

Prof. Mair To Teach Social Change Class

Dr. Lucille P. Mair, Gildersleeve visiting professor for the Spring term of 1965 will teach two courses: Primitive Systems of Government and Social Change in Africa.

The Primitives Systems course, Anthropology 12, 3 points, Tu and Th 9:10-10:25, will cover the methods by which law and order are maintained and public decisions made in stateless sosieties, societies of simple technology, and in primitive states; also included are the political consequences of subjection to colonial rules and of incorporation into later political institutions of western type.

The second course, 3 points, Th 4:10-6, covers the changes in social relationships taking place in contemporary Africa; changes in family and kinship, economic, political and religious relationships.

Dr. Mair received her B.A. and M.A. at the University of Cambridge in the Classics and her Ph.D. from the London School of Economies in Social Anthropology. She taught at the London School of Economics and worked for the British government during the war. She has done fieldwork in Uganda and Nyasaland, by Lynne Braverman Malcolm X, leader of the National Black Muslin Movement, will speak at Barnard, Tuesday evening, February 9, as part of the 1965 Student Exchange Week. The topic of his talk has not yet been announced.

Malcolm X Speech Highlights '65 Student Exchange Plans

Wednesday, February 10, the Southern Delegates and their sponsors will see "Golden Boy," the show chosen for this year's sors. annual theatre party. Arrangements have been made for the students to meet Mr. Sammy Davis Jr. after the show to discuss the play.

According to Jane Relin '66, Chairman of the Exchange, other events planned for Students Exchange week are a meeting with the Executive Secretary of the Visiting Gildersleeve Professor New York City Parents and be sent to each from Barnard

> In addition to its annual program of exchange of students with southern colleges, Student Exchange has been expanded this year to include a year-round program of tours, lectures, and discussions.

> For example, as part of the program to inform students of civil rights problems, a series of tours of the tenements of the city was conducted. Some of the tours were led by rent strikers and some by people who have worked with the tenement landlords. Discussion groups were held after the tours.

Another project sponsored for the first time this year by the Student Exchange is the "Saturday Afternoon Zoo Project." The purposes of this program, which is headed by Ellen Wolkin '66, are to establish informal personal contact with underprivileged children and to carry out a service project that "does not require too much time on the part of the Barnard participants."

Exchange

By the time Bulletin resumes publication, the first phase of this year's Student Exchange program will be completed. The Barnard delegates will have returned from the South, bringing the Southern students with them.

This year's Student Exchange program has been built around what last year's delegates have said they wanted most to discuss, school boycotts, rent strikes; i.e., the particular problems of the Negro in New York City.

Some of us take them standing up and some of us take them lying down.

CU Orchestra Plans Sousa Opera Revival

John Philip Sousa, will be performed here for the first time in half century Saturday night at McMillin Theatre.

The Columbia University Orchestra, conducted by Howard Shanet, will revive the work in concert form at 8:30 p.m. The Manhattan School of Music will provide soloists and chorus.

One of the most successful of ten comic opera composed by Sousa, "El Capitan" was first presented by DeWolf Hopper in 1896. For ten years following its premiere, the operetta paralleled in popularity the Gilbert and Sullivan productions of the era.

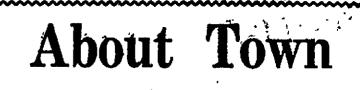

When Mr. Shanet conceived the idea of reviving "El Capitan," he conshited Louis Aborn, of Columbia University who is also the president of the Tams-Witmark Company, which had handled the operas of Soura, Victor Herbert, de Koven, and others.

"El Capitan," a comic opera by storage basement; no conductor's score was found. When Mrs. Helen Sousa ... Abert, ... the ... composer's daughter, discovered the original manuscript, in Sousa's own handwriting, at the family home on Long Island, it became possible for Mr. Shanet to fill in the gaps.

Admission to the revival performance is free. Invitation cards may be obtained from the Music Department or by phoning UN 5-9000, Extension 2081.

You, Too, Can Ве nner

"Glamour," that Conde-Nash publication for college Suzy Parkers, has begun this year's search for the ten best-dressed college girls in the country. And Barnard is one of its hunting grounds.

With the prospect of a heavy study schedule ahead, one may feel the need for diversion something not at all difficult to find in this city. Theatre, cinema, art exhibits and concerts can all provide a temporary outlet for the exam-conscious.

In addition to the numerous hits on Broadway this season (including Eli Wallach in "Luv," Robert Preston in "Ben Franklin in Paris" and Zero Mostel in "Fiddler on the Roof") two dramas and a musical comedy opened over the holiday season.

The first is Edward Albee's "Tiny Alice," a religious allegory with Sir John Geilgud. Thé second is Eugene O'Neill's one-act play, "Hughie," written on the theme that truth kills. Jason Robards, Jr., stars. And the musical, which is strictly for fun, is "I Had a Ball," with Buddy Hackett as a Coney Island sharper.

Off Broadway are productions of "Othello," and "Man and Superman." Opening downtown this week is a mystery melodrama entitled "The Cat and the Canary."

In the way of art there is a display of oldmaster drawings, highlighted by a rare study by Leonardo da Vinci, at the Pierpont Morgan Library at 29 East 36th. This display also includes 35 Rembrandt etchings and will close Jan. 16th. Although it does not challenge the mind, the French film, "The Umbrellas of Cherbourg," in which every word is sung, is a study in style and grace. Two lovers contemplate futility.

Also at the movies is "Seance on a Wet Afternoon," an English kidnapping thriller which has been lauded by the New York critics.

A third film is "Zorba The Greek" with Anthony Quinn. Adapted from a Nikos Kazantzaki novel, it centers around living life to its fullest.

The New York City Ballet opened its 38th season this week. Also, Jose Greco and his Spanish gypsy dancers will be at the Brooklyn Academy of Music January 16 and 17. The Ballet Folklorieo of Mexico will be at the New York City Center January 19-31.

In the concert field, Marian Anderson will present a program at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, January 9th. Playing at Carnegie Hall will be the Pittsburgh Symphony, Jan. 20th; the Boston Symphony, Jan. 23; and the Philadelphia Orchestra, Jan. 27th.

These events, however, are not planned only with the delegates in mind. The Exchange is for all Barnard students; everyone's student activities fee goes into its support. And most students can benefit from it.

Many people decide to come to Barnard because it is in New York City. The concerts, theatres, museums are not all of what is relevant to a student's education.

Student exchange's "learning experience" can be painful, but it is vital.

SNCC

Student Exchange, then, is a prelude to further social involvement, the kind that Friends of SNCC are trying to muster.

Social change must come from many levels. When it has been legislated, that legislation must be enforced and accepted by those on whom it is enforced. Only a certain amount can be done by the governmental authorities, and inevitably, it is incumbent on the private citizen to fill in the gaps.

The private citizen, in the "civil rights struggle" has taken it upon himself to spur on voter registration and to alleviate dire educational needs.

We are all private citizens. And supposedly we are all interested in seeing a satisfactory close to the struggle down South. We can all "do something" to help. Support the Selma, Alabama, project of Friends of SNCC. Attend their meetings. It doesn't take much time, not much effort.

Selma, Alabama needs educational supplies and your help in obtaining them.

With this issue, Bulletin suspends publication for the semester. The next issue will appear Monday, February 8, 1965.

The company was able to locate only a battered and incomplete set of orchestra parts in its

Exam Teas Offer Diversion For All

If amusement or diversion is necessary, and must also be found close to home, exam teas may be the easy answer. During the entire two-week examination period, teas will be held at 4 p.m. daily in the James Room.

. "The purpose of the exam teas," said Miss Madeline Jenkins, director of the College Activities Office, "is to give the girls - both dorm and commuter - a chance to relax during finals."

Tea and fruit will be served by members of The College Activities Office the Student Service Organization until 5 p.m.

Miss Jenkins mentioned that this function will at Barnard has yet indicated a supplant the All College Tea usually held on Wednesdays at the same time. She also noted that faculty members and Columbia students are welcome.

Cambridge Circus Strikes Home in Song & Stretch

by Alice S. Rubinstein

This reviewer is struck with the horrible thought that she almost didn't get to see "Cambridge Circus" at Square East. The thought is even more disquieting because of the many people who are still unaware of the delight in store for them.

"Cambridge Circus" is an English revue, consisting of songs and sketches by a cast who are almost all recent graduates of Cambridge University. The unusual feature of the "Circus" which makes them THE group to see is the addition of musical numbers which are exceptionally well handled.

The cast consists of Tim Brooke-Taylor, a particularly versatile artist with a penchant for rickety movements; John Cleese, an overwhelmingly proficient interpreter of types; David Hatch, a pleasant-looking chap with ingenuous expressions; and Jo Kendall, a lovely feature and emphasis to an all-male cast.

Rlso in the "Circus" staff are Jonathan Lynn, a sinister, but charming clown, and Bill Oddie, an almost unbelievable artist of many talents.

The revue begins with a closing song which anything but ends the show. It is just an example of the zany antics of the cast and the way they think.

Undoubtedly the best sketch of the "Circus" is the presentation of the origin of dupes. In ritualisitc and unforgettable form, three members of the cast take turns enacting the old pie-in-the-face routine.

"Cambridge Circus" is a lively show, and one that pleases most senses of humor. Some of the skits are not universally or even nationally amusing, but a large percent of the show IS unquestionably successful in its PUR-POSE. And the purpose is unashamedly to make people laugh.

Professor Peardon To Retire, Reviews 41 Years At Barnard around a college is that colleges Professor of Government Thomas P. Peardon, who will retire this spring after 41 years at Barnard.

Although he sees colleges as second only to eccelesiatical institutions in staying power, Professor Pearon does think that a number of things are different now than when he arrived here. "Probably the average of the students has gone up," he comments, adding that he doesn't "think we have more distinguished and outstanding ones."

/ Next semester, on sabbatical, Professor Peardon, who came as a Prof. Peardon and his wife will go to Greece "just because we've never been" and to England, where he will catch up with recent developments in English politics. Next year he will teach his graduate course in "British Political Institutions" and may teach Government 7-8 ("Modern Political Movements") at Barnard, although he will have officially retired.

Professor Peardon sees one of the major changes at Barnard as the effort to get students to work on their own through seminars and senior theses. He thinks there are more "able young people" on the faculty, although maybe not as many "stars," that is, "old, distinguished people."

He believes that today's students are more anxious for education than those of forty years ago. "Perhaps they're a little too worried about grades and a little too serious," he comments. Reading lists contain too much. He suggests that they should be shortened and additional reading suggested, with instructors realizing that some people will waste time because it's human nature.

"The great thing about being faculty can. He thinks Barnard needs more places, other than the don't change that much," says Annex, where students can sit and talk.

> "I had a feeling we place too much stress on learning, learning new facts and new things, and not enough using what we know," Professor Peardon continued. More emphasis is needed on writing, formal speaking and just talking. He thinks that there "too much is input and too little output" and that both students and instructors spend too much time on classes per se.
