committee Praised

After the dance the boys took the girls home in their new 1949 cars. All present agreed that the Barnard Social Work Committee had indeed surpassed itself, and the girls hope for dances in the future that are similar.

What to Have Expected Yesterday

There was a new moon last night (did you see it, 'twas so pretty) accompanied by Mars and Venus close at hand. This of course means war—between the two sexes. Emotion may get out of hand—take advantage of it. Spring is here. At this time I advise you to take proposals (of marriage, that is) seriously as there is a shortage of men on campus, and this is the only time that young men fancy. There is a chance to study for finals here, but you overlook this in daydreaming, which is perfectly all right with me, if you prefer daydreaming to studying. Try to be as economical as possible here, as two can't live as cheaply as one, no matter what they say.

If it's your birthday — Happy Birthday.
