

11 New Faculty Members Begin Teaching At Barnard

Eleven new members of the faculty, including three in the Italian Department, assumed teaching duties at Barnard yesterday. Five members of the faculty returned from fall leaves of absence and four members are on leave for the spring semester.

The three new members of the Italian Department are Dr. Gian-Carlo Bertelli, Mr. J. Cherubini, and Dr. Bona Kostka.

Assistants In Sciences

Mr. Charles E. Miller is a new graduate assistant in chemistry; Miss Hsi Fong Waung is an assistant in the physics department; and Mr. Jerry M. Bank is a teaching assistant in the department of mathematics.

Lecturing in the philosophy, psychology and religion departments, respectively, are Miss Amelia Rorty, Mr. Lincoln F. Hanson, and Mr. Robert F. Olson. Miss Barbara Rearden is an assistant in the government department.

Elliot Heads Department

Dr. Joanne Elliot, Associate Professor of Mathematics, has been named chairman of the mathematics department, to replace Professor Edgar Lorch, who is teaching mathematics at Stanford University this semester.

Data On Job Recruitment Available Now

The Placement Office schedule of companies which will be recruiting on campus this spring is ready for distribution to seniors. Seniors are urged to pick up their copies of this schedule at Student Mail at once, and to make immediate arrangements with the Placement Office for interviews.

The first company on the recruiting list this year is IBM and its subsidiary, Service Bureau Corporation. Their representatives will be on campus on February 14 to interview applicants for positions as programmer trainees and systems engineering trainees. The recruiting date for the Service Bureau Corporation, scheduled for Monday, February 25, has been combined with that of IBM on the 14th. SBC is interested only in math, physics, and chemistry majors for scientific programmer trainee positions.

USIA To Hire

The United States Information Agency will again employ a group of radio interns in 1963 for service in the Voice of America. The young men and women selected for this program will receive career appointments and will be trained in writing, and/or directing.

Applicants must have current eligibility in the Civil Service Commission's Federal Service Entrance Examination before submitting an application to the Agency. The deadline for applying for the FSEE is February 28, while the deadline for USIA application is April 15.

In addition to Professor Lorch, Associate Professors Judith Jarvis, Maristella Lorch, Gladys Meyer, and Marion Streng, of the philosophy, Italian, sociology, and physical education departments, respectively, will be on leave for the spring semester. Mrs. Barbara Schmitter, Associate Dean of Studies, will also be absent on leave this semester.

Returning From Leave

Returning from leaves of absence this semester are Miss Helen M. Carlson and Miss Elizabeth Czoniczer of the French department and Professor of Spanish Eugenio Florit. Miss Rene C. Fox of the sociology department and Professor of Zoology John A. Moore are also returning from leaves.

Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr will also be joining the Barnard Faculty this spring as Virginia C. Gildersleeve Visiting Professor.

Niebuhr Joins BC Faculty As Gildersleeve Professor

Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, Vice President and Charles A. Briggs Professor Emeritus of Union Theological Seminary, has been named fourth Virginia C. Gildersleeve Visiting Professor at Barnard.

Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr

Teaching solely at Barnard in the spring semester, he will give a lecture course on the "encounter between democracy and communism" and a seminar, with his wife, Associate Professor of Religion Ursula Niebuhr, on problems in contemporary ethics.

Since 1960, Dr. Niebuhr has been a fellow of Columbia University's Institute of War and Peace Studies and visiting professor at Harvard and Princeton. A graduate of Elmhurst College, Elmhurst, Illinois, Eden Theological Seminary, St. Louis, Missouri, and the Yale Divinity School, Dr. Niebuhr began his career with his ordination in the Evangelical Synod of North America in 1915.

He became pastor of Bethel Evangelical Church in Detroit remaining until 1928, when he joined the faculty of Union Theological Seminary. In 1930, Dr. Niebuhr was named William E. Dodge Professor of Applied Christianity at Union and held that chair until 1955.

The recipient of eighteen honorary degrees from institutions in this country and in Great Britain, Dr. Niebuhr is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters and the National Institute of Arts and Letters. The Virginia C. Gildersleeve Visiting Professorship was established in 1957 by the Associate Alumnae of Barnard to honor Barnard's Dean Emeritus on her eightieth birthday.

Kennedy Seeks Increase In Higher Education Aid

(CPS) President Kennedy presented to Congress this week an unprecedented omnibus education bill with far-reaching proposals for higher education in the nation.

Political observers concluded that this year's education proposal from the White House is an attempt to practice the "art of the possible" in light of the spectacular demise of the President's education proposals in the last Congress.

This year's proposal concentrates on higher education, thus dodging to some extent the touchy issue of private vs. public school aid in elementary and secondary schools. If the President's new education bill becomes law, three important things would immediately result:

- More students would be able to attend college, and more would be able to take graduate work, since the government would partially finance their education.

- More college classrooms would be available. Both public and private universities and colleges would be able to apply for federal loans covering up to 75 per cent of the cost of construction of classrooms. Kennedy proposes that a billion dollars in federal funds be loaned for this purpose during the next three years.

- The federal government

Park To Speak

President Rosemary Park will deliver her first "State of the College" address to the entire College today at 1 p.m. in the gymnasium. Miss Park will discuss the future of independent liberal arts colleges for women.

Miss Park, who assumed the duties of second president of Barnard on November 15, will be officially inaugurated in the spring. Attendance at the assembly is required.

would give the states $1.5 billion during the next four years to raise the salaries of teachers in public schools.

The program would require about $1.2 billion in new financial obligations in the coming fiscal year, with about $143.6 million in actual expenditure. Administration spokesmen described this as the "most comprehensive aid to education program any president has ever submitted to Congress."

'62 Job Survey Illustrates Divergence Of Occupations

by Barbara Sheklin

A jazz singer in a night club in Madrid and an ensign in the U.S. Navy have one thing in common: They both hold Barnard diplomas. This was revealed in a Placement Office survey of the occupations of the members of the Class of 1962.

More everyday positions are held by the majority of the members of the class. Fifteen percent of the alumnae reporting are teaching full-time. Five percent are serving as graduate assistants in colleges.

One fourth of the Class of '62 is now married. The Placement Office did not, however, attempt to break this down in terms of Columbia and non-Columbia men. Thirty-five girls married after graduation; fifty were married before they received their diplomas.

Four Barnard alumnae are studying abroad on Fulbright scholarships. A government major is a research secretary for the Algerian Mission to the United Nations.

The Peace Corps in Ethiopia has the services of a Barnard grad who works as a secondary school teacher, while another graduate teaches the mentally retarded in a public school in New York.

Two English majors are now working as editorial assistants for Esquire magazine. Another is a research assistant at the Massachusetts General Hospital Research Institute of Medicine and Chemistry.

X-ray and crystallography technology and microbiology are the specialization of two physics majors, while a chemistry major is now a teaching fellow in physical chemistry at Boston University.

A major in art history paid off for one graduate who is now an art reviewer for the weekly newspaper, "Manhattan East."

The relationship between the major sequence and future job opportunities is not always so close, however: that jazz singer in Madrid majored in Art History in Barnard.

Texaco Grant

Texaco, Inc., has awarded a $1500 unrestricted grant for 1963 to Barnard under its aid-to-education program. According to a Texaco administrator, "It is the company's hope to repeat each grant for at least three to five years so that the total amount awarded may be of particular usefulness to the college or university selected for a grant."

Transfer Initiates Orientation

by Sue R. Silverman

Sixteen February transfers started classes yesterday. The girls came from fifteen different colleges in nine states. Two foreign students, and two candidates for degrees in other colleges are among the transfers; four of the girls live in the Barnard dorms.

For the first time an informal orientation program was prepared for the mid-year transfers. Eileen Parsons, '64, who initiated the program, transferred last February from Miami University in Ohio. Because she came to Barnard with "no contact in the dorms" and "no orientation sponsors to answer questions," she wanted to plan an informal program that would help the incoming students.

Miss Parsons wrote to each of the incoming students in January and invited them to meet for a box lunch on February in Reid living room between placement exams. The luncheon, Miss Parsons stated, was planned to enable the girls to ask any questions they might have about the College. On hand to answer questions and to welcome the students were Miss Harriet Van Sickle, Director of Residence Halls; Frankie Stein '63, President of the Undergraduate Association; Rhoda Greenberg '63, President of the Dorms; Connie Foshay '63, Chairman of the Board of Proctors; and Marilyn Ross, President of the Class of 1965.

Miss Parsons also invited several students who had served as transfer sponsors in the fall, and Barnard students who had transferred from some of the colleges from which the new students had come.

At the luncheon orientation kits were distributed, which included maps of the University and the libraries.

The innovation of a February program, Miss Parsons thinks, evoked a favorable response from the transfers themselves. The important thing is to "make the program a regular feature of Barnard orientation," Miss Parsons stressed.

Parents To Visit Classes, Advisors

President Rosemary Park has invited the parents of freshmen and new transfer students to Parents Day, Tuesday, February 12. During the day, parents are invited to attend classes with their daughters and to attend the "At home" for out of town parents to be held in 117 Milbank by Miss Marianna Byram and Mrs. Julia Ebel. Advisors to the Class of '66.

An assembly for parents in the gymnasium at 3 p.m. will include addresses by Miss Park, Dean of the Faculty Henry A. Boorse, and Frankie Stein '63, Undergraduate Association President. A Drama Workshop presentation and refreshments will follow the assembly program.

Graduate Aid

Approximately 35% of each Barnard graduating class goes on to do full-time graduate work. Another 10% goes on to graduate study on a part-time basis.

We believe that the high percentage of students who go on to do graduate work warrants the establishment of a graduate school advisor and a separate Office for Graduate Study.

At present, the Dean's Office has the prime responsibility for distributing information to students interested in attending graduate school. The Placement Office has material on professional and semi-professional fields, i.e. graduate schools which lead to specific careers. The Dean's Office handles material on work, study and travel abroad, graduate teaching programs and financial aid for graduate work.

At neither office is there one person in charge of graduate study programs. Students are invited to browse in the Placement Office Library or through the Dean's Office material. They may make appointments to see the Dean of Studies in order to talk over general plans for the future. For more specific plans of study, students are asked to consult their major department.

Both the Dean's Office and the Placement Office are too busy to give the attention to graduate school which 45% of the student body demands. The material in both offices is under-used.

Centralization is called for. What is needed is one person to handle all material on graduate study. We suggest that a separate Office for Graduate Study be established. The Office should contain graduate school catalogues, financial aid information and all other material on opportunities in graduate school.

We believe that if there were one office and one advisor, students would know where to get material on the particular plan of study they want to follow. One office would promote the full utilization of graduate school material.

If an Office for Graduate Study is established we suggest that, in addition to written information on graduate schools, it maintain a list of former Barnard students who attended graduate school with their addresses so that students interested in a particular school can write to someone who has been there. We also suggest that a list of Barnard faculty members and the graduate schools they attended be kept at the Office.

Such an innovation will cost money, for it will mean that a full-time person will have to be hired. But a full-time person devoted to the plans of students interested in graduate study is exactly what is needed.

The greater ease and thoroughness such an Office will bring about for 45% of the Barnard student body definitely warrants the establishment of an Office for Graduate Study with a full-time advisor.

Barnard Music Dept. Originality Fetes New President Keynotes Concert

by Ann Selgin

The premier concert of Columbia Composers on February 11 will stress original pieces by students of composition at Columbia University. The program is primarily made up of chamber music consisting of music for the flute, violin and piano. There will be one piece for tape recorder, entitled "Piece with Four Speakers" by Walter Carlos — a tribute to contemporary electronic music.

Among the composers and performers are six Barnard students. Carol Lee Symonds '65 has composed "Movement for String Quartet" which will be played by Caroline Mather '66, violin, Lucille Hymowitz '63, violin, Anne Greene of Juilliard, Viola, and Romola Katz '66, cello.

Rachel Blau '63, has written the text of the "Etude for Soprano and Violin" by David Lidov, which will be performed by Constance Cooper '64, soprano, and Lucille Hymowitz '63, violin.

David Lidov will direct the program which will be given in the James Room, Barnard Hall at 8:30 p.m.

Five Members of the Barnard music faculty will present a concert in honor of President Rosemary Park on Tuesday, February 12 at 8:30 p.m. in McMillin Theatre. The program features Otto Luening on flute, Ruben Varga on violin, Hubert Doris and Genevieve Chinn, on piano, and Shirlee Emmons, soprano.

Mr. Luening is a professor in the Barnard Music Department of which Mr. Doris is chairman. Miss Chinn, an instructor at Barnard, has previously performed piano duets with Mr. Doris. Miss Emmons, a recent addition to the Barnard teaching staff, has won acclaim as a promising young soprano. Mr. Varga has distinguished himself on the violin in various performances.

The program includes the "Sonata in F major for flute" by Handel, "Short Sonata for flute and piano" by Luening, Sonata No. 3 in D minor for violin and flute" by Brahms, "Suite for Two Pianos No. 2" by Rachmaninoff, and a group of German and modern songs by Mozart, Schubert, Edmunds, Bernstein, Nordoff, Duke, and de Falla.

The concert is open to the public free of charge. Attending the concert in honor of Miss Park will be the Southern delegates to Barnard's Student Exchange. The general public is also urged to attend.

Student Exchange Report

Monday Tea Welcomes Exchange Delegates Participate 9 Southern Delegates In Panels At Southern Schools

Nine Southern guests will arrive on the Barnard campus Saturday night. Barnard's Southern guests are Elmira Bagley '63 (sociology), Linnie Dunn '64 (sociology), and Mrs. Katie D. Watkins '63 (history), from Virginia Union University; Jestine Pinder '64 (music), Gwendolyn Smith '65 (biology), and Carolyn May '64 (physical education), from Morgan State College; and Karen Fitch '63 (art history), Gay Knox '63 (religion), and Jay Wilson '63 (Spanish), from Randolph-Macon Women's College.

A welcoming tea at 4 p.m. on Monday in the James Room to which all students are invited, will kick-off the Exchange events in the North.

On Sunday, February 10, the delegates will meet for a luncheon with Miss Park. That night, Barnard students will escort them to dinner in Greenwich Village and a show at The Bitter End.

Monday morning, the delegates will have interviews with Mr. Herman Badillo, New York City Housing Commissioner, and Mr. Edward Rutledge, State Commission for Human Rights on the subject of housing; with Dr. Trude T. Weil, Board of Education, and Mr. Will Maslow and Mr. Joseph B. Robison, American Jewish Congress, on the subject of school integration; and with Mr. Madison Jones, Assistant Director of the Institute of Community Research and Miss Miriam Strong, City Planning Commission, on the topic of urban renewal.

Following the welcoming tea, the students will spend the evening at the home of Sociology Professor Gladys Meyer with Barnard faculty members and delegates, sponsors, and Exchange Committee members.

Tuesday morning, a panel on housing will feature Miss Doris Beausoleil, Senior Housing Field Representative of the State Commission for Human Rights, Mrs. Jane Benedict, Chairman of the Metropolitan Council on Housing, and Mr. Reginald Johnson, Chairman of the Housing Division of the Urban League of Greater New York. Parents are invited to the panel, to be held in 304 Barnard.

Barnard's Student Exchange delegates arrived at Virginia Union University, Morgan State College and Randolph-Macon Woman's College last Sunday in the first phase of the two-week program.

Rochelle Haimes '63, Denise Jackson '66, and Arlene Katz '65, as guests of Virginia Union University in Richmond, Virginia will attend a series of panels analyzing various problems and situations in the south.

Thomas H. Henderson, President, Virginia Union University, G. Gordon Moss, Dean, Longwood College and H. I. Willett, Superintendent, Richmond Public Schools will form the panel on the topic of Desegregation in Education. The Housing, Urban Renewal and Redevelopment Panel will feature Reuben Clay, Intergroup Relations Advisor, Federal Housing Administration, Frederic A. Fay, Executive Director, Richmond Redevelopment and Housing Authority, Newman Hamblet, Member, City Planning Commission and Henry J. McGuinn, Member, Richmond Housing Authority.

Other panels at Virginia Union are "Social Welfare and Economic Opportunities of the Negro," "Political Activity among Negroes in Virginia," "Civil Rights and Massive Resistance, Its Rationale, Record and Results."

Juniors, Diane Carravetta, Ronnie Olman and Ann Pitt, delegates to Randolph-Macon will be participating in a program which includes visits with Lynchburg city officials, private homes in the community, charitable institutions connected with the Randolph-Macon Y.W.C.A. service projects and panels on the three topics being studied — housing, school integration and urban renewal.

Randolph-Macon is currently debating retention of membership in the National Student Association and there are several panels scheduled during the week on this topic. Barnard's delegates will also attend a dinner with President and Mrs. Quillian and classes in their major and related fields.

Delegates to Morgan State College, in Baltimore, Maryland Juanita Clark '65, Ellen Schneider '64, and Zolita Vella '65, will be visiting the Urban League, city schools and touring Baltimore. A conference has been arranged for them with Dr. George B. Brain, Superintendent of the Baltimore City Schools. Panels on the three topics being studied have been planned. Barnard's delegates will return to New York with the Southern delegates on Saturday.
