In Memoriam

Jacob H. Schiff was a member of the original Board of Trustees of Barnard College, and its Treasurer during the first four years of its existence. He always retained an interest in the College, and in 1915, wishing to do something for the city in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of his landing in this country as a young man, he decided to present to Barnard College the building which was completed in 1917 and which is known as Students Hall. Mr. Schiff was particularly interested in the idea of a college community where young women of different classes and creeds could meet and learn to know one another, so that they could work together in future for the good of the city and nation. In his deed of gift he stipulated that there should be no discrimination made in favor of any particular religious group or class in the use of the building, and also that it should serve as far as possible as a center for meetings of women students of Teachers College and Columbia University, as well as of Barnard. His broadmindedness and vision were shown in his realization of the ethical and social results which may be obtained from the intercourse of students in College. Together with the almost countless other organizations and institutions which benefited by his generosity and wisdom, Barnard College grieves for his loss.

Frederic B. Jennings, a distinguished lawyer of this city, was a member of the Board of Trustees of Barnard College from November, 1900, and Clerk of the Board from December, 1910, until his death in May, 1920. He was one of the best friends of the College, giving much time and thought to the legal and financial problems with which the Board of Trustees and its various committees have to deal. His judgment, his careful and conscientious attention, and his knowledge, were deeply appreciated by his colleagues on the Board, and by the Administration. Shortly before his death, he worked long and patiently on the revision of the By-Laws and Statutes of the College. Barnard is most grateful for his friendly interest and help, and feels that in his death it has lost one of its most valued officers.

REAL PORTRAITS

Intellectual progress is dangerous when it is entirely an inner process, lacking contact with the world of reality. In Pater's portrait of Sebastian Van Storck, imaginary though it be, there is a poignant realistic glimpse of an inner life of intellectual strivings. We have sensed his melancholy, his longing to break away from the abstract facts of hard, dry reasoning, the call of humanity urging him to bring his inner life into a closer contact with the outer world, and his utter loneliness when the pillars of the outer world faded, and left only transitory gleams of light, beautiful, but then felt to be dim and unreal.

But we have only sensed these moods—sensed them just enough to realize that we have escaped them. We do not feel, like Sebastian, that to be of service to the world, we must give up our lives. We have faith that we are constructing a world of greater life, of greater beauty, and of greater understanding. This faith comes from an external guidance, which provides a real and stabilizing link with the outer world. It comes from the older spirits of those about us, who reflect and magnify our strivings, and who give reality and beauty to the goal we are seeking. They are not what might be attained, or shadowy visions of an unreal life. They are what has been attained. They are real portraits.

BARNARD

FACULTY

YOU NEVER CAN TELL

When an undergraduate at Barnard,
DEAN GILDERSLEEVE was

Sophomore and Senior President of her class.
On the literary board of Mortarboard.
A wonderful man in her fraternity plays.
One of the two Barnard representatives on the literary board of that distinguished University magazine, the Morningside.

MISS GOODALE was

Editor-in-chief of Mortarboard.
On Morningside Board.
Solicited for the first time the famous Clark and Wilkins Ad.
which still flourishes (See Ads).
On account of her fondness for Kipling was called Fuzzy Wuzzy.

MISS HOWARD was

Chairman of Soph Show.
Editor-in-chief of Mortarboard.
A Barnard representative on the literary board of the Morningside.
Class Historian for all four years.
Senior President.

MISS HUTCHINSON was

Freshman Vice-President.
Sophomore President.
Editor-in-chief of Mortarboard.
Undergraduate President.
Chairman of Student Council the year it was organized.

MRS. LOWTHER was

Class Treasurer in her Sophomore year.
President of the Société Française.
In charge of programmes and knocks on Senior Week Committee.
Played Sir William in "Trelawney of the Wells."

MISS MEYER was

Senior President.

MISS DOTY was

Freshman President.

MISS BISHOP played on

was

Varsity Basket Ball Team.
Class Hockey Team.
On the Editorial Board of Bulletin.
Y. W. C. A. Cabinet.
President of the Classical Club.

Did you know all that? Well, its all true and (Hush!) we know lots more. Another time perhaps—another place—not here—not now.

BARNARD FACULTY STAR ON DIAMOND

GAME CALLED

SCRAP ENDS FACULTY BALL GAME

It must have been Manager Perry's well known influence with Helios, that caused that gentleman to shine in such splendor, when the faculty baseball game took place this afternoon on Raphael's field. The weather was ideal and everything went smoothly until a commotion arose at the gate. Door-collector Liggett was refusing to cash rain checks without written proof that it had rained on the day originally set for the game. Thousands of fans, including the owners themselves, were being turned away. Finally one of the bat-slingers, Doty, vouchsafed the information that three and six-hundredths inches of rain had fallen between one fifty-seven and two thirty-nine on the previous day, and after she had also identified each of the checks by number the fans were admitted.

Manager Perry's team trotted onto the field clad in brand new togs, cut and fitted in the most authentic manner. They took their places and waited a minute for Manager Wayman's team, who were finishing their careful training by walking three times around the bench. It was then that the cheers burst forth which never diminished in volume throughout the game, so efficient and untiring was Cheer Leader Davis ('twas whispered she wasn't even hoarse). At last all the players were in place and Umpire Knapp shouted, "Play Ball!" which Pitcher Latham did with such enthusiasm that Player Maltby exclaimed, "Isn't that a beautiful example of a curve!"

1ST INNING:

The beautiful curve tricked the veteran Perry into a strike. Two more followed in close succession and he went out.

Braun, who followed, was killed with the same dexterity.

Montague next grabbed a bat and banged one out to left field. He easily made first, second and even third, but there he became preoccupied. Arriving home late he was put out by the ever prompt and efficient Doty.

2ND INNING:

Ogburn deliberated forty seconds before running and was ruled out. Jacoby reached first on balls, but missed two good chances of stealing second. His star gazing is ruining his career this season.

Huttman, who in the last analysis proved to be a very steady player, smashed a whiz, but Wayman and Finan intercepted it with remarkable teamwork and sped it to first. Brewster there, who had been amusing himself reading themes, laid them aside, took off his glasses and tagged out Jacoby with a yawn.

Prenez was too excited to do anything but strike out.

3RD INNING:

Lamson's logarithms showed the score 0-0, but the odds seemed against Perry's team. They came to bat full of fight. With a lusty wallop Baldwin drove the sphere on a long foul. The next one hit him and he was awarded base. With his usual chivalry, he refused to take advantage of a lady's aim and walked to the bench.

Hirst, who had been practicing speed around the field, was up next. She swung the stick and hit a homer. She streaked around the bags and was almost home when Short Stop Boyd slammed the spheroid at Ogburn, who gloved it cleverly. He is living up to his rep as "catch" of the season. Someone from the bench yelled, "Where did Boyd get that ball?"

It was an unfortunate question as the fact was then disclosed that Boyd's mascot, Rags, had chased the ball and retrieved it with such speed that Boyd was able to put Hirst out. But had Rags a right to play? He certainly was not on the official faculty, but he was essential to Boyd's playing. Then was he to be kept off the team for not being on the faculty, or kept on it being part of Boyd, as it were? This theoretical question so intrigued the players that they became more and more excited and argued more and more vehemently until they were all shouting at once and Trainer Alsop edged hopefully near with slings and water pail. Umpire Knapp's efforts to restore peace and order were futile. He was muttering about wanting to knock someone's heads together (whose we could not ascertain), when Referee Gildersleeve came forward, and suggested with her usual tact that the last play be discarded because it had been made after five o'clock closing time. This was such an admirable suggestion that both teams agreed eagerly and they all adjourned to Jameson's café for grape-nut icecream and cheese custard.

REGISTRATION

To enter:

- I. Procure a catalogue—a law school is maintained across the street for the purpose of interpreting it for you.
- II. Before interviewing Miss Doty the following exercises will be helpful:
 1. Put a new record on your victrola.
 2. Set it at top speed.
 3. Practice until you can distinguish each word without hesitation.
- III. Make a special appointment for registering.
- IV. Pay all Bursar's fees in small change.

UNIVERSITY BOOKSTORE

A University bookstore is maintained to provide an alibi for bookless students.

UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

The facilities of the University library are available to Barnard students who have no classes for three consecutive days.

ADVICE TO STUDENTS

To arrange your program:

- I. Avoid consultations with the Faculty in regard to choice of courses (Freshman are incapable of discounting complexes).
- II. Avoid all early and Saturday classes.
Avoid all late classes.
Leave time in the middle of the morning for a study hour.
Avoid all classes that come immediately before or after lunch. Remember your health comes first.
- III. Do not take courses with long reading lists.
Avoid courses that stick to a textbook.
Intensive courses are always too detailed.
Survey courses are too general.
- IV. Take your program to a student adviser. She will tell you that none of your courses are worth taking. She knows—she has had them.
- V. Take your program to the Provost. He will veto ninety percent of your courses. The other ten percent are required.
- VI. After attending your classes for a week, consult with the Physical Education Department and change your entire program.

DEPARTMENTAL STATEMENTS

Chemistry 5-6. In accord with the government requirements of military training. The students will be innured to all poison gases by the time of the next war.

Economics A1-A2. The lectures deal with "big ideas"; the examinations with minute data.

English 25, 26. Why are you alive? Take Drama and find out. It is quite the vogue.

English X. If you have always believed that your nose ruins your looks, escape this course. Otherwise, you will become morbid, when you learn that its presence also ruins your speech.

Physical Education A, B, C, D. These courses assist the student in acquiring speed and accuracy in dressing at close quarters.

Physical Education A3. A vast new field is opened to the student. She learns to eat, sleep, breathe and bathe.

Psychology 7-8. Students spend delightful afternoons sticking pins in one another, playing with puzzles, and unearthing each other's evil tendencies.

Psychology 109. After completing this course the student either is an expert alienist or needs one.

Zoölogy 1-2. An exhaustive survey of your family tree from earthworm to you. Destroys all vanity and false pride. Recommended for Sophomores.

RAPHAEL

Raphael's small, but he is doughty,
 And the things he says to you
 Are not taught in Freshman English,
 Nor, indeed, Italian 2!

Though his language is not fluent,
 Still with gestures he atones:
 He conveys a world of meanings
 With his shoulders and his bones.

On the tennis courts this summer
 Fifty-seven times, I think,
 I displayed that little permit
 Of a loud, aggressive pink.

Once I lost it! I was serving,
 And the score was forty love,
 When it seemed a crash of thunder
 Came a-volleying from above.

Then what passed, alas, I know not,
 Nor can I tell you to this day,
 Save the Dean stepped off the greensward,
 And I gently swooned away.

"No play tennis without permit!"
 "But I've played—" He was annoyed,
 And he shouted, "Must show permit!"
 "You go see-a Miss-da-Boyd!"

How my dignity was outraged!
 I felt Freshmanlike and small
 Till by chance I was a witness
 Of an incident last Fall.

For I saw one hazy morning
 Our venerated Dean,
 Walking dignified, majestic,
 Right across the campus green

Raphael saw her and he shouted,
 "Hey, you, get-a off da grass!"
 "Me professor of da garden,
 "You professor of da class!"

Did You know all this?

The famous class of Barnard '99 brought forth two Deans—one, our own Miss Gildersleeve, and the other, Mrs. Mabel S. Douglass, head of the New Jersey College for Women. Not only is she its Dean, but she was the prime mover in its organization as the only State-aided college for women in New Jersey. While President of the College Club of Jersey City—a remarkably active club, by the way, with many Barnard Alumnae on its roll—Mrs. Douglass, in 1912, started a campaign of investigation and propaganda with a view to securing admission for women to Rutgers, New Jersey's State College. In the spring of 1917, the Trustees of that college finally established an affiliated college for women, and appointed Mrs. Douglass Dean. Though hindered by financial limitations, the enrollment increased in three years from 50 to 181 and the number of buildings from 2 to 11, 5 of which are owned and 6 rented. Dean Douglass ascribes much of her "unfailing faith in the possibilities of this institution" to the fact that her first two years at Barnard were spent at 343 Madison Avenue.

Mrs. Alice Duer Miller also graduated in '99, but her literary career started earlier than that. Inspired by examinations in a unique way, she wrote during a mid-years her first published article. It was called "A Fable for Youths" and was taken by Harper's. Since then, she has written "more novels than she likes to think about," among them "The Modern Obstacle," "The Blue Arch," "Come Out of the Kitchen," dramatized by Mr. A. E. Thomas, "The Charm School," which she and Mr. Robert Milton dramatized together, and "The Beauty and the Bolshevik." Add to this striking list two small volumes of suffrage propaganda, "Are Women People?" and "Women Are People," reprints from a column she once ran in the Sunday Tribune, and, last, but to her most important, a volume of serious verse, "Wings in the Night."

Barnard's Honor Roll would fall short indeed if it did not include a suffrage leader, and that it has in Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw (Harriet Burton '02). She was active at the time of the Constitutional Revision of 1895, and for some time served as Secretary of the Collegiate Equal Suffrage League. From 1908-1915, she was Manhattan Borough Chairman of the New York Woman Suffrage Party, meanwhile heading various campaign and parade committees. In 1915, she became Chairman of the Legislative Committee. During all these busy years, she was closely associated with the late Dr. Anna Howard Shaw on the National Board of the National Woman Suffrage Association. Since the Suffrage Amendment, Mrs. Laidlaw has not lost her interest in politics, but for two years was Chairman of the New York State League of Women Voters, and on the board of the Citizens' Union, not to mention many other civic organizations. As war work, she took the State Chairmanship of the Educational Section of the U. S. Food Administration.

Those undergraduates who occasionally glance at their reading lists will be likely to find at least a couple of books by Mrs. Herbert Parsons, Ph.D., who was Elsie Clews, Barnard '96. Her best known works are "Fear and Conventionality," "The Old-Fashioned Woman," "Social Freedom," and "Social Rule." "The Family" is also much read, being a text book based on lectures she gave while a Fellow and Lecturer at Barnard College. She is widely known as a contributor to many anthropological, sociological, and folk-lore journals, and is active in several societies of a similar nature. Mrs. Parsons started her energetic career while an undergraduate by organizing the Barnard Chapter of the College Settlements Association. For several years she was treasurer of the New York College Settlement. She has also been on local school boards of New York City and the district committee of the Charity Organization Society, and has been a visitor for the State Charities Aid Association.

Who is John Jay? John Jay is the apartment house that introduced Claremont Avenue to New York City.

What is its purpose? Three of its apartments contain Barnard girls. The remainder of the building is filled with immovable tenants.

What relation is John Jay to Jim Nasium? The latter very kindly sheltered the girls until the former was ready for occupancy.

What and where is "606"? "606" is the apartment house on 116th Street where the girls who have been unable to get into John Jay Hall are living.

What does the elevator boy say about the "John Jay-ers"? "Lawsey! what a bunch! 'Nuff to drive an ordinary man plumb crazy!"

Just where did you tell her we'd sit?
Fair Barnard we thy daughters raise——
Did you know that my theme made a hit?
Our all united hymn of praise——

We should know the words by this time!
Our all united hymn of praise——
My dear, could you lend me a dime?
We should know the words by this time.

LIVES OF EDITORS REMIND US
WE CAN DRAW, COMPOSE A RHYME
RUN FOR ADS—THUS LEAVE BEHIND US
INKSPOTS ON THE SANDS OF TIME!

To the Shades of Bygone Mortarboards!

We pass aside your funny hats,
Your pompadours and lack of spats,
And in our office, 405,
We marvel there were once alive
Such founts of genius, art, and wit,
And moan, "Why can't we think of it?"
Or, when we have a thought brand new,
We find that once you had it too.
Well, what of that? For no one looks,
'Cept us, into that pile of books!

College Spirit

To Barnard young Clarissa came,
And from her Freshman year it
Seemed that she was doomed to fame—
She had such College Spirit.

She wrote a song, "Oh, we are for
Dear Barnard and revere it;
Our Alma Mater we adore!"
What charming College Spirit!

From Lab she'd scurry off to teas;
Food, skillfully she'd steer it,
Be bored by the celebrities,
And all for College Spirit.

Whene'er the Varsity would play,
Red-faced, Clarissa'd cheer it.
She could not use her voice next day.
Ah, that was College Spirit!

At every meeting she would speak,
And missing lunch, not fear it,
So daily grew more thin and weak
Because of College Spirit.

They called her name in class, of course;
She was not there to hear it.
For in Greek Games she was a horse
Displaying College Spirit.

Whene'er a line of Odds passed by
Then loudly would she jeer it;
She thought, "They're just as good as I,
But I must show my spirit!"

Exhaustion came; she soon was dead
They dropped for her a tear. "It
Is quite too bad, alas," they said,
"She had such College Spirit!"

The religious and social organizations include the Newman Club, the Young Women's Christian Association, and the Intercollegiate Community Service Association. The religious organizations aim to interpret to students today the fundamental religious ideals of life and to study the implications of those ideals in college, community, national, and in ernational problems. Through the work of the social service organization, opportunity is given to serve our fellow workers in the community, to see what actual community needs and problems are, and to know the character and aims of movements making for social reconstruction.

The Y. W. C. A. is an organization which 'through its activities' endeavors to understand and work out the Christian way of life. Through its discussions it aims to interpret Christian ideals in the light of present day problems, and further offers an opportunity for the expression of these ideals in some form of service in the community.

NAME: Intercollegiate Community Service Association.

ADDRESS: 21 Eastern Colleges. New York Address—Barnard.

CLASS: First. AGE: !!?!!

MAJOR OBJECT: Crossing "the great divide" between the college girl and the community.

WHAT ARE YOUR OBJECTS IN COLLEGE?

- 1—To arouse, direct, and stimulate the interest of college girls in community problems and needs.
- 2—To develop the sense of social justice and responsibility by bringing the college girl into contact with different forms of community service.
- 3—To provide training while in college for future leaders in social reconstruction.
- 4—To help in the support of the college settlements in Boston, Philadelphia, and New York, and of Mt. Ivy, the summer camp for mothers and children.

HOW DO YOU PURSUE YOUR OBJECT?

- 1—By means of meetings with speakers noted in their fields of work.
- 2—By means of observation trips to institutions of social interest in and near New York.
- 3—By presenting members—through the volunteer workers' exchange, which I run—with opportunities for practical social work.
- 4—By gathering together workers from time to time to compare experiences and obtain mutual help.
- 5—By aiding in the support of college settlements and Mt. Ivy.

The Newman Club of Barnard College is a club for Catholic girls and those who are especially interested in Catholic Christianity. Its aim is twofold. In the first place, it is organized to study the teachings, the history, and the culture of the Church, particularly the contemporary Catholic social movement in this country and abroad. Secondly, its members are endeavoring to do what they can in the field of social service, and especially to make contacts in this field so that they may more easily enter it after graduation, either as volunteer or professional workers.

These aims are so comprehensive that the club is forced to limit its study to some one aspect of the whole, shifting the emphasis from year to year. This year the club is studying a remarkable piece of social work, the Survey of Catholic Charities, which was done in 1919 under the direction of His Grace the Archbishop of New York. Certain aspects of this survey are stressed by the club, notably the accounts of Girls' and Boys' Clubs, of Scouting, and of Day Nurseries, with the expectation that the members will take an active interest in these matters and be of greater future usefulness to the community.

All the meetings of the club are public and anyone who would be interested is cordially invited to attend.

Wigs and Cues is the dramatic organization of Barnard College. It undertakes every year to present two finished dramatic productions to which anyone may come. In these productions its aim is to give as much practical experience as possible to the girls working on the plays. For this reason the scenery and costumes are generally "homemade," and perhaps in some future day the coaching may also be done by the girls.

A Dramatic Workshop has been also established by Wigs and Cues, for the purpose of giving more experience in acting, costuming, coaching, etc. to its members, and also to try out student plays. There are two workshop performances a year, to which only the college is admitted.

The purpose of Dance Club is to provide a means for Juniors and Seniors to satisfy their Terpsichorean instinct, which, after Sophomore year, without our organization, would have to be suppressed. The distinction between active and inactive members is based on the following requirements. It is necessary for the active members to attend a Dance Club class twice a week. The inactive members support the club, but do not take part in recitals, nor regularly attend practises. All members are chosen on the basis of their technical ability by means of try-outs.

What We Do

RESOLVED: That the Barnard Debating Club best carries out the Quintilian Idea.

INTRODUCTION

ORIGIN: In the well working mental mechanism of a Debater.

NATURE: Foolishly serious.

DEFINITION OF TERMS:

Quintilian—A wise old Roman. (Ref. Ency. Brit. 11 Ed. Vol. 22, p. 761.)

His Idea—"To debate together is the main thing, the only sensible and sane thing."

Debating Club—A group of happy girls ready to argue anything provided the material committee supplies the facts.

BRIEF PROPER

(Properly brief)

The Barnard Debating Club offers great opportunities for practice in debate by

1. Semi-monthly meetings.
 - a. Popular discussion of live subjects followed by constructive criticism.
2. Annual debate with two other colleges.
 - a. Both sides of question are debated. (Affirmative at home; negative abroad.)
 - b. Educational and social advantages gained by formally scrapping and informally entertaining other college teams.

CONCLUSION

This question has but one side—"the side of the right and of the gods."

Intercollegiate Debates

March 20th, 1920

RESOLVED: That the recognition of Trade Union officials is essential to successful collective bargaining.

Given: the Barnard Mathematics Club with monthly meetings and an annual dance.
 To prove: that every Barnard girl should belong to Math Club.

CONSTRUCTION

Let Dr. Mullins be the honorary president. (1)
 Let the speakers at the meetings be chosen from famous outsiders, famous Faculty, and famous members of the club. (2)

PROOF

Anything Dr. Mullins supervises is a success; (Ax. 15)
 Dr. Mullins supervises Math Club; (Const. 1)
 \therefore Math Club is a success.
 (Ax. 1—Things equal to the same thing are equal to each other.)

Every girl delights in dancing; (Ax. 13)
 Math Club gives a good annual dance; (Hyp.)
 \therefore Math Club delights every girl. (Ax. 1)

Girls like good refreshments; (Ax. 23)
 Math Club is famous for its refreshments; (Propositions 1898 thru 1920)
 \therefore Math Club refreshes every girl. (Ax. 1)

Math Club speakers, being truly famous, speak in language simple enough for the most unmathematical to understand; (Const. 2)
 To understand Math is to be interested in it; (Def.)
 \therefore Math Club is interesting to all. (Ax. 1)

But—Every Barnard girl likes a successful, delightful, refreshing, and interesting club;
 \therefore Every Barnard should belong to Math Club. Q. E. D.

Once a maiden seeking knowledge,
 Seeking joy of life and laughter,
 Came to Barnard, and they told her,
 "If you'd be both glad and blithesome,
 "If you'd seek the fount of wisdom,
 "We will lead you to its source."
 To a cheerful room they led her,
 Filled with happy-looking maidens
 Listening with rapt expressions
 To a speaker while he told them
 Of the part that "Vulgar Latin"
 Played in building the foundation
 Of la charmante langue française.
 When he'd finished, and the murmurs
 Of approval had subsided,
 Then she saw the maidens mingle,
 Saw them join in conversation,
 Heard the music of the teacups,
 And she longed to join their numbers.
 Finally, she gathered courage,
 Walked into the happy company.
 "May I join your ranks?" she sought them,
 "I would fain be of your number."
 "You are welcome," said the maidens,
 "Join us in our joy and laughter,
 "Join us in our quest for knowledge.
 "We are servants of the Muses,
 "Of the Muses and bright Hebe;
 "And sometimes we walk in Athens,
 "Sometimes, too, we tread the Forum,
 "But we come back to the present
 "With the treasures of the past.
 "We are students of the classics
 "From whose bright and golden pages
 "We have learned of life, of people,
 "Of the hopes and aspirations
 "That endure unchanged, eternal.
 "Come and learn of joy and wisdom!
 "Join our wise and merry throng!"

MABEL FOOTE WEEKS

As the newest club in college, like the youngest daughter in the fairy tale, we have been endowed with all the magic gifts a fairy godmother could grant—with all the color and sunshine of Spain, all the gaiety and grace of her song and dance, all the charm and dignity of her literature,—for it is our aim to come into closer touch with Spanish life than we can hope to do in three hours a week of class room work. The land of the hidalgo has come to us here in New York; in many a store window we see the sign, "Se habla español," and often we hear a chatter that sounds strangely familiar—though alas, all too often we can distinguish no more than an occasional, "Sí, señor." So we have taken that sign for our motto. Our meetings mean not only sitting solemnly in rows, listening to learned lectures, but also playing Spanish games, singing Spanish songs, and discussing Spanish topics. We are as firm in our resolve to speak only Spanish as Don Quijote was in his determination to conquer the windmills.

BETWEEN YOU AND US

We are children of the Bear,
And we're very much aware
Of the power that lies in matters literary.
We'll admit we're far from high-brow,
But we cannot tell a lie, now—
We are slightly disputatious—sometimes very!

If the urge is on you strong,
Bring your stuff and come along;
When your brainchild in the box is fairly landed,
Then with no red tape or fuss, now,
Just between yourself and us, now,
You will get a criticism loud and candid.

President - - - - - DELIA MARBLE, Special
Secretary-Treasurer - - - - - DOROTHY HOUGHTON, '23

"There's a new and fearful species,"
 Said the Cambrian Trilobite,
 "That has landed with a thud on Manhattan schist and mud,
 "And we'd better draw our tails up out of sight.

 "For it thrives on teas and parties,
 "Takes a week end auto-lark,
 "Climbing hill and digging ditch, seeking gleaming crystals which
 "Have belonged to gnomes and fairies since the ark."

 "I have Proterozoic shivers,"
 Wailed a Gastropoding Snail,
 As he covered up his head in a porous limestone bed,
 While young Ammonites and Spirifers turned pale.

 "Bah, who fears this vaunted species?"
 Spoke a Saw-tooth Tiger cub.
 "Why, you Paleozoic cowards in your inland basin tub,
 "They bow down and kneel before us—yea, they worship and adore us—
 "'Tis a new Geology Club!"

The Music Club has not yet celebrated its first birthday, but already shows signs of unusual precocity. With becoming modesty, however, because of its tender age, the club has decided to postpone its formal debut until next year. We are sorry to have to keep the public waiting so long. This year we are contenting ourselves with a college musicale and tea. Watch the bill-boards for our picture!

The Barnard Credo

With apologies to H. L. Mencken

All Professors have Phi Beta Kappa keys.
You can really get water from the drinking fountains.
The Library hates to give out its books.
There is something queer about people majoring in Math.
One hour on Tuesday is set aside for catching up with one's reading.
Conservatism should be concealed.
You can cure a cold by going to bed.
There is something wrong about the club system at Barnard.
Miss Latham means everything she says.
Anyone who eats at Biacake belongs to the idle rich.
Some day we shall have a free Cut System.
Professor Ogburn has been voting only three years.
All Western colleges have good "Ec" departments.
Your Mortarboard picture does not do you justice.
Zoo and Drama are required by public opinion.
It is the acme of conceit to be at ease before a quiz.
English is the easiest major—next to Astronomy.
All transfers come from obscure Southern towns.
Junior Prom is the climax of a college education.
Going without lunch is a sign of importance.
Vacations wear you out.
The English system of education is more strenuous than the American.
Tact plus pep equals success in life.
All good fellows are posted.
You are much sleepier than anyone else.
Something should be abolished at once.

Greek Games: An Appreciation

Greek Games are poetic in the Greek sense of imaginative composition. They unite the arts of song and choral dance; and they are Greek most of all in their constant movement. Their beauty of color and grouping does not distinguish them from the pageantry of other colleges; but their movement, from the play of individual emotion to the choral progress of the mythical theme, ranges quite beyond pageantry. No other college festival opens a wider field for communal artistic creation.

Charles Sears Baldwin

We nominate for the Hall of Fame

Kitty Coffey

Because she wrought an artistic and unified production out of unknown and untried Freshman material; because, though defeated, she came up smiling; because, upon the resignation of the Sophomore Chairman, she took up the work where it had been left and lead the class to a well-won victory; but especially because she always put before her own interests the interests and ambitions of 1922.

SYNOPSIS OF THE ENTRANCE

The shadows of autumn have stolen quietly over the country. The rustle of the leaves, the music of the brooks, and the songs of the birds have been banished with the short-lived summer. All nature will be silenced until Pan, God of the Woodland, shall seek Syrinx, the voice of nature, who has fled him and her Arcadian groves. Saddened by the quiet of nature, the rustic folk, joined by a band of victorious athletes, beseech Pan with offerings and prayers to reawaken the music of the woods. As they kneel in silence before the altar, there comes the sound of distant singing—"oinos, oionos." They cry—"An omen from Pan," and, rejoicing in the favor of the god, they depart in triumphant chorus.

SYNOPSIS OF THE DANCE

At Spring's bidding the snows have freed the captive water spirits, and down the mountain streams they come to the lake bed in the valley. Syrinx, too, at spring's call, comes from her winter hiding place, and, rejoicing to be once more in her beloved woods, dances joyfully, when suddenly she finds herself enveloped by the lake spirits, who have long been jealous of the music which she has brought to the woods. At Pan's bidding his Fauns come in search of Syrinx. They trace her to the water's edge, but neither pleas nor threats can make the lake relinquish its prize until Pan, moved by the prayers of the people, sounds his pipes. The lake spirits, recognizing the call of the wood god, retreat in silence, and still in the thrall of his piping, the fauns carry Syrinx off in triumph. The prayer of the people is answered.

Lyrics

PAN

EDITH PETTY SHEARN, 1922

I am Pan!
I shout from the clouds my glorious name
As I stride knee-deep through the smoking mists,
God of the green glimmering woods and hills,
God of the tremulous streams—not I!
I am Pan—god of everything!
The sky is my home and the stars are my toys,
The gleaming eyes of my myriad bats
Evilly winking throughout the long night,
Flitting and drifting on velvet wings,
Till I fling my sun out into the sky.
I laugh as my sun rolls higher and higher,
And I juggle with moon and sun and world.
One I threw far out to the boundless north
But the wind sent it back on an icy blast
Sailing high, sailing swift with the lean grey geese,
And my world, it was charred and black,
Its soul was all ashes and it came back a moon.
Another I threw to the gates of Olympus,
And Jove held it high in his broad-fingered hand,
And all hot from the frowns of that mighty god,
Lit by a spark from his burning eyes,
He flung back my world—a sun.
One I threw far over the great blue wall
Built twixt the dreams of gods and men
And the gods tossed it back with a dreamer's soul—
A thing of the marshlands and dim distant hills,
The moan of the waves and the rain on the leaves,
Caught from the wind-swept harp of the gods—
My world was no longer a plaything of clay!
I stop in my game with my giant toys
And stand gazing long on that tremulous soul
So strange and so new to my wondering eyes,
And when the aching soul flits forth
On dusky wings through the ancient pines
To brood o'er black-mouthed tarns,
I venture in search of its hidden grief
And find it alone in the quiet woods
Sipping faint drops of immortality
Which drip from the rocks of silence and the dark.
Then I hear the faint prayers of that soul
Seeking the waters of eternal light
And my heart sings aloud with the joy of my strength
And the power to give to my plaything its wish.
So striding down through the glorious clouds
I lead the soul still further on
To some far distant brooding hill
Seared with great scars of rough gray stone;
I stand beside it, silent and stark
As some great oak
Twisting its branches into the western sky
Black against molten gold.
And here I give the soul long draughts
Of space and stars and unseen moons
Till I see mirrored deep in its shining depths
The gold gleaming dust of my pointed stars
And the slow silent drift of the quiet snow
As Jove shakes the years from his hoary beard,
And the sigh of the wind as it wings through space;
The soul has drunk deep of the dreams of the gods,
My toys and the gods—they are one!
And what care I for the wrath of the gods?

LO, THIS IS PAN!

EDITH M. MENDEL, 1922

A silence filled the wood; silence as deep
As that of a young mother bending o'er her babe asleep.
Silence as dread
As the first agony when one conceives
A loved one dead.
Black stillness shrouded all the purple trees
And darkness crushed the whisper of a breeze.
Then broke the ebon quiet of the night.
The woods shrilled with a sound
Like cries of women borne away as slaves,
And shrieks of children tortured by a man
The traveler heard; rigid he sensed
The pipes of Pan.

Pan—

His trampling hoofs stained red
With mangled berries that had bled;
A nymph with torn hair and dust white face
Fled from the leering god's embrace.
Harshly as on he crashed his savage way
He laughed to see a bearded satyr cease from play
And in his terror kill a moth; its pale wings fluttered, then were still;
Nearby a young faun cowered; quivering, his comrades
ran before the half beast ravaging;
The youth crouched low, and sobbed,
"Lo, this is Pan!"

II

Behind the vaporous hills arose the sun,
Laughed at his kiss the waters one by one.
The youth awoke,
The soft warm air
Moved languorously through his hair.
And at his feet a violet smiled, lustrous with drops of dew
That fell from the veiled, slender puffs of cloud
Which dotted Heaven's blue.
Then filled the misty quiet of the dawn
Such strains as lovers' voices, little children's laughter,
and the smileful tears
Of one who greets a warrior home from battle after years.
Joyous the youth beheld the great god Pan.

Pan—

His cloven hoofs
Trod lightly on the flower dappled sod.
A little faun crept close, embracing his great knee;
Nearby a satyr caught a butterfly; its bright wings
fluttered, then he let it fly in glee.
Of sylvan nymphs appeared a riant band,
Who danced, hand in locked hand
About the gentle god, half man.
Their floating garments made
An opalescence round him as he played.
Exulted then the youth:
"Lo, this is Pan!"

I am Pan!
I ride on the lightning's forked flashes
And rock in the northwind's wild gale,
Hurling the comets out into the night
I laugh at the starshine which follows their trail.

SYNOPSIS OF THE ENTRANCE

There is silence at the altar of Helios. It is the day of the Sun God's festival, but the discus, the hurdles, the proud chariot, all lie abandoned. The strong-limbed athletes of Rhodes have gone beyond the city walls to help their fellow-warriors withstand a sudden attack of the Amazons. A group of women and children gather on the city walls to watch for the signal torches of victory—but on all the hills the messengers stand with empty torches. The High Priest and his attendants come to the altar to propitiate the god with prayers and gifts. About them gather the fairest maidens of the city. As their song fades upon the stillness of the air, a cry breaks forth from the women and children watching on the walls. Vast rumblings are heard from afar. They grow nearer and nearer. A messenger bursts in, his torch aflame. Dashing up the steps of the altar, he sets ablaze the smouldering embers. Close at his heels comes a joyous, frenzied mob in whose midst march the triumphant soldiers. Straight to the altar the soldiers come, where they are crowned with laurel . . . and as they celebrate with games and revels, the flames of victory climb ever higher.

SYNOPSIS OF THE DANCE

Although repulsed in battle, the Amazons have succeeded in capturing the king's son whom they have borne away with them on their retreat. The boy finally manages to evade his captors, and, blood-stained and weary, reaches the sacred temple of Helios. By a supreme effort he breaks his bonds . . . only to sink exhausted before the temple gates. Helios, taking pity upon the boy, sends his sunbeams to his rescue. Just as the Amazons appear in furious pursuit they lead him to safety within the temple while they themselves withdraw behind a cloud. Upon discovering the boy's broken chains the Amazons believe that they have their victim within their grasp. In their hot eagerness they would dare to desecrate the temple of Helios did not his sunbeams suddenly pierce them with their all-conquering light. Dazed, the Amazons fall back from the temple steps. Their leader sinks to the ground, mortally wounded. Blinded and in darkness they realize for the first time the supreme power of the Sun-god. They grope their way to the altar and beg that he in his compassion will restore their sight. Helios, taking pity upon their helpless agony, touches their eyes with light. In silence the Amazons turn and bear away their fallen leader.

Lyrics

HYMN TO HELIOS

EDITH PETTY SHEARN 1922

I

*Helios—I sing the song of your flames
Red as the blade of my two-edged sword
Which has found out the heart of my enemy
As a snake finds the heel in the thirsty dust.*

I stand before you on the Eastern hills,
Gray hills that rise above the mist-hung sea,
And wait your coming from the starry ways.
And as I stand and wait above the dead,
The dead I slew—I and my flame-dipped sword,
I rattle spear on shield to drive the night
Back from my dead, back to that land beyond
The walls of fog built on the sliding waves.
I thrust my sword into the face of night
And send my words out on the running winds
To climb from star to star into the East
As ships climb wave on wave to reach their port,
Until my song of triumph reaches you
And in the East your mirth shakes all the skies,
Your red-lipped laughter sears with burning breath
The dead who lie about me on the hills.
Helios—I laugh with you for my heart is red
With the flames of your fire.

II

*Helios—I sing the song of your light
White as a sail on a windy sea,
A sun-filled sail on a sea of light
That dips and drinks at the black waves' edge.*

My hands are a cup to hold your gleaming light
I scatter your warmth upon the ground which lies
A wrinkled thing beneath my feet. My seeds
Which were all white and smooth are touched with light
And climb like threads of smoke into the day.
I stand among the vineyards where the vines
Cluster like flocks upon the ragged hills.
The swollen grapes beneath the leaves are soft,
Soft as the curve upon my horse's neck,
And round and golden with your rays of light.
Your warmth, your whiteness lies on all my hills
Even as the gulls lie resting on the sea.
And in my heart the reddened dawn of vengeance
Fades, and I am strong with the quiet strength
Of your warmth and light.

III

*Helios—I sing the song of your gold,
Gold like the sea-fire my oars enkindled
As they cut with their blades the midnight sea
And the spray turned to stars of a mystic light*

Gold as the Autumn leaves that rise and sink
Like yellow-breasted birds upon the wind.
I stand upon the hills above the sea
And send my words like arrows through the air
To where your gold has stained the Western sky

TO HELIOS

ISABEL ELIZABETH RATHBORNE, 1922

The world is heavy with a great despair.
The festering wrong of Man-enslavèd Man
Pollute the ancient temples of the air
Earth's cry of anguish beats against the stars,
Haunting the gods in their untroubled seat.
The heart-break of humanity's defeat,
The throbbing bitterness of life is there.
Each prisoned spirit, straining at its bars,
Uplifts the agony of fruitless prayer. . . .

The gods have closed their eyes,
And drunk nepenthe lest they learn to weep.
They will not see the struggle that repeats
An age-old cycle of sad destinies.
They hug their boon of undisturbèd sleep,
Light-hearted waking, passion without pain,
Whereon dependeth their divinity.
What can they know of Man? His useless cries
Fall heavy on the laboring earth again.

Helios, thou alone,
Bright, valiant god, to whom fear-darkened men
First prayed as source of ever-flaming Truth,
Art called All-seeing by a grateful throng.
Where tortured souls in darkness wandered long
Is shed the light of courage and of youth.
Thy radiance penetrates the foulest den,
Nor shrinks from laying bare each hidden wrong.

And lo, thou hast a glory overspread
O'er every place of dark unspoken shame,
Brighter than any opiate dream could shed,
Or vision of some shadow-land divine.
Truth only purges with unsparing flame
The ill we shrink from. Man shall lift his head
To see at hand this radiant promise shine,
And leap exultant from the bonds of dread,
To hurl defiance at the careless height,
And stand a god in thy transforming light.

As if the riches heaped upon your bier
Had melted in the flames and spilt like wine.
I stand and watch you as you slowly go
Down through the waves to where the slumbrous Styx
Burrows beneath this darkening world of mine.
Your warmth, your light fade slowly from my hills,
Night treads upon the waters. All the meadows
Blossom with fireflies. It is the time
When fear draws close his mantle round my throat,
But my heart is unafraid. . . . Deep in the sky
The Western clouds still flame with glowing light
Like happy isles upon a sunlit sea,
A golden promise of to-morrow's dawn
And of that East where I shall some day rise
To stride among the lofty morning stars.

Endowment Fund Drive

The Associated Alumnae during 1919-1920 organized a campaign to increase the Endowment of Barnard College. Because of the steady rise in prices since 1914, funds were needed to raise the salaries of the professors and to meet the higher cost of the general upkeep of the college. The drive raised enough money to complete the conditions required by the General Education Board for its $200,000 contribution, and has therein finished the $1,000,000 Endowment Fund started several years ago.

Towards the endowment of the Anna Howard Shaw Memorial Chair of Citizenship nearly $11,000 has been paid or pledged. For the remainder of the $100,000 a committee is again campaigning in 1920-1921.

The Undergraduates helped the drive not only by allowing their various activities to be photographed, but also by canvassing and personal donations.

To charm the public into generous support of the drive, Barnard undergraduates appeared—very reluctantly, of course—before the camera man upon the fall of an opportune snow storm. At the noon hour, after a shovel parade, thirty girls began to clear the snow from the pavement in front of Students Hall. Furiously (?) Barnard shovelled, until word came down the line that the camera man had not yet started to take the moving pictures. With this as a lesson, the girls awaited their cues from the photographers before getting too energetic. A few weeks later, on a biting cold day at noontime, the Blue and White performed before the camera. This was an Odd-Even hockey game played at the Notlek ice-skating rink. So successful was this event that, not long after, every one who could stand on a pair of skates went to the ice carnival directed by the Endowment Campaigners and the Athletic Association. But it was not only as the frivolous that Barnard was pictured. Cameras penetrated the laboratories to see professors and students at work. Perhaps on these days experiments were even more interesting than usual!

“By jove!” said the man at the show,
“That’s Barnard at work shovelling snow.
Education’s no bluff,
Those girls have the stuff!”
(But ’twas just for ten minutes, you know.)

In hockey our “team” displayed pluck
With shinny and sweater and puck;
The press near and far
Proclaimed each a star—
Who stayed on her skates with much luck!

“Barnard is Part of a Great University---”

“Who is the fun-ny man, mam-ma,
Who wears the fun-ny tie?
It’s green and pink and blue, mam-ma;
It really hurts my eye.
He has a fun-ny hat-band, too,
And such a fun-ny face,
And look, he walks around, mam-ma,
As if he owned the place.”

“My child, my child,” the mother then did say,
“He is an Undergraduate from just across the way.”

“Who is the fun-ny girl, mam-ma,
Her heels are very high,
Her cheeks are much too red, mam-ma,
Oh, won’t you teil me why?
She eats her lunch at Bi-a-cake
With different men each day;
She’s chewing gum—oh, dear mam-ma,
Why does she act that way?”

“My child, my child,” the mother then did say,
“She is a Business Student from just across the way ”

“Oh, see the fun-ny man, mam-ma,
And watch the way he acts.
He’s al-ways, al-ways ar-gu-ing,
And says “the points, the facts.”
He’s car-ry-ing a ton of books:
What does he do that for?
Oh, mam-ma, if he knows so much,
Why does he study more?”

“My child, my child,” the mother then did say,
“He is a Law School student from just across the way.”

“Who is the fun-ny girl, mam-ma?
Her hair is combed so tight!
Her skirts are much too long, mam-ma,
Oh, does she think that’s right?
She never seems to smile, mam-ma,
And has with her a book
That’s called, ‘The Life of Calories;
Or, Chemicals to Cook.’ ”

“My child, my child,” the mother then did say,
“She comes from Teachers College that’s just across the way.”

“And who, please is that fun-ny man?
His collar is not clean;
His hair stands up on end, mam-ma —
D’ye see the one I mean?
He’s shout-ing ‘Down with riches!’
And he ought to shine his shoes,
He talks an aw-ful lot, mam-ma,
What language does he use?”

“My child, my child,” the mother then did say,
“He comes from Journalism right there across the way.”

“Oh, who’s the pret-ty girl, mam-ma?
Oh, doesn’t she look sweet!
She’s car-ry-ing a brief case and
She looks so very neat.
I like her best of all, mam-ma,
I like her best of all:
She’s not too sad or gay, mam-ma,
Too short nor yet too tall.”

“My child, my child,” the mother then did say,
“You need not ask—of course, she comes from Barnard on Broadway.”

A Retrospect of Senior Week

We sleep once more till seven,
And retire before eleven,
And in spite of counter lunches, why, our cheeks are growing pink,
But still we pale and tremble,
And a mystic smile dissemble,
When upon the dissipation of last Senior Week we think.

For in terms of mathematics,
We had need of hydrostatics,
To prevent our heads from bursting when 'twas ninety in the shade,
If our tempers stood at zero,
We could sympathize with Nero
As he sweated at the bonfire he so carefully had made.

First came Senior Play, a warning
To all future full adorning
Of a cast in hoops and bustles when the atmosphere is hot;
Such a play is hardly merry
When the only drink is "sherry"
Which you smile and drink politely as if stale tea 'twere not!

No, an Eden garb is better,
Where no dress at all can fetter,
Or a little classic drama,—how their drapery excels!
But if Senior Play is shifted
Then this curse of heat is lifted,
And we need not cite that mocking name: "Trelawney of the Wells."

Baccalaureate was the one day
Of the seven—being Sunday—
When at crushed and crumpled clothing we had no need to weep;
For no refreshments soiled us,
No torrid dancing spoiled us,
For once we could rest quietly,—who said we shouldn't sleep?

Senior Dance showed gay disguises
And remarkable surprises
For the pill we gave a duty dance had brought a charming man.
And the tender conversation
Of the ball's abomination,
The engaged man, was a secret joy, not hinted in our plan.

Class Day, decorously hearty,
Was a formal little party,
Where we made our charming pleasantries and didn't shock a soul;
Later though, at past ten-thirty
We arrayed in pumps and shirty
And indulged in brands of humor that were just a bit more droll.

If on Wednesday we'd been choosing,
We'd have missed the most amusing
Little feature of the Springtime, when we got our brave A. B.'s;
But despite prognostications,
(Followed by its cold collations)
It was lots of fun to graduate with Pershing if you please!

For the hoods were red and yellow,
And the music it was mellow,
And they played that march from Athalie some 20,000 times.
But we heard the rite so often
As our feeble brains to soften,
And the "Chemist Pharmaceutical" still in our memory chimes.

Well, the week's delightful story
Ended in a burst of glory
With an Ivy speech and Banquet that will ever rank as first,
Yes, we'd better call it glory
Than some term a bit more gory,
For if minus fifty hours' sleep, some blood vessel must burst!

Yes, sitting up is pleasant
If your frame is like a peasant,
And it doesn't really matter if you don't look very sleek,
But in that strain terrific
We acquired a taste pacific
And we're rather glad we needn't face another Senior Week!

Look at our pictures. Would you ever suspect that Ethel M. Dell is our favorite novelist, and the Saturday Evening Post our favorite magazine? Or, on the other hand, does it surprise you that the Atlantic Monthly is our second choice, and Shakespeare our preferred dramatist? Though we have this Elizabethan leaning, Wigs and Cues seems to be educating us up to Barrie, for he comes only one vote behind. Our poetic taste ranges widely from Chaucer to Robert W. Service, giving just a slight preference to Rupert Brooke and Shelley. With proverbial collegiate radicalism, almost all of us read the Times, and it must have been Twenty-Two that swung the Republican election. On the stage, we enjoy many actresses, especially Ethel Barrymore and Maude Adams, but as to our matinee idol—there we know our mind! Who else could it be but the Captivating John? We regret to say that Columbia is not first in the hearts of its countrywomen, yet at least we can offer it the honor of being linked with Harvard in third place. Princeton leads off, followed by Yale. Among girls' colleges, other than Barnard, we favor Vassar, then Wellesley.

To turn to more intimate matters, we confide that our present taste in beverage lies somewhere around Grape Juice and Aqua Pura. Some suggestions hint of the past, however. One of us simply breathes, "Alas!" The beauty you were so struck by in our pictures is the product of soap, powder, and cold cream (together?!). Our favorite brand of cosmetics is Djer-Kiss. In spite of our apparent health—we average five feet four in height and 124 lbs. in weight—at least 59 of us do not wear ground grippers and our average bed-time is 11:17. More of us do not smoke than do, but most of us swear—oh, gentle words, of course, like "damn" and "ye gods." When asked if we have ever been kissed, we burst into rhetoric of surprise. Our answers are rather too original to be here transcribed. In brief, approximately two-thirds of us—er—osculate.

Again we say—look at our pictures!

WESTERN COLUMBIA

CHAPTER I

THE BABARIAN INVASION

1. Previous to the year 1918 the attempts of the barbarians to penetrate into the countries of the continent of Barnard were frustrated by the Faculty who, relying on their requirements, their advanced guard of officials, and their entanglements of red tape, had up to this time succeeded in preventing the barbarians from violently occupying their territory. But suddenly a new force appeared which thrust their way into the weakened empire. These were the cohorts of 1922, who, by combining brain with brawn, succeeded in establishing themselves within the sacred precincts.

The horrors of entrance had been increased by the deadly flubonic plague which appeared on the Barnard continent late in 1918. This disease, like other terrible epidemics, came from the theatres, Fifth Avenue, and the Plaza Grill. In September it reached Brooks Hall; by October it was devastating Students; it then spread over the campus attacking every part of the country except the scholastic districts of Milbank. The civil authorities, taking advantage of the debilitating effect of the plague, revoked long standing civil rights, thus depriving the people of the right of assemblage, and the freedom of speech and sneezing. It is impossible to tell what proportion of the population perished, due to overstudy and a lack of recreation.

2. The invaders had not yet succumbed to the enervating influence of academic civilization, and attended gatherings in large numbers. With loud acclamations they selected their leaders. First they raised upon their shields as chieftain Evelyn Orne. They then proclaimed Marion Vincent next in the line of succession. The task of chronicling the bright deeds of the tribe devolved upon Edith Mendel. Helen Frankenstein was chosen Recorder of the words spoken in council hall and by the camp fire. Of the many offices one of the most influential was that of Major Domo, who had control of the coin of the realm. The warriors appointed Eva Hutchison to hold this honorable position. Routh Ogden was selected to prepare the feasts, while Eva Wagner was chosen to make beautiful the homes of the clan. The tribe proclaimed Orrilla Holden their leader in battle cries and festive songs. Edith Veit and Katherine Young made up a council of two to advise and hearten the chieftain. Minnie Mae Fleming was appointed to arrange the annual feast of the nation. Her efforts were crowned with success.¹ Finally Katherine Coffey was chosen general to head the tribe in war against the hostile Sophomans.

Under the able leadership of their chieftain and his subordinates, the barbarians who had settled in Freshmance were quickly assimilated into the Empire. They were soon speaking the same conversational Lingo which was everywhere used by the people around them. This was much simpler than the elaborate and complicated language used in books.

1. Reference, menu, Commodore Hotel, May, 1919.

The barbarians strengthened their alliance with the people of the continent through the marriage of their warrior chieftain Evelyn Orne with the queen of the Juniorians. The great importance of this marriage will be seen when we come to consider the help which the Juniorians gave to the barbarians throughout the ordeals and rituals of the Sophomantic Mysteries ceremony.

3. From the very first the Sophomans were openly hostile to the Freshmanians. They captured inoffensive members of the new tribe and compelled them through threats and force to wear badges upon which were printed these words: "Strictly fresh. Handle with Care."² Towards the end of October, the Sophomans held a trial of all the Freshmanians whom they had captured disobeying their commands. It was not a trial in the modern sense, as there was no attempt to gather and weigh evidence and base the decision upon it, but recourse was had to the primitive ordeal.

4. The people of Freshmania showed their prowess in the athletic contests in which citizens from the neighboring countries joined. In the contest of Captainball, the Freshmanian athletes were victorious. Later in the year when contests were held in the older and more established sports, their efforts met with varying success.

2. Research has shown us that these terms were used in former times in reference to eggs.

5. At the time of the Midyears, although the Faculty still directed education, students were beginning to write books as well as to read them. Scholars did not satisfy themselves permanently with the words of their masters, but began themselves to add to the fund of human knowledge. In Freshmance and the adjoining kingdoms we find groups of students who achieved unprecedented results by natural bluff.¹

Beverage.

The social life of the people centered about the well-nigh sacred institution of tea-drinking. Gatherings for this purpose assembled every few days. The ceremony varied but little from week to week. The one proposing to drink a cup of tea stood in line before the pourer, and when his turn came rendered him *beverage*² by placing his right hand in that of the pourer and declaring a set formula such as "Two lumps and lemon please." There were also entertainments of a more plebian nature in the form of slap-stick comedies gotten up hastily with small regard for art or costuming. Even the most distinguished sometimes took part in them. At one time the Freshmanians were regaled with an exhibition of this nature given them by the celebrated clan of 1918, who had sailed back across the sea from the distant island of Alumnia for this purpose. On the whole, however, the turbulent conditions of life made warfare the chief interest of the people.

6. Towards March the quarrel which had broken out between the Freshmanians and the Sophomans in the early days of the invasion, and which had been smouldering throughout the winter, broke in all its fury. Feverish preparations for war were undertaken. Vast cauldrons of boiling water³ were set up in the vaults of both nations and battle robes were dyed the customary blues and reds and greens. Warriors gathered daily in the great gymnasium and practised the arts of warfare. Battle hymns and the stamping of the war dance echoed throughout the land. On April 12, 1919, the two forces clashed in one of the most celebrated battles of history. Although the proud warriors of Freshmance performed prodigies of valor, they could not hold their ground against the deadly onslaught of the Sophomans. But though defeated, the barbarians were assured of a permanent place in the land and in the hearts of their neighbors.

It required nearly a year to educate the new race into the ways of the surrounding countries. Yet the barbarians had been by no means without influence. They had added their part to the common heritage. From the union of two great elements, the ancient civilization and the vigor and ambition of the barbarian, a new thing was formed, namely, the spirit of the clan of 1922.

THE EXPANSION OF SOPHOMANY.

The question of change of lands.

7. Two events took place in the early fall of 1919 which fundamentally influenced the history of the Accession of Kitty Coffey, 1919-1920.

Barnard continent. (1) By the emigration of the clan of 1919 to the island of Alumnia, a vast area was set free which was occupied by the Juniorians; the Sophomans penetrated into the country of the Juniorians, and the Freshmanians, now completely civilized, took up their abode in Sophomany. This yearly rotation from country to country was a striking peculiarity of the inhabitants of the continent. (2) A fresh horde of barbarians descended from the outlying wildernesses into the land abandoned by the clan of 1922.

The clan of 1922 assembled once more in its full strength and chose as Lord Protector of the realm Katherine Coffey, the general who had fought so well against the Sophomantic tribes in 1919. The other officers chosen were:

1. See map on p. 7 for the names and position of the several areas.

8. Hostilities soon broke out between the clan of 1922 and the arrogant barbarians who had taken possession of Freshmance. Though there were numerous incidents of defiance on the part of the barbarians, the race of 1922 succeeded in effectively subduing them. They were compelled to wear green ribbons as a mark of their servitude. Hardened rebels met severe treatment at the hands of the Sophomans on the night of the famous Massacre of St. Myserie.

Massacre of St. Myserie.

9. The bloody deeds of this night were soon forgotten in preparation for the annual athletic contests. The clan of 1922 showed remarkable advances in physical endurance since the time of the Dark Ages, winning laurels in both field events and in swimming.¹

Drama.

They had now reached the stage of civilization at which a love of drama first makes its appearance. Soph Show—so called in patriotic reference to the name of the country—was produced at this time. The latent dramatic qualities which are ever present in a young and vigorous people thus found expression.

The Dictatorship of the Lord Protector.

10. Despite their subjection at St. Myserie, and their total defeat on Field Day, the barbarians had the audacity to provoke the Sophomans to such a point that a declaration of war was rendered inevitable. The challenge was issued with some derision on the part of the Sophomans. Nevertheless preparations for war were soon under way and both countries assumed the aspect of an armed camp. The Sophomans had the misfortune to lose their gallant Generalissimo, D. McGrayne. His retirement from active service was accepted with sorrow by all the people. The Lord Protector was then unanimously proclaimed dictator, and assumed command over the armies of the nation. Under his able leadership the soldiers of Sophomany marched to victory against the barbarian hordes.

Celebration of the Sophomantic victory over the Barbarians.

The jubilation of the Sophomans because of the glorious feats of their warriors extended over many weeks. It culminated in a dancing festival which was held towards the end of April. The great hall of the palace was garlanded with wreaths of flowers, the floors were strewn with cornstarch, and the triumphant warriors appeared in their most gorgeous robes of state.

11. The feeling of joy was somewhat dampened by the preparations of their allies, the Seniorians, to set sail for the island of Alumnia. The Seniorians had been staunch friends and true allies of the Sophomans even in the era of their uncouth barbarism. The thought that new tribes would appear to take their place did little to console the Sophomans for their loss.

1. The reader will find a picturesque and glowing account of these contests in YE BARNARD BULLETIN of that year, where the subject of this paragraph is treated in a more extended manner.

In May, 1919, the Sophomans celebrated the termination of their second year on the continent of Barnard. The people gathered in great numbers at a feast arranged for them by the able Vice Regent, Eve Jacoby. Here they cheered their benevolent despot until the rafters of the old hall rang, and here they listened to the glorious deeds which they had performed as chronicled by their historian.

CHAPTER III

BARNARD OF TODAY.

12. The clan of 1922, now a republic under President E. Cahn, has become an established and important power upon the continent. Its physical pre-eminence is shown in the success of its contestants in all established sports. Education, which was formerly left to the grinds, has become one of the more important interests of the people. Civilization has reached a high level. The Ball of the Biltmore Palace with its regal splendor and courtly polish is the greatest single example of this advance. A revived interest in music and the drama has sprung up under the able leadership of Helen Mack, and Junior Show promises to be the dramatic achievement of the century. The musicians of this clan are among the best on the continent and carried off the laurels at the International Song Test. So numerous have the struggles of this hardy people been that the writers and artists of the country are busy chronicling them for the guidance of future generations. Of the success of MORTARBOARD—the history of 1922—only the future can tell.

Acknowledgments

The 1922 MORTARBOARD wishes to thank:

- Dean Gildersleeve for her friendly interest and her "In Memoriam" sketch.
Miss Doty, Miss Meyer, and Miss Bishop for their indispensable assistance.
Professor Baldwin for his valuable literary criticism and his "Greek Games Appreciation."
Mr. Henry M. Polhemus for his drawing of the Memorial Gateway frontispiece.
Mr. Willard and Mr. White for their unfailing courtesy and co-operation.
Miss Reiley and Mrs. Strauss for their generous help and advice in regard to the Endowment Drive and Alumnae matters.
Dean Douglas, Mrs. Laidlaw, Mrs. Miller, and Mrs. Parsons for their kind collaboration in the preparation of the Alumnae page.
Mr. H. M. Levin for his gift of Endowment Drive photographs.
Marjorie Marks, '21, and the rest of her Board for editorial counsel.
Donah Lithauer for working as Subscription Manager after the resignation of E. Wetterer.
Those members of the class, and F. Omeis, '20, L. Sternberg, '20, R. Shaw, '23, and N. Jacob, '24, who handed in snapshots.
Those members of the class who secured advertisements.
Those members of the class who submitted literary contributions.
Those members of the class who submitted drawings, especially J. Dewey, M. Durgin, Helen Frankenstein, E. Hutchison, L. North, and M. Talley, who worked faithfully with the Art Board.
Those members of the class who by their quiet and untiring service in doing errands, type-writing, or other prosaic work, made the publication of MORTARBOARD possible.

Was She Right?

ONCE upon a time there was a college graduate. She was much the same as many other graduates, they all have certain general characteristics—youth with its clear skinned beauty and snappy lines, a tendency to be radical, divine discontent with existing institutions.

Life was before her; college behind her, but still clinging to her garments. What career should she choose? Society? No, that was too shallow. Business? Perhaps if she needed the money, even then there would be many spare moments. Politics? Why yes, why not?

What were the arguments in favor of this? Would it fit into her scheme of life? Could it stand the test of a few searching questions?

1st. To serve one's country: Yes, the election of honest, upright government officials.

2nd. To care for the sick and needy: Yes, City institutions, asylums, hospitals.

3rd. Preparations for a future home: Municipal housekeeping, cheap markets, clean streets.

4th. The spread of knowledge: Public schools and colleges.

Should she begin by joining her local political club? A good idea, but as yet, she did not know whether she was a Republican, Democrat, Socialist, Bolshevist, or Red. What a dilemma! Brilliant thought! Why not join the League of Women Voters to gain non-partisan political knowledge for one dollar a year.

The last seen of our college graduate she was dashing into the League headquarters at 37 West 39th Street, which is a haven for young women with progressive ideas.

Beauty Durability Refinement

In RUGS and CARPETS
is typified by the word

BIGELOW

The Nestlé Permanent Hair Wave

Not the beauty of Nestlé-waved hair, (that is so obvious!), but its comfort is what you will want to know.

In the first place, Nestlé-waved hair is always healthy hair. No harm can result from Nestlé's process, for at Nestlé's only experts give the wave.

Second: think of rising in the morning with wavy hair, coiffing it quickly, easily, becomingly; racing through your thousand daily activities — classes, dances, tennis, hikes, always conscious that your hair looks well-groomed. No stringy strands, no straggly ends. At night, your hair is still wavy, and still wavy day after day, and month after month.

In short, Nestlé-waved hair offers you the blessing of naturally-wavy hair.

Fifteen years of the public's confidence is our record and guarantee.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

While we do not sell women's clothing, it is our experience that there is, on the part of many women, especially those interested in sport, a growing tendency to purchase from us for their own use Motor Coats, Sweaters, Wool Caps, Waistcoats, Gloves, Mufflers, Boots, Leggings, Puttees, etc. liking these articles all the more apparently because, as distinct from being "mannish," they are the very things that are worn by men.

To College Students:

Now is the time to begin thinking about next year. Your college education is a splendid foundation for special training. You ought to utilize it to the utmost. You possess a decided advantage over those who have not attended college---all you need is the specializing work of a practical finishing school to put you in the class of trained men and women (10% of all of the people.)

Business is today one of the leading avocations. You can enter that field well up the ladder of success by first taking a preparatory course in the Miller School. This is a much shorter course than is that of "taking a chance" of working up. This would mean years of drudgery at small pay. Think this over.

The Miller School is now and always has been a leader. It was one of the very first schools in America to adopt Gregg Shorthand, now so popular all over the world; it was the first school in or about New York to teach touch typewriting; it was the first school in or about New York to install a "Model Office" finishing system. There are many other points of leadership in the Miller School. Send for a bulletin of our courses. Find out just what this modern system of training can do for you. Write now for the desired information.
