

Professor Streng Retires; Taught Thirty-Six Years

by Margaret Noberini

After serving actively in the Barnard College Physical Education Department since 1929, Miss Marion Streng, associate professor of modern dance, retired in June, 1965.

During her very active 36 years at Barnard, Miss Streng was co-director of Greek Games and taught beginners and intermediates in dance. She also instructed an advanced dance group which participated in dance festivals and presented its own dance program annually. Miss Streng also enjoyed and taught golf.

In addition to her activities in the Physical Education Department, Miss Streng was on the Committee on Student Activities and the Faculty Social Committee during her stay at Barnard.

Miss Streng came to Barnard with a B.S. from the University of Wisconsin and a Master of Arts degree from the Columbia University Teachers College. She is well-known in the field of dance, having studied at the Bennington Summer School of Dance and under Martha Graham. She also studied dance for two years under Mary Wigman in Dresden, Germany and with Harold Kreutzberg in Saltzburg and had been an instructor at the University of Iowa for four years before coming to Barnard.

Young Dems Refuse Endorsement To Mayoral Candidate Abe Beame

In a surprise move, the Columbia-Barnard Young Democratic Club voted last Thursday to withhold support of Democratic Candidate for Mayor Abraham Beame. The vote was 33-19, with three abstentions.

The Club then voted 21-21, with four abstentions to express the Club's disappointment in all the candidates for Mayor. President Carlton Carl, '67C, broke the tie by voting in favor of the resolution.

As a member of the New York State College Young Democrats, the Columbia-Barnard Young Democratic Club is bound by an unwritten law to refuse to endorse any Republican candidates. It is commonly held, however, that there is, among the club's membership, relatively strong support for Republican-Liberal Candidate, John Lindsay.

Members of the Club discussed the merits of the four men who sought the Democratic nomination for Mayor of New York City and the Club expressed support for Representative William F. Ryan. It was generally felt that Mr. Ryan's liberal philosophy best represented the club's own stand. In regard to Mr. Beame's qualifications, the members objected to his boss affiliations and fiscal conservatism.

The Club separately endorsed Frank D. O'Connor, Democratic Candidate for the office of President of the City Council, State Senator Frederick Berman, and Oliver McGivern, Democratic candidate running against former Senator Kenneth Keating for office of Justice on the New York Court of Appeals.

Park Gains 2 Degrees, Appointment

President Rosemary Park received two honorary degrees and a presidential appointment during the summer.

Miss Park was the recipient of an honorary Doctor of Letters degree from Syracuse University on June 6 and an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from the University of Hartford, where she delivered the commencement address on June 13.

The White House appointed President Park on July 4 to President Johnson's Citizen's Advisory Council of the Commission on the Status of Women.

Miss Park also spoke at several national workshops and conferences held throughout the summer. At the annual Danforth Foundation Workshop in Liberal Arts Education held in Colorado Springs, Colorado, she was a guest speaker, and on July 20-21, she was one of 700 leaders called to a White House Conference for a discussion of major problems confronting the nation's schools.

Columnist Inez Robb and editors Terry Ferrer of the Herald-Tribune and Sylvie Schuman Reice of Ingenua interviewed Miss Park on WOR-TV's "Ladies of the Press," September 9.

New Tutoring Program To Help Harlem Youth

by Linda Pincus

Larry Mamiya, a student at the Union Theological Seminary, in co-operation with the Chambers Memorial Baptist Church, has organized a new volunteer tutorial program, in East Harlem. He hopes to recruit volunteers from Barnard and Columbia students, high school students, Seminarians, teachers and housewives.

Each volunteer would be expected to tutor one day a week, from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. at the Chambers Memorial Church 219 E. 123rd St. and Third Ave. If these hours are inconvenient, Mr. Mamiya indicates a willingness to make special arrangements with the individual involved.

All children participating in the program will be given a reading test prior to any instruction. Once any reading problems have been discerned, the tutor will be expected to place special emphasis on correcting them. Mr. John Facok, a staff member of the Church, will provide training for the volunteers in this area. The volunteer will observe him teaching a remedial reading class and then participate with him in the classroom.

The students will range in age from third grade to junior high school. Besides the reading there will be a tutorial program in all subjects, as well as art and music instruction to give the child a well-rounded program.

The Church has formerly had a reading club, but the tutorial program is new this year. When questioned as to why he decided to organize the program, Mr. Mamiya replied: "I worked with the Church's Problem Solving Clinic, where they deal with such things as rent and welfare, last year. I knew of the reading club and its limits, and decided to attempt something bigger and more effective."

Mr. Mamiya concluded: "We would like as many Barnard students as possible, as the demand for help far exceeds the supply of tutors."

T. Kahn Proposes Poverty Solution

by Nancy Doctor

The solution to the poverty problem in the United States lies in a non-violent political revolution, according to Tom Kahn, Executive Secretary of the League for Industrial Democracy, a socialist organization founded in 1905.

Mr. Kahn, who helped organize the March on Washington and other major civil rights demonstrations, spoke at the Thursday Noon meeting this week on "The Politics of Poverty."

The "flood of literature" published since the start of the Johnson Administration's War on Poverty "may have impeded the understanding of poverty by tending to fragment the problem, making it impossible to develop an over-all theory."

Despite the "myths" that have arisen from these studies, the basic problem is that "there are simply not enough jobs to go around," Mr. Kahn said. "Full employment and the tearing down of the physical environment of the poor is possible," he continued, "but we must first recognize that poverty is a dysfunction of the whole economic system and is therefore a political, not merely a social concern."

Mr. Kahn said that a movement within the Democratic Party might be able to combine the political forces to initiate far-reaching poverty programs.

N.Y.U. To Accept Feb. Law Class

New York University Law School will accept a first-year class to enter in February 1966, according to Professor Of Government Phoebe Morrison, pre-law advisor.

This is the first time that the N.Y.U. Law School has accepted a February class.

Prof. Morrison expresses the wish that all students interested in applying for this and other law programs will come speak to her, including freshmen and sophomores.

She notes that many freshmen and sophomores have been taking the Law School Aptitude Test and earning "abysmal" scores. She emphasizes that this test is not a vocational guidance test but a test of background for people ready to apply to law school. Students should normally take this test only in their senior year.
