BARNARD COLLEGE

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY • NEW YORK CITY

Dedication

To Dwight David Eisenhower, the thirteenth President of Columbia University, we respectfully dedicate the 1950 Mortarboard.

The newly installed president.

The Dean welcomes an honored guest to Barnard Hall.

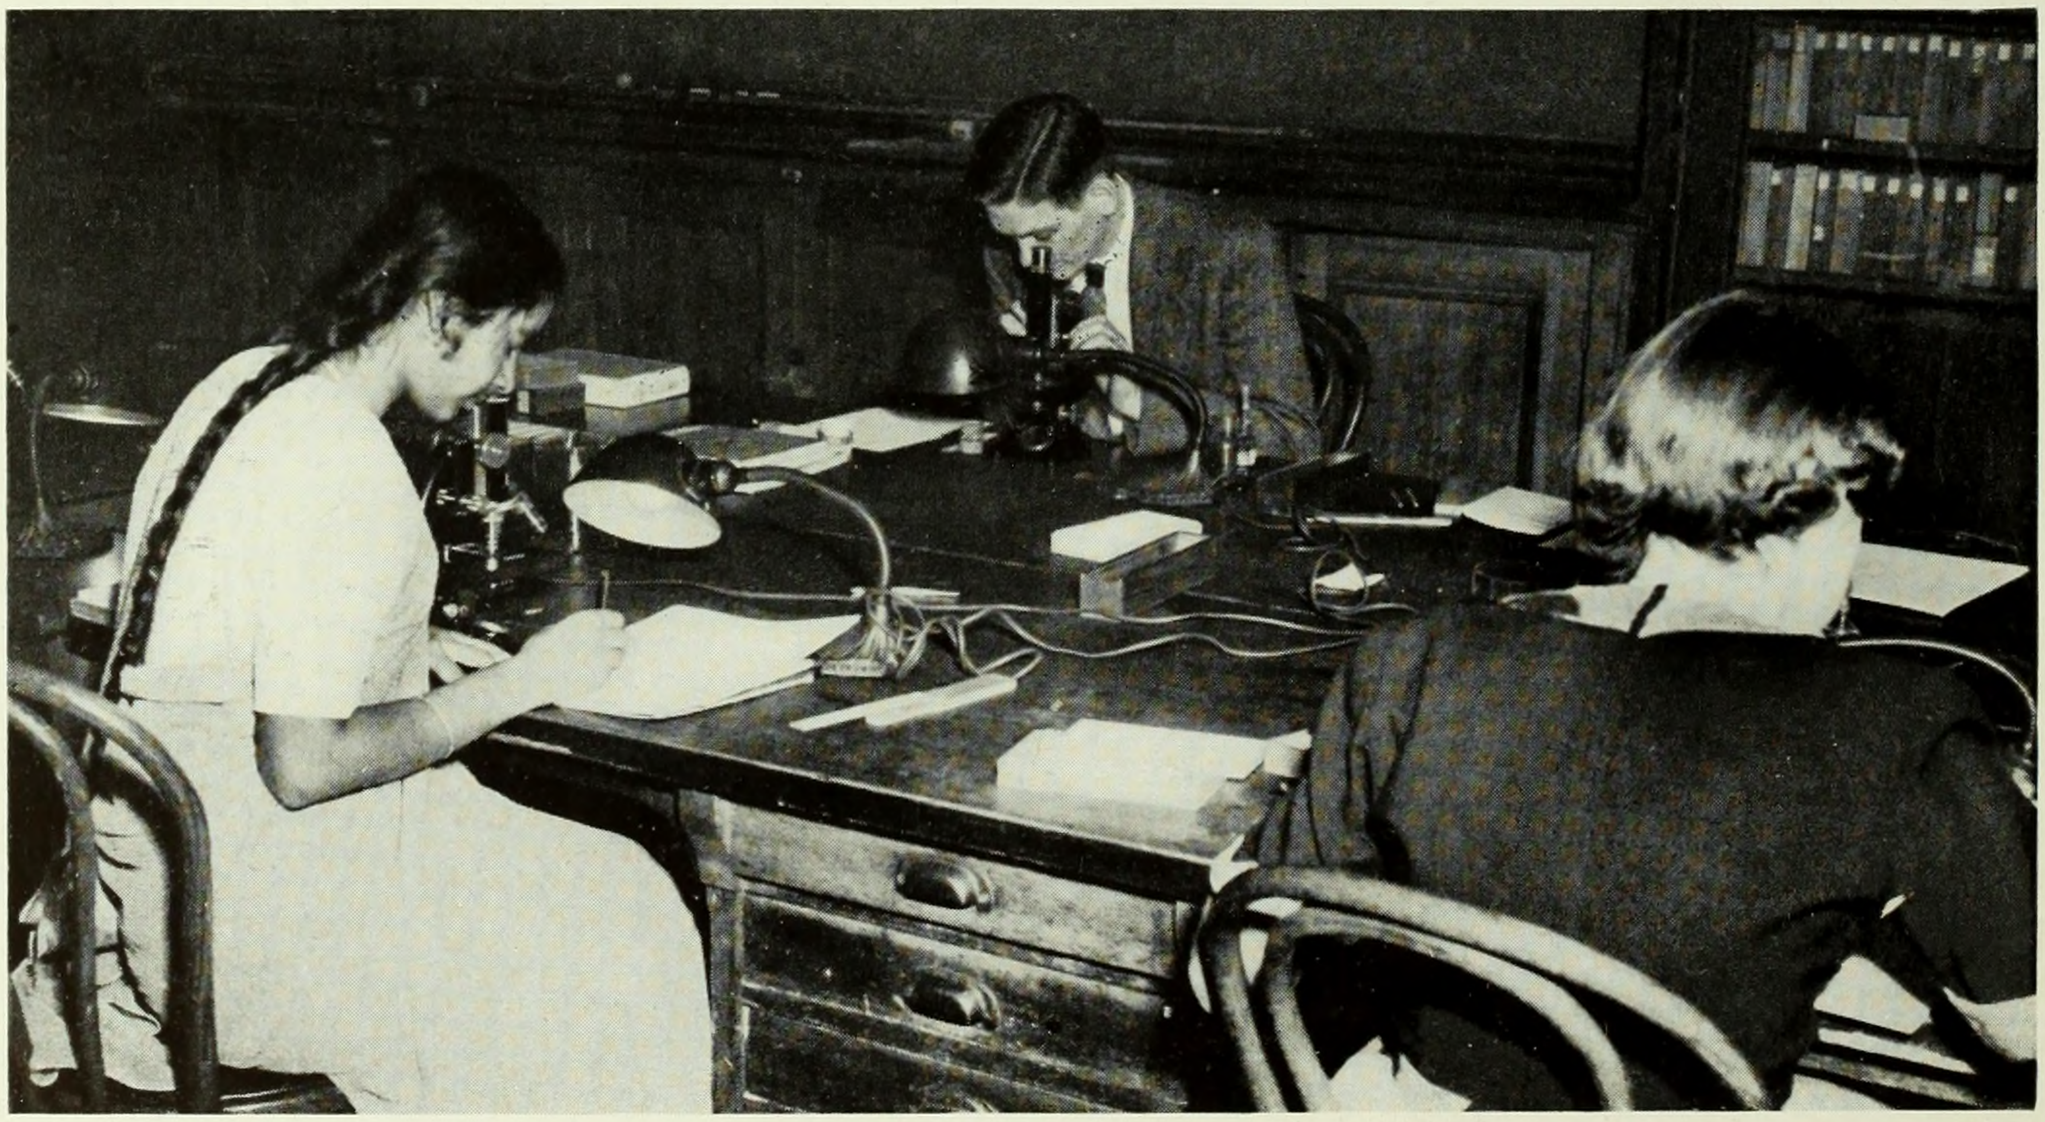
Classes . . . . . .

From nine in the morning till five (or even six) in the afternoon and sometimes on Saturdays, our time is primarily taken up with classes. As we look back on college twenty years from now, our most vivid memories will be the lectures when our pen ran dry in the middle of the Crimean War, those frantic battles with the law of gravity in lab, and the seminars where we settled all the problems which ever disturbed Marx and Milton, Freud and Aristotle.

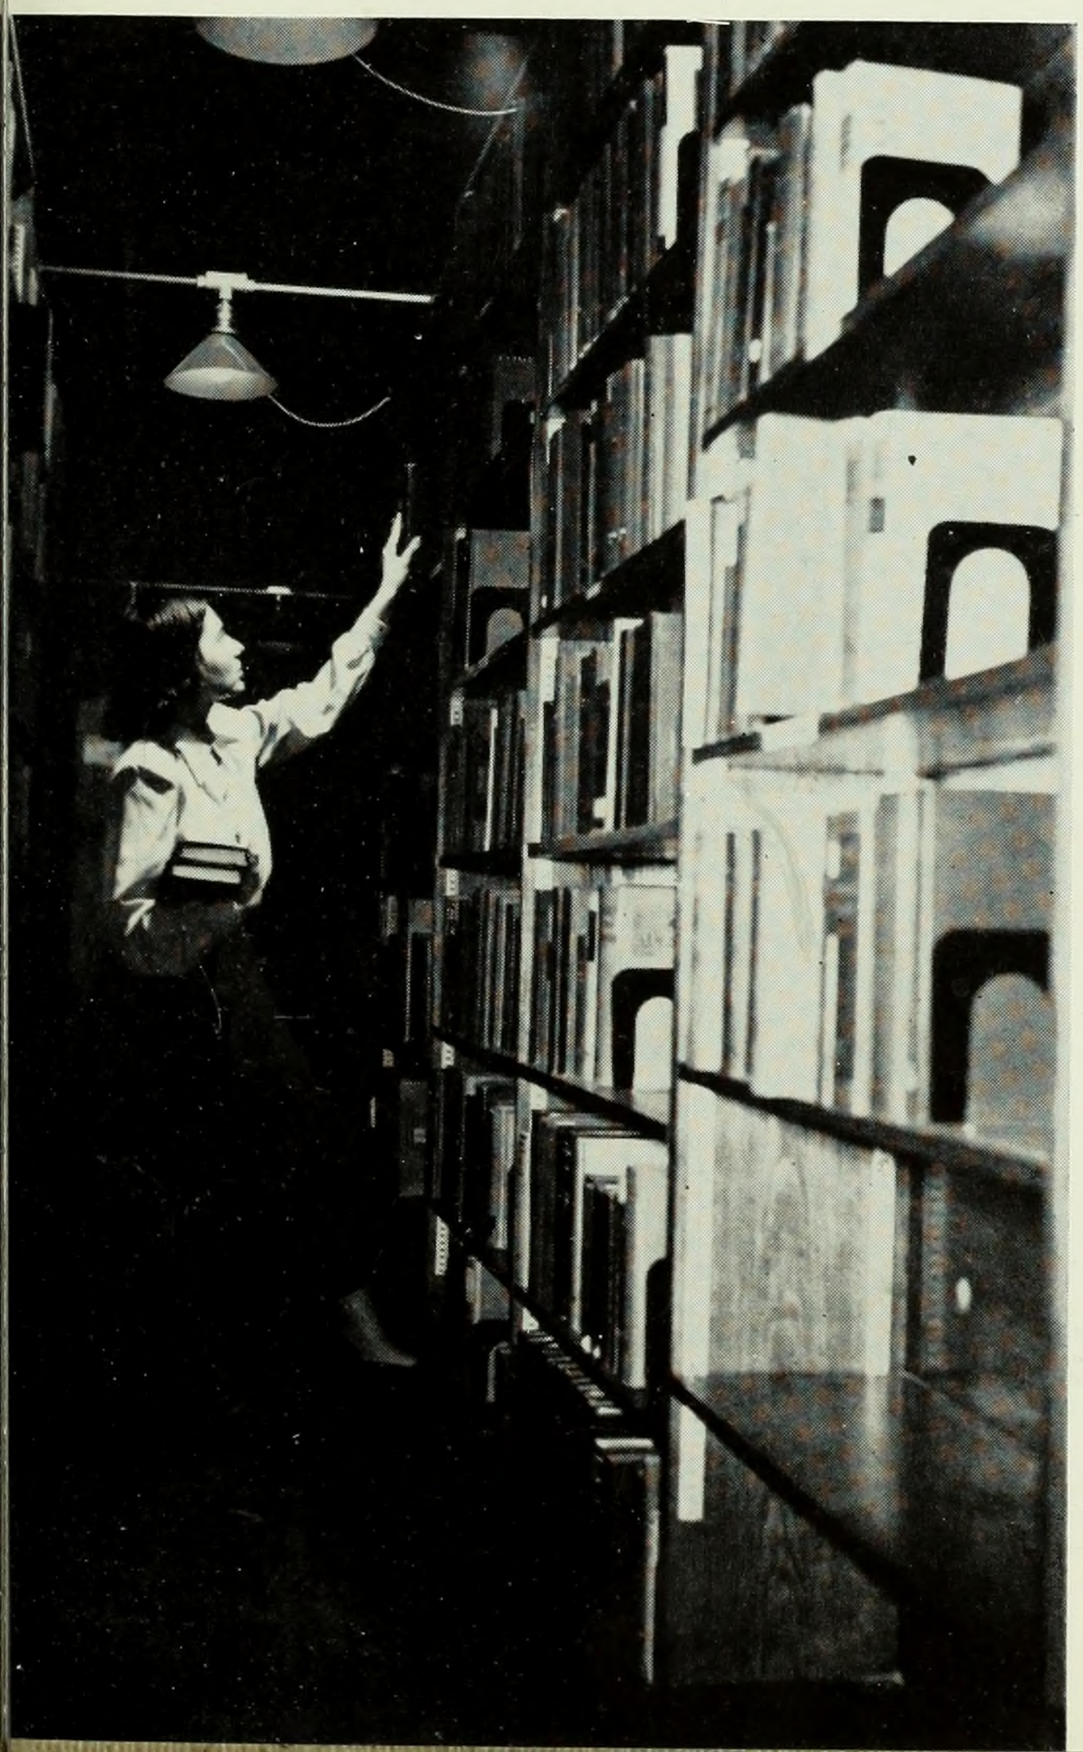
Professor Boorse.

The scientific method.



The classic and the casual.

"Many a quaint and curious volume . . ."

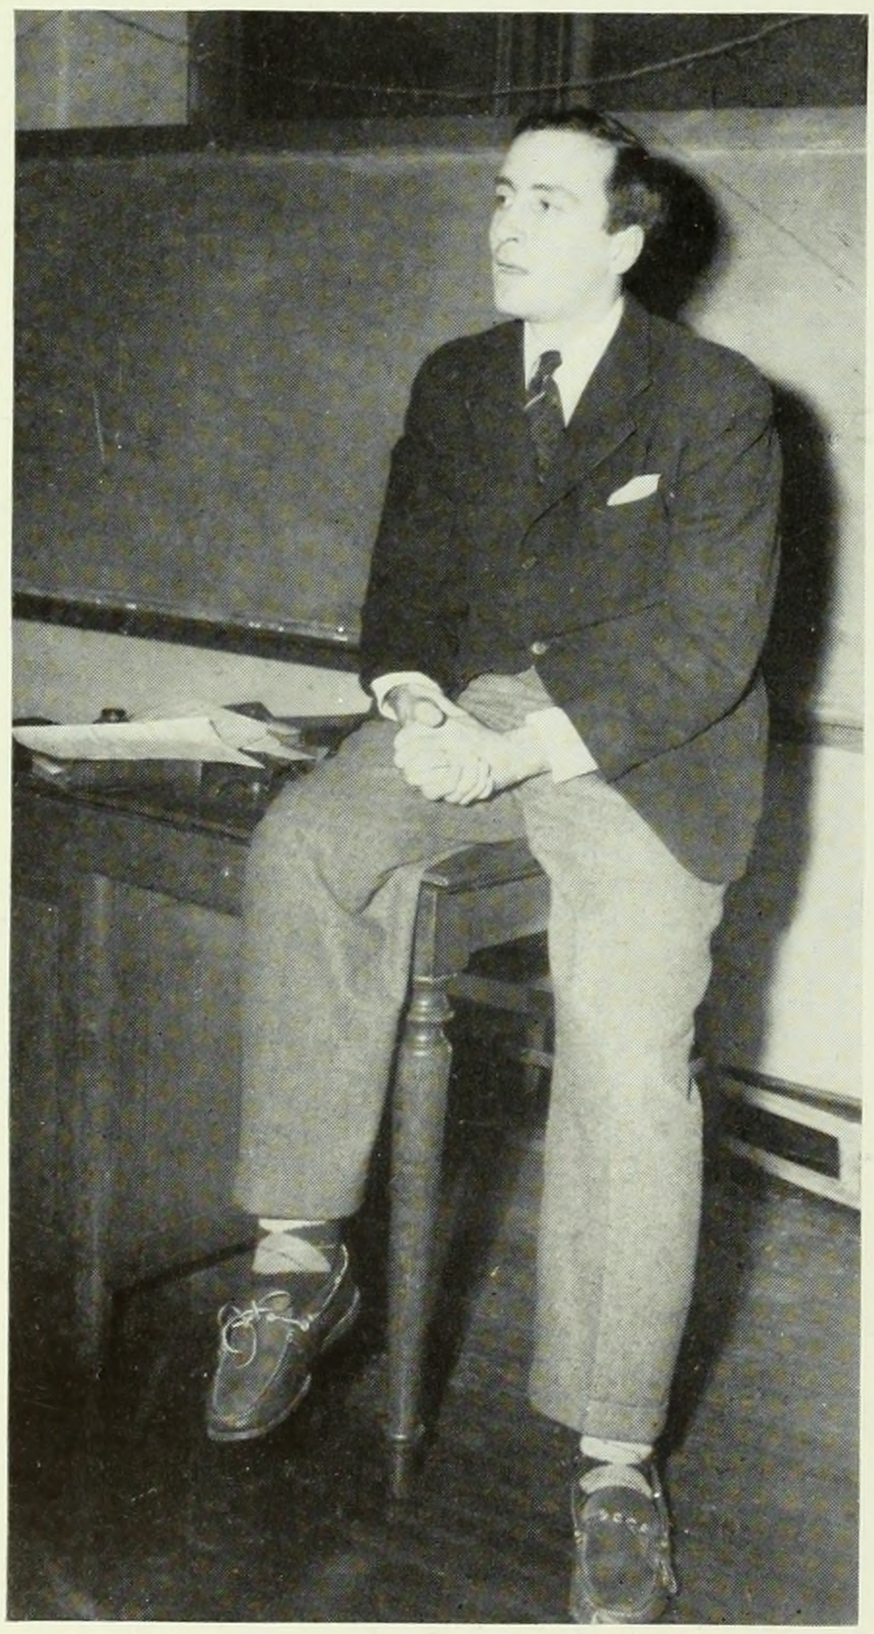


"A little learning . . ."

Faculty . . . . . .

Against a setting of blackboards and bluebooks are to be found our faculty, upon whom, in the long run, the real worth of our curriculum depends.

Professor Robertson—"He was a scholar . . . exceeding wise, fair spoken, and persuading."



Professor Kouwenhoven—"Good job, but . . ."

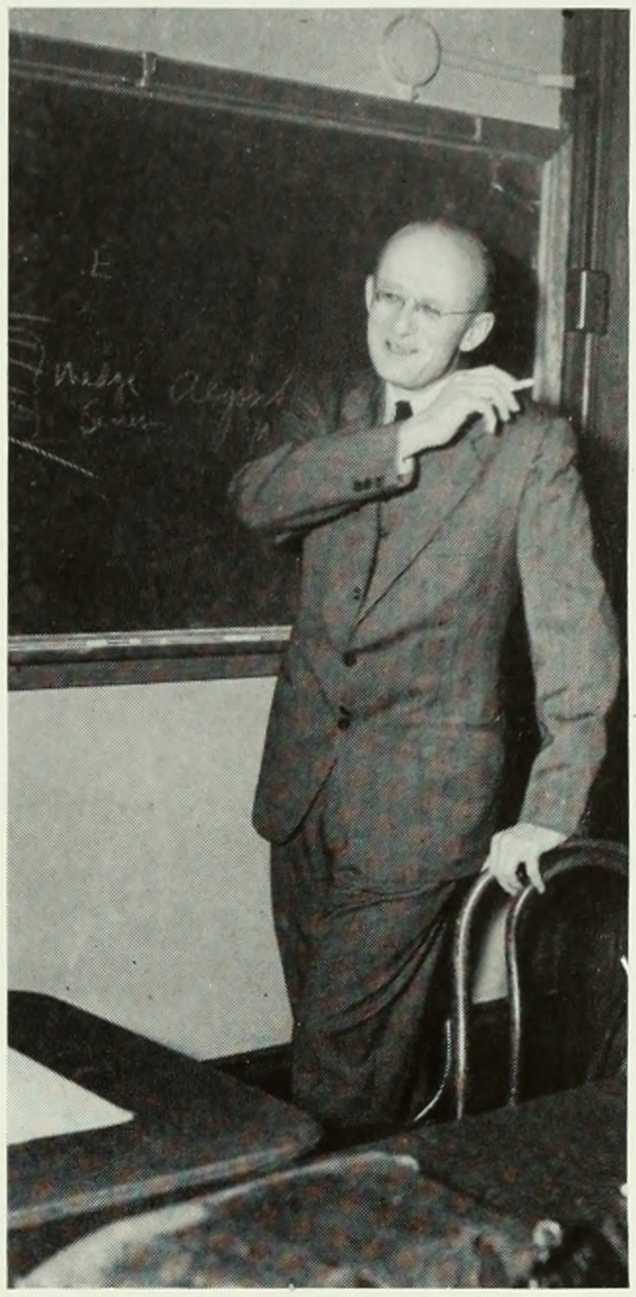
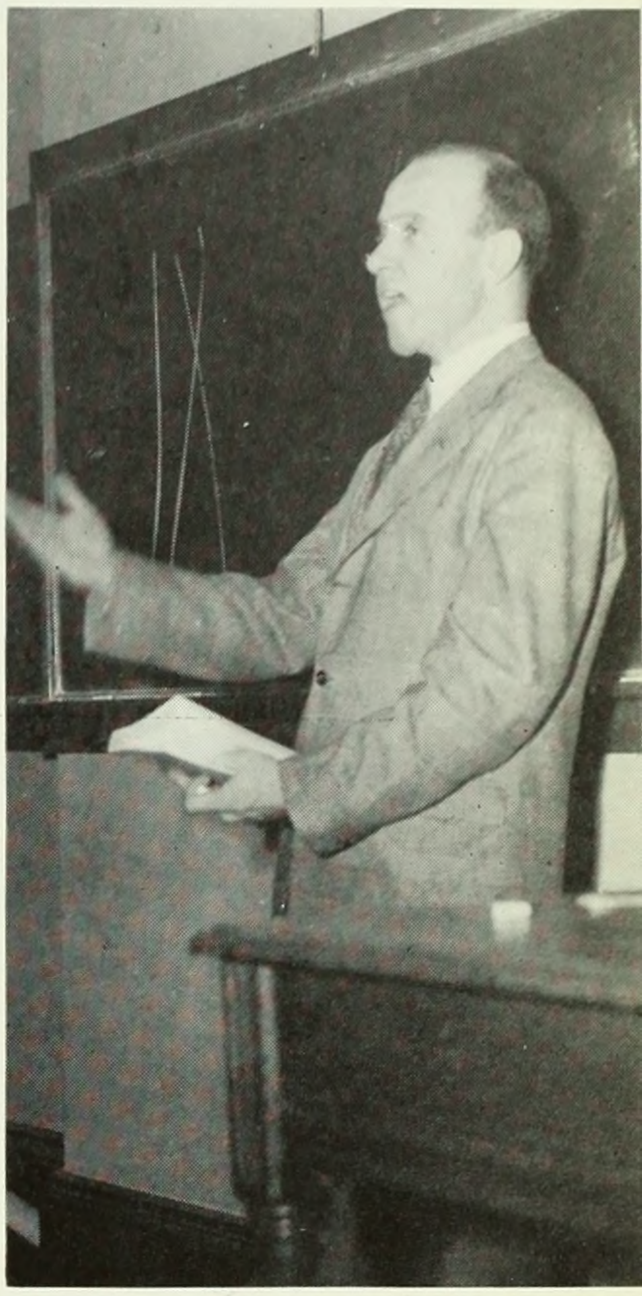
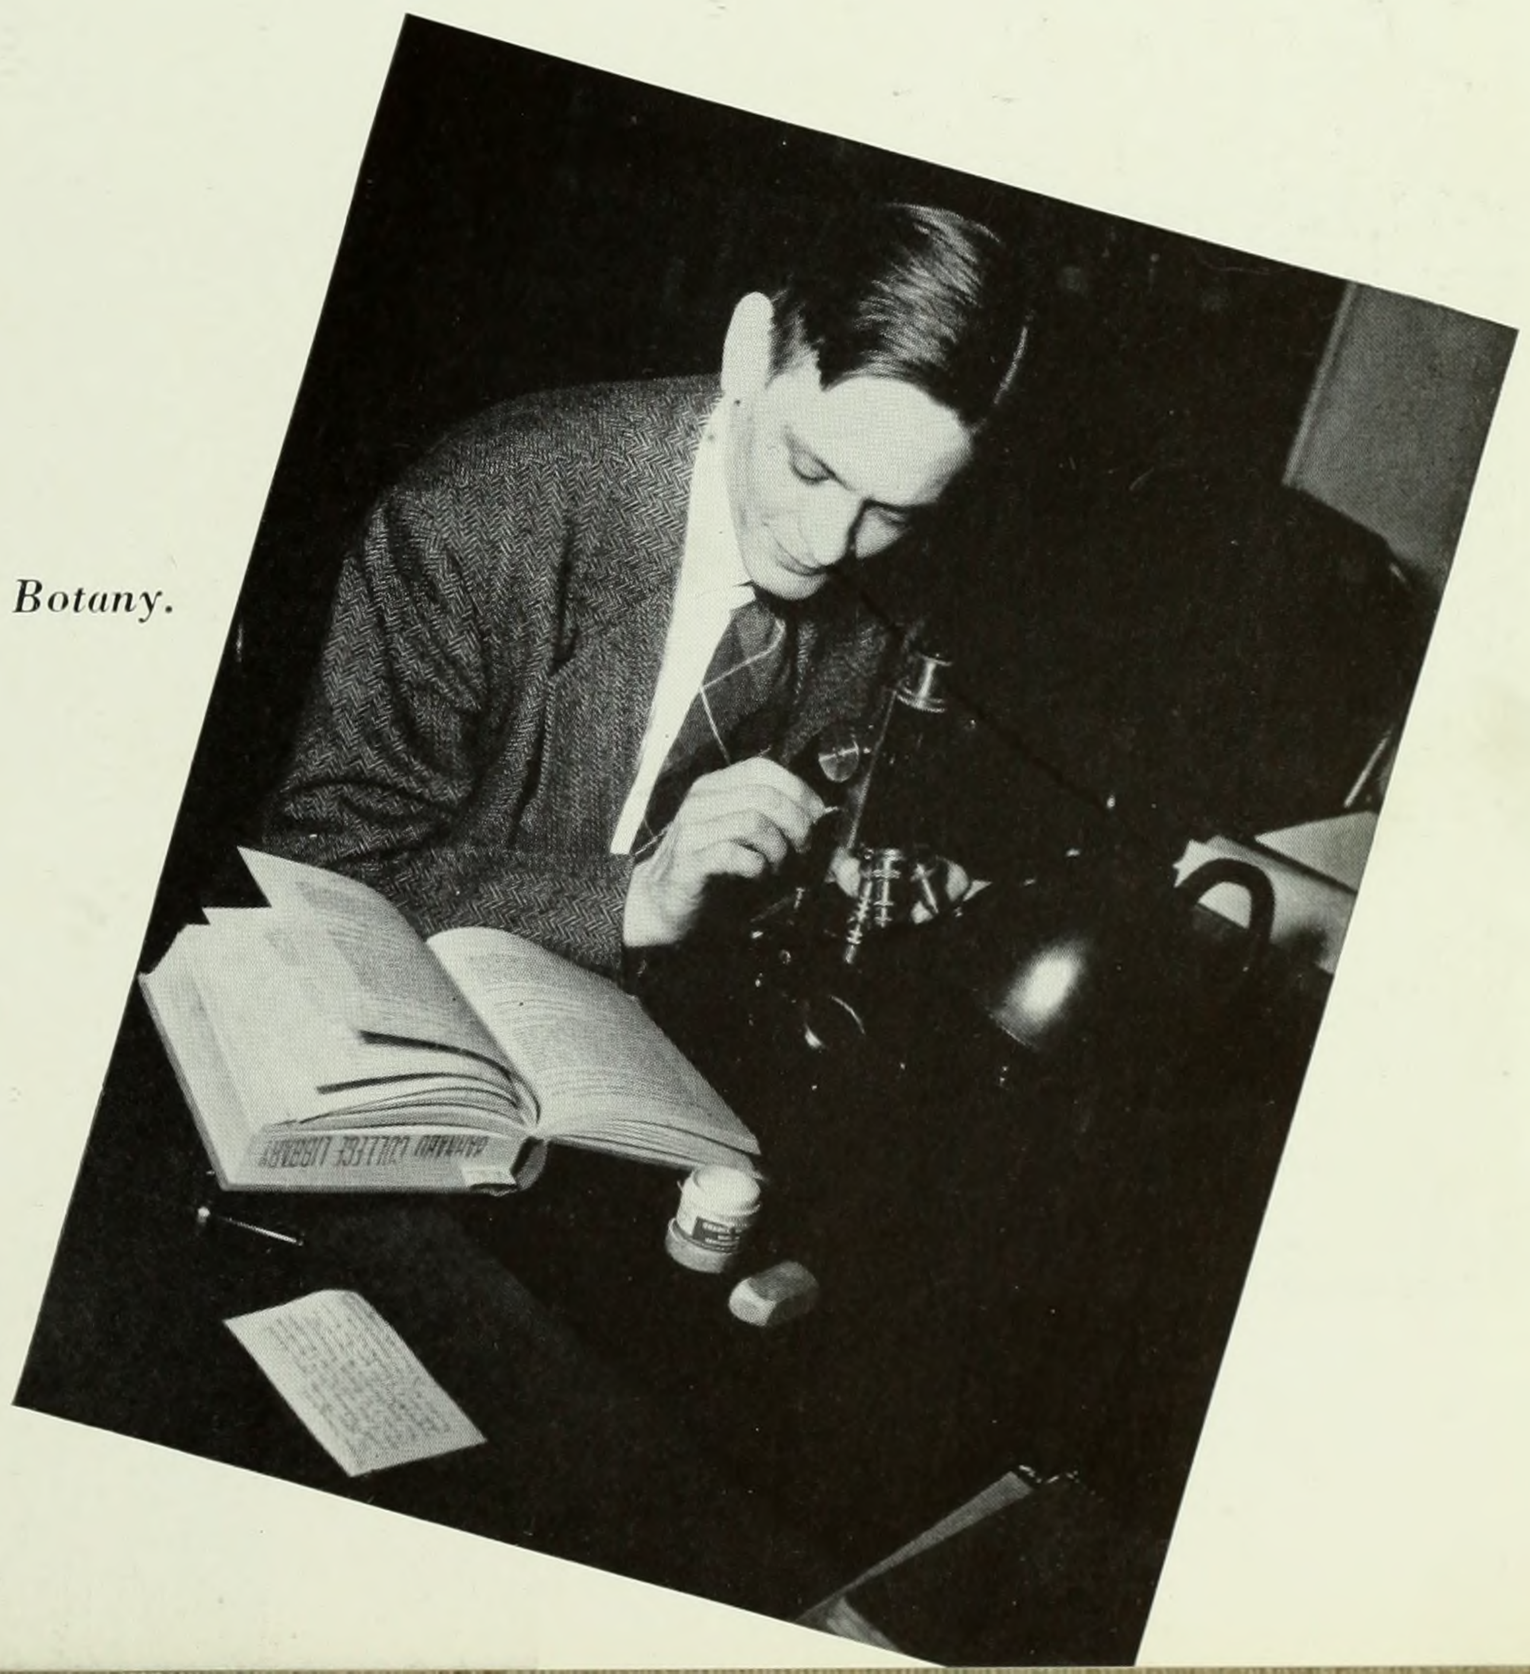
Professor Peardon—a well foot-noted mind.
Attentive—Professor Florit.





Professor Sharp—Of rocks and glaciation.
Professor Williamson. "Yet, however . . ."

Mr. Larsen—Genus: Professor of Botany.



First junior editor—Ruth Aney.

Bulletin Business Board—It all adds up to Elizabeth Hayman, Promotion Manager; June Stein, Advertising Manager.

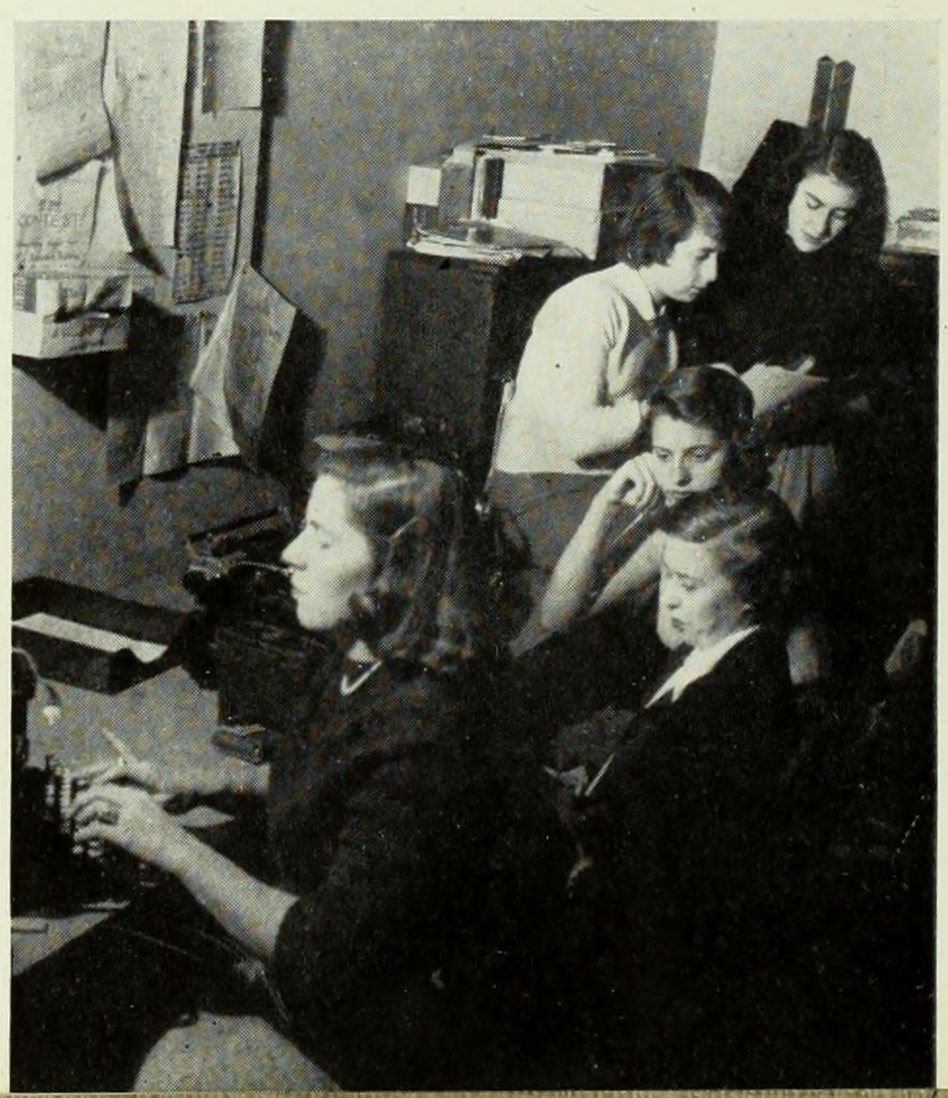
Bulletin . . . . . .

Twice a week copy flies and typewriters rattle in Bulletin's smoke-filled office. While managing editors distractedly sort through club notices and the business manager attempts to placate advertisers by telephone, the staff members wage their eternal battle with the headline.

"Nice layout . . ." Part of the Bulletin Managing Board—Myra Koh, Marlies Wolf, Esther Mendelsohn, Ruth Aney.

It's not all scoops and glamour—Staff Members.



Freshman Adviser—Professor Rich

Counsel to the seniors—Dr. Eliot

When enrollment cards are to be filled out in triplicate, when we have problems academic or otherwise, we turn to our class advisers whose office hours and patience are long enough to accommodate us all.

Monday noon at Rep Assembly.

Rep assembly

Whether or not there will be a rise in student activities fee, what is to be Barnard's policy with regard to the National Students' Association, is determined by Representative Assembly where delegates from each class gather to weigh and discuss important issues facing the undergraduates.

1949. Mary Sultzer, Lois Brean, Peggy Friend, Harriet Tolley.

School officers

We elect class officers annually, by democratic and parliamentary processes, to conduct class business and represent us at our best in relations with other classes and outside groups.

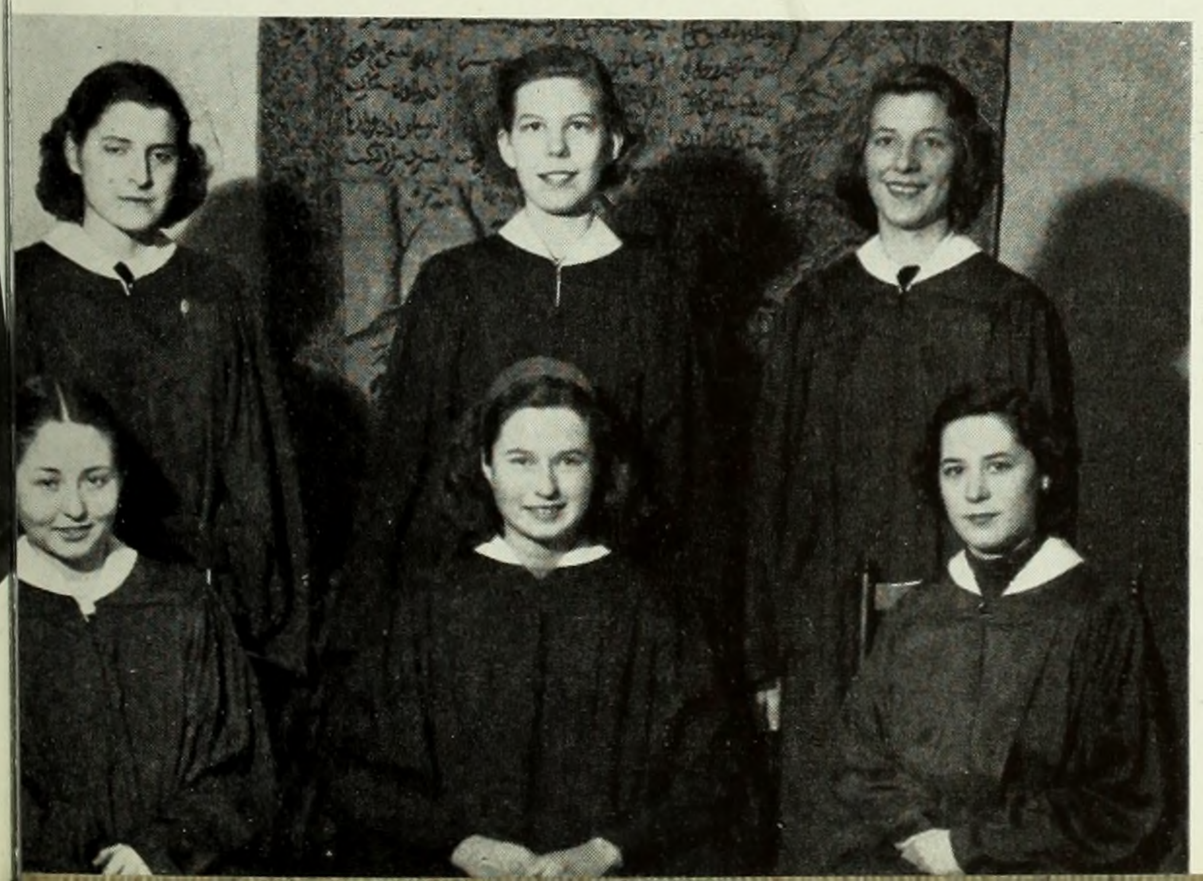
Council, are responsible for seeing that midnight fire drills run smoothly . . . There is considerable sympathy under the formidable exterior of the black-robed senior proctor, who patrols the halls during exams or decides what shall be the fate of a soph who consistently misses class meetings . . . Honor Board is the bulwark of Barnard's Honor System, seeing that reported instances of dishonesty are thoroughly investigated, hearing every side of a case, and above all seeking to improve the system according to the desires of the student body.

Bambi Elliott and the members of Honor Board help demonstrate the merits of the Honor System at Barnard.



Sunday morning funny-papers.

Senior Proctors watch the ballot boxes and help students cast their votes for undergraduate officers.

Curriculum Committee. They ponder the necessity of English A and Hygiene.

With academic changes in the offing, Curriculum Committee has taken on new importance this year. It holds open meetings, distributes questionnaires, and works with the faculty in order to bring our ideas on what we want to study out of the hallways into the classrooms . . .

Eligibility

Eligibility watches to see that none of us takes on more than our share of extra-curric.

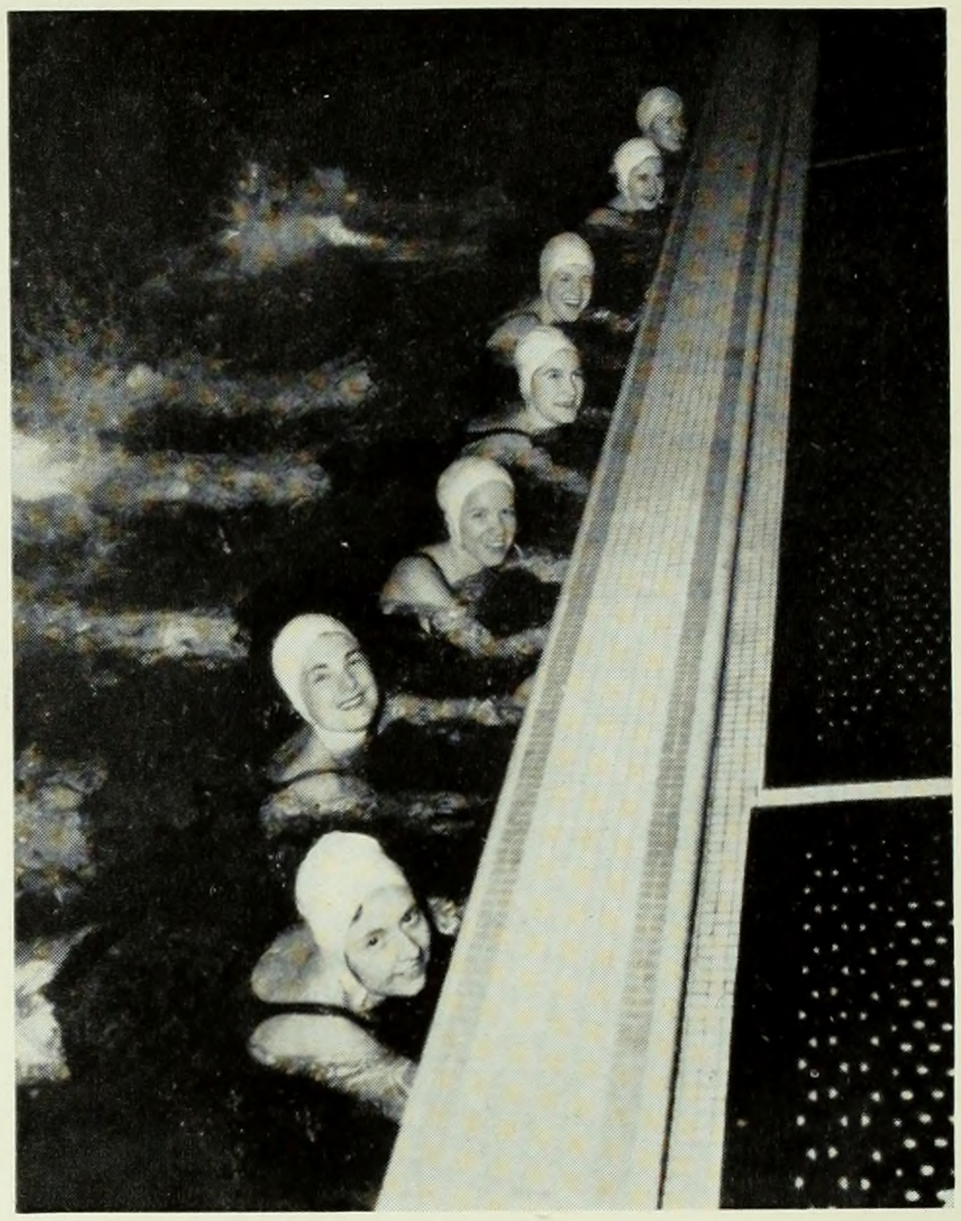
Extra-curricular chat—Barnard Hall.

"Meet me on Jake."

The hub of Barnard extra-curricular activity is "on Jake," where are to be found, at any given time, scores of Barnardites collecting student mail, conducting political campaigns, or buying bids for the "Harvest Hop".

A helping hand.



Roll call in Barnard Pool.

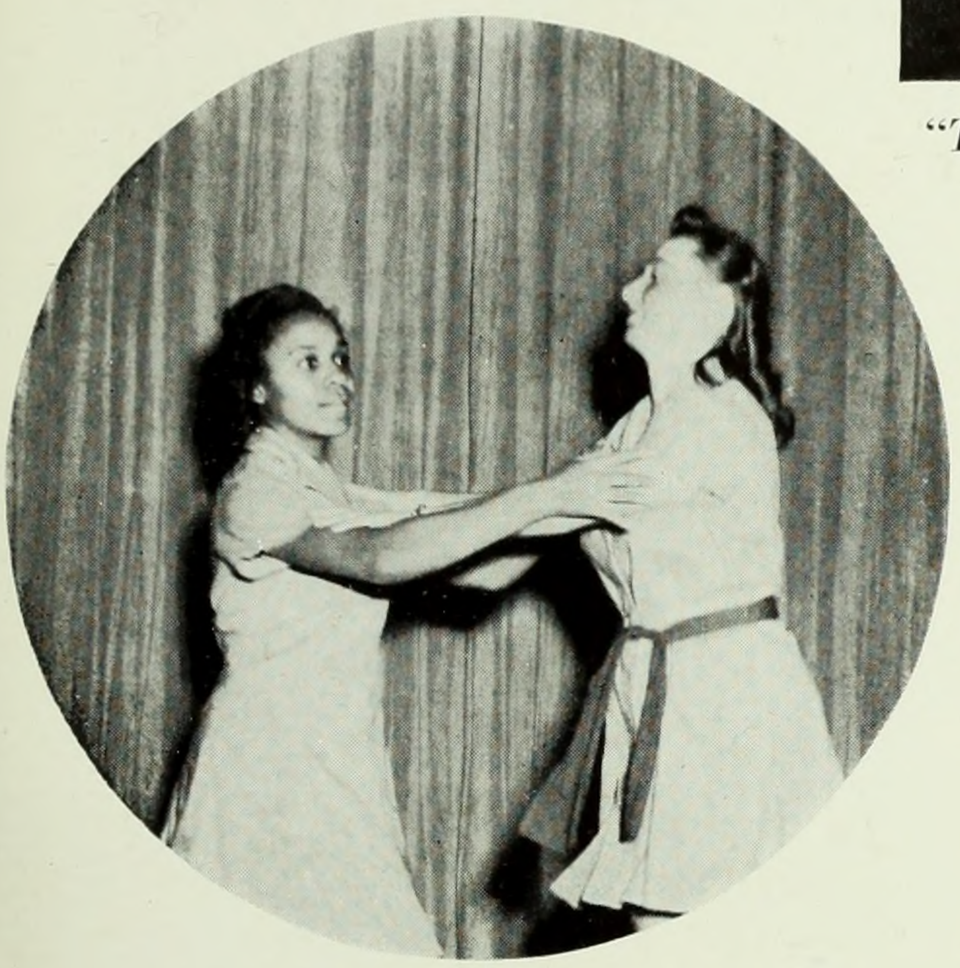
Gym

The Phys. Ed. department sees to it that while we New Yorkers absorb the sophistication and culture of the city, we remain as healthy as our country sisters.

"Up, up . . . and leave your books."

Tennis—perennially popular at Barnard.

"That this too too solid flesh would melt . . . " conditioning exercises in the gym.



"Swing your partner."

A. A.

Should spirit begin to lag in the regular gym classes, A.A. knows how to rouse it again with an interclass competition, a water ballet, or even a lively game of volley ball with the gentlemen across the street.

Ready, Aim, Fire!—A.A. Carnival Booth.

Wood smoke and autumn leaves—Fall Barbecue.

Barnard camp

For those of us who long to exchange wooded wilds for city pavements, Barnard Camp offers the pioneer life. Running water has replaced the outdoor pump, but campers still stoke the stove and cook their own meals. Skiing in winter, hiking in the fall and spring, or relaxing before an open fire are welcome diversions from academic routine.

"M-mmmm!"

A change from dormitory diet.

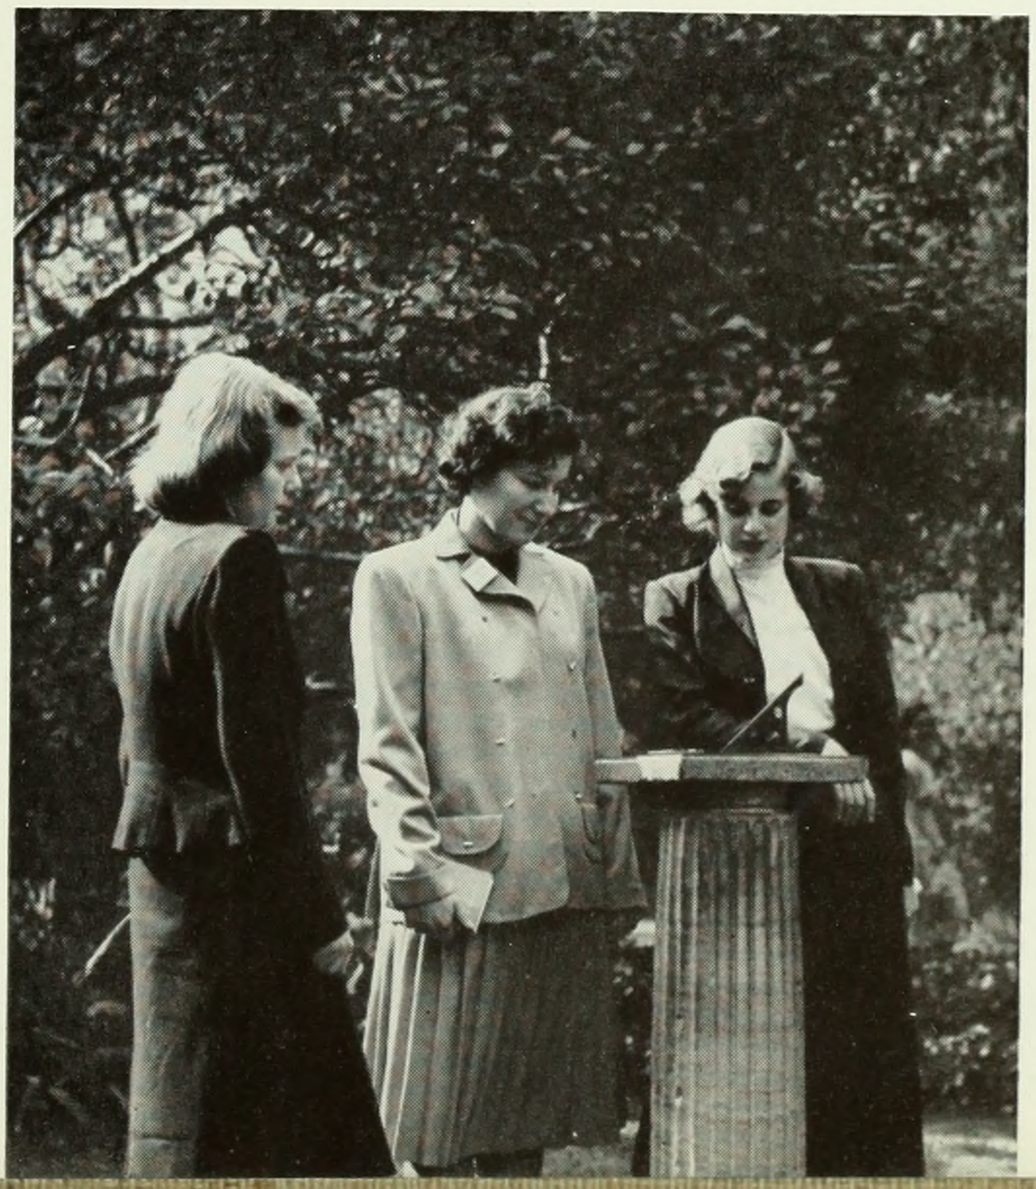
"After dinner" talk.

They stoop to conquer.

Dramatic intrigue.

Dramatics

Wigs and Cues curtain time—and another chance for our future Sara Bernhardts to cut their dramatic teeth. Nights have been spent in frantic rehearsal and days in learning scripts at the expense of history notes. When the lights dim, Brinckerhoff is packed, and Wigs and Cues always manages to come through with a play well worth the time and effort.



Passing the Time of Day.

Political consciousness was awakened among the student body this fall by a heated debate, sponsored by Political Council between a Democrat, a Republican, and a Progressive. With elections over, it turned its energies to the second annual intercollegiate conference at Barnard and to a series of town meetings and forums where were discussed current political issues.

Barnard frequents these two spots:

The cafeteria and "Chock-full."

Time not spent in classes or at the library is used to good advantage by lunching in the cafeteria, playing a hand of bridge in the smoker, or relaxing over afternoon coffee at Tilson's or Chock-full.

On campus

Some of our extra-curricular activities are to a large degree influenced by the men in our lives. On campus, the social committee plans coffee dances and balls. Off campus, New York welcomes us to its cafes, theatres, museums and parties.

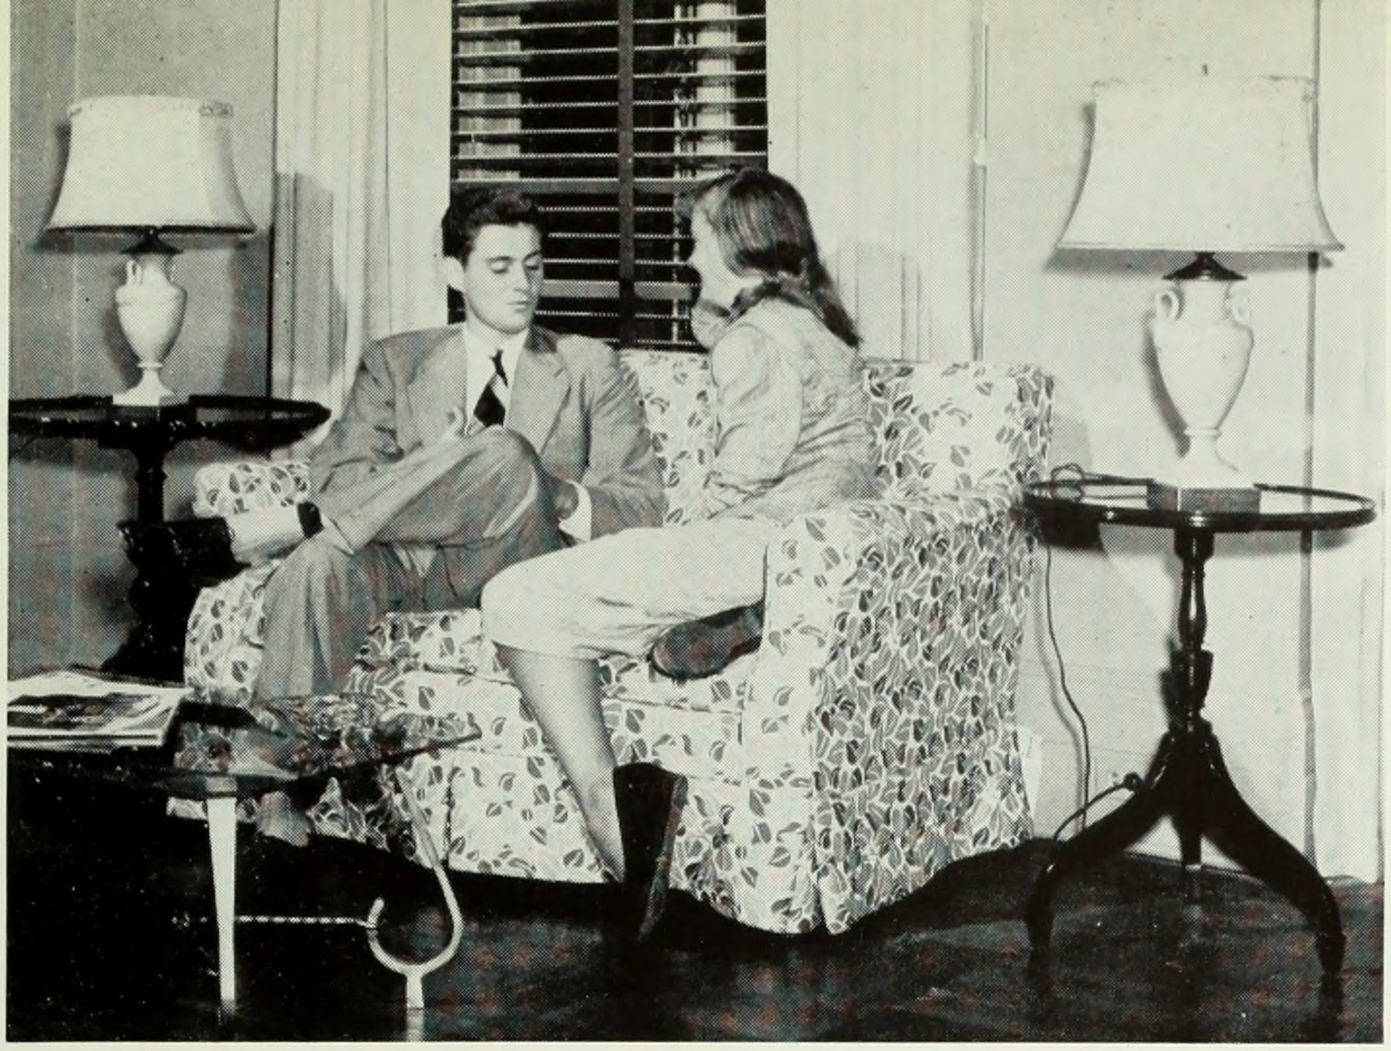
"Won't you sit this one out with me?"



The new decorations in the beau parlors attract welcome visitors.

Winter and Summer, the Barnard Hall steps are part of gala evenings.

We have wove

...the fabric of our lives....

The fame of '50 will outlive the ages,
Our talents left you speechless with surprise,
And so we wrote our history on these pages;
(We feared you might forget it otherwise!).

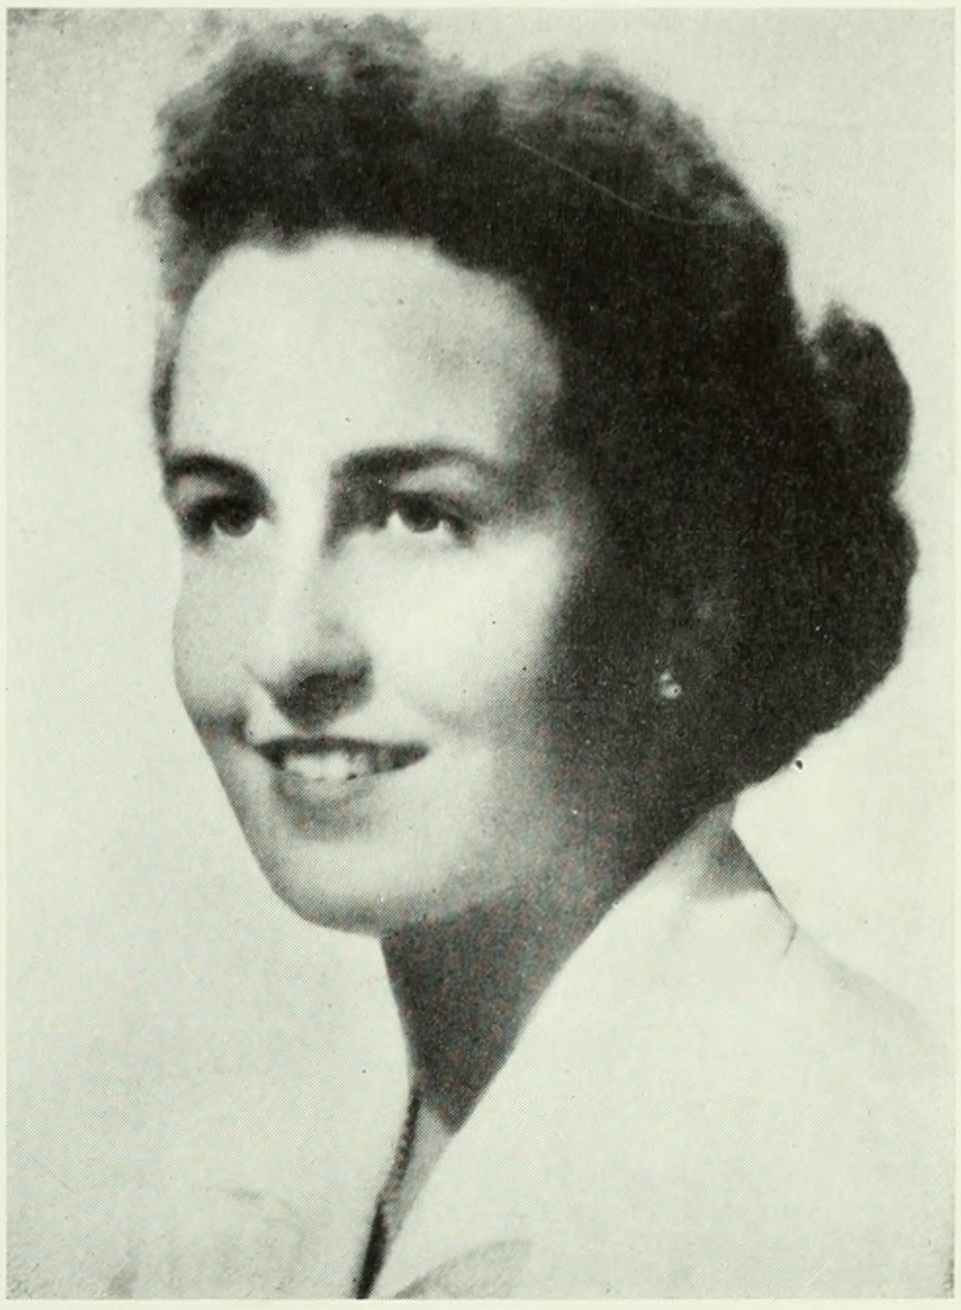
MORTARBOARD
1950

MEMORIAL to



Harriet Mandell

In the spring of 1947, Harriet Mandell was chosen president of the sophomore class, the class of 1950. Three months later we learned of her tragic death.

We remember Hattsie for many things. . . .

We remember her conducting our meetings in cap and gown, her mortarboard sliding off the back of her head. . . .

We remember her striding across campus in blue jeans and white shirt. . . .

We remember her rolling the hoop in Greek Games. . . .

We remember her in class, peering over spectacles which had slipped to the end of her nose. . . .

We remember the qualities which won her the admiration and affection of all those who knew her, and we remember that she was a good friend.

Into a Pattern of tradition . . . . .

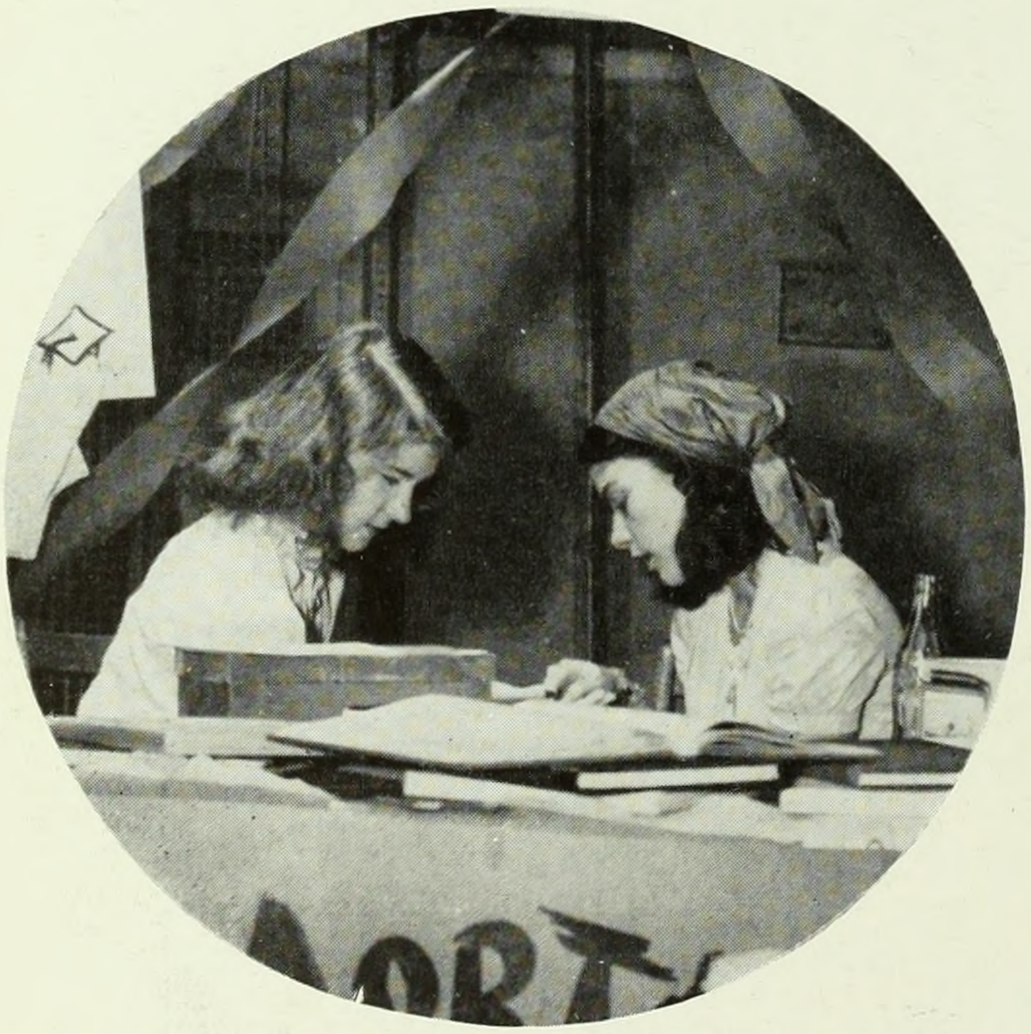
. . . . . .

"Take several."—Transfer Tea.

Freshman orientation week

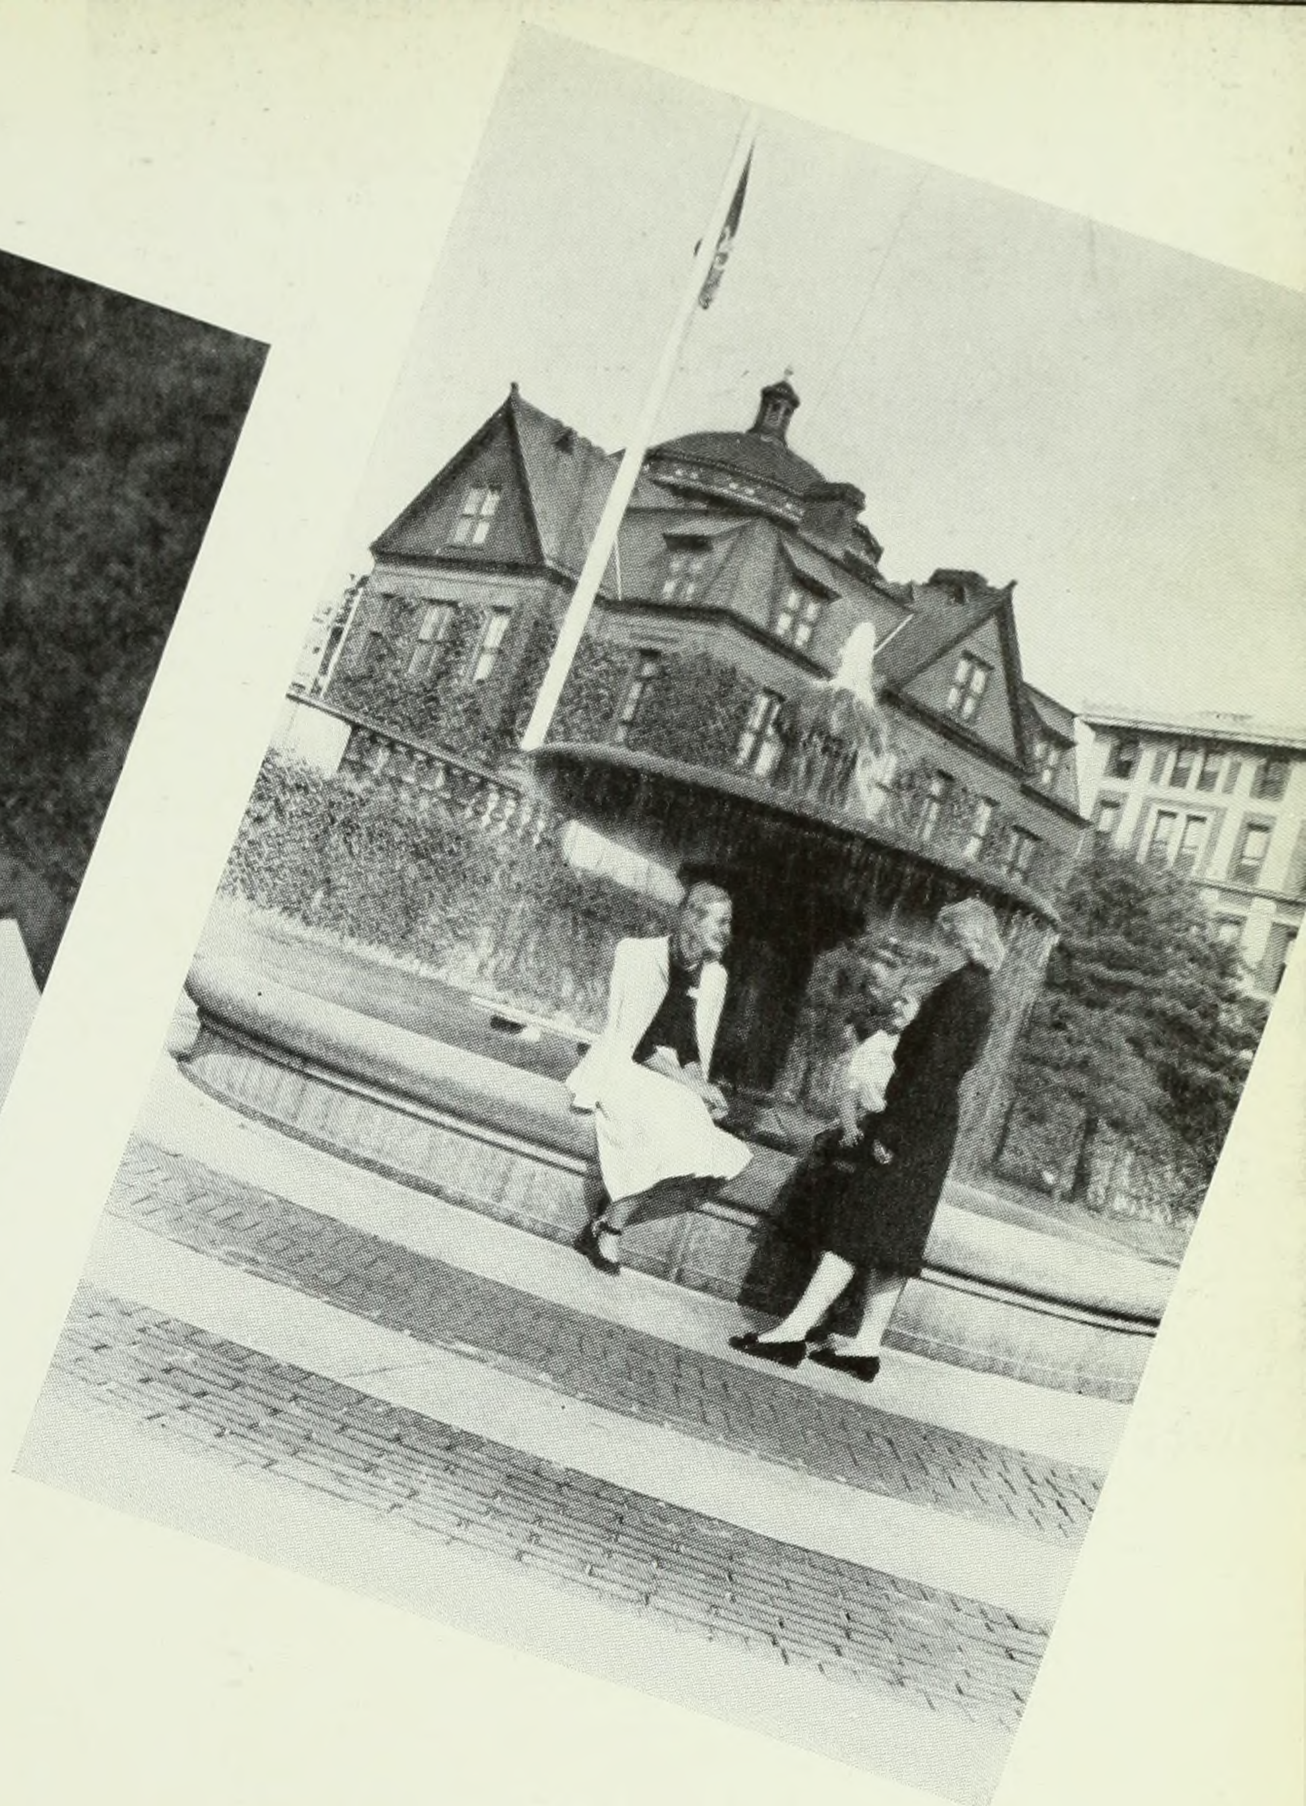
Remembering our feelings as bewildered freshmen, we decided to welcome our class of '52 with a rousing orientation program. Brooks and Hewitt were startled out of long tradition by an invasion of commuters. Each new arrival was taken in hand, labelled, and whisked off for an instructive tour of the campus by an upperclass sponsor. For those who were acquainted with New York by post card only, there were sight-seeing jaunts around the city. Luncheons and teas completed the program, and by the time classes began most freshmen were initiated Barnardites who knew each other by sight if not by name.



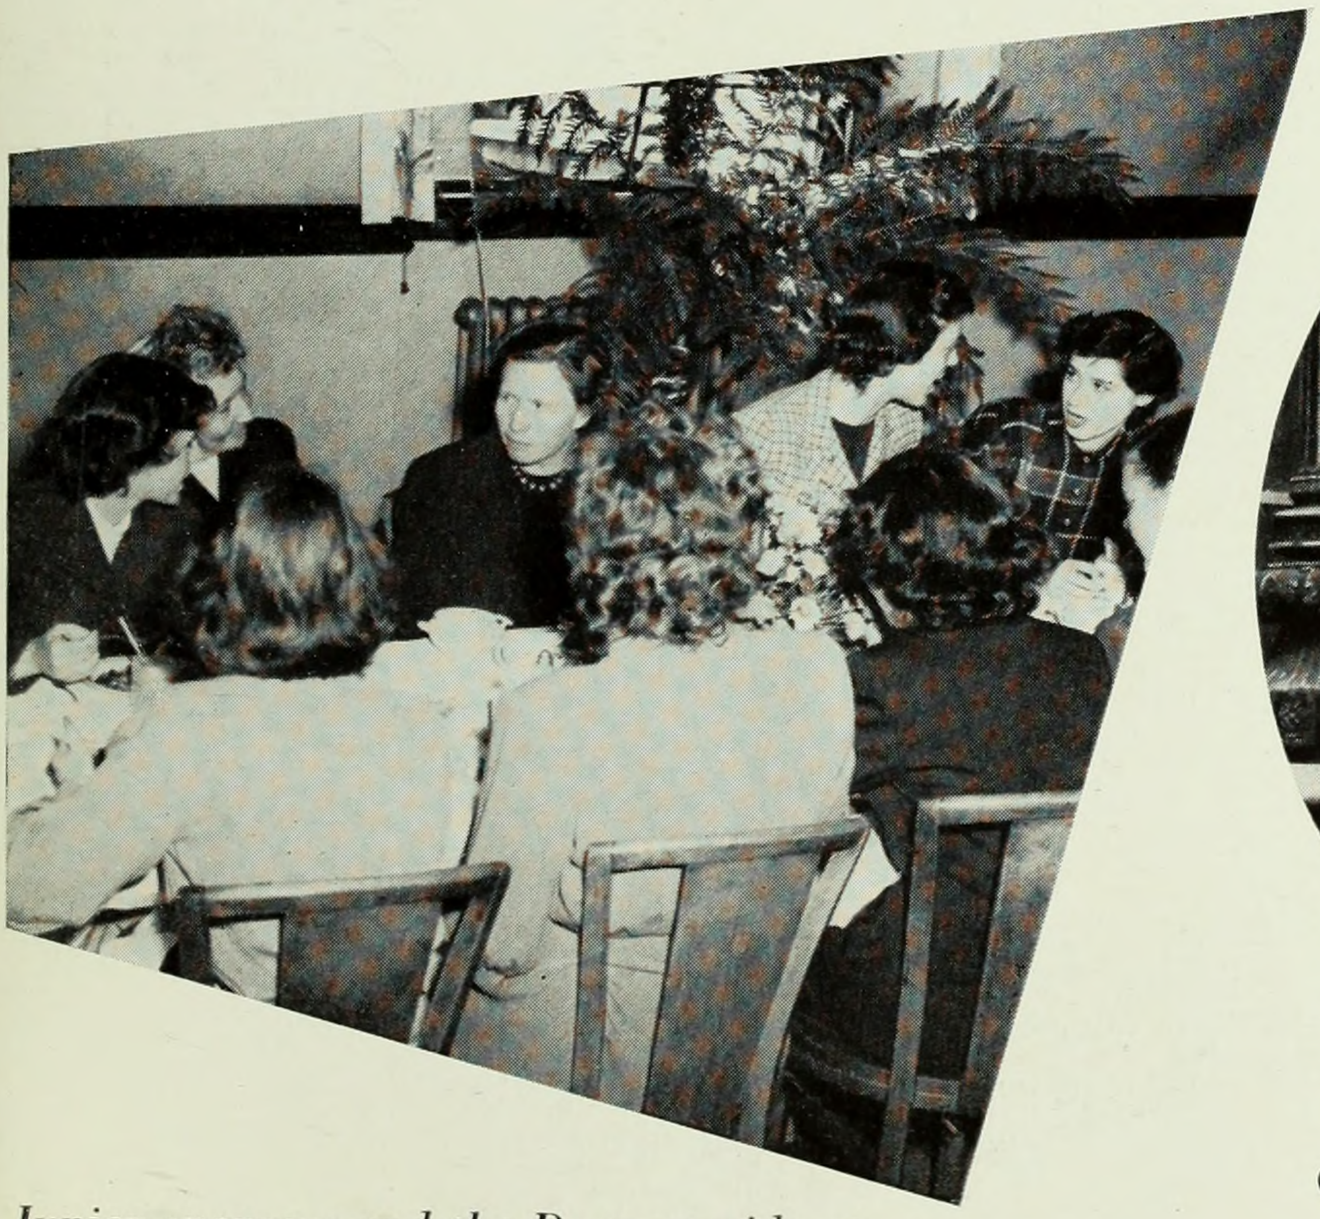
Carnival—introduction to extra-curric.

"Name tag, room key—sign here!"

North Lawn Snack Bar.



Sight seeing begins across the street.



Junior sponsors and the Dean preside at the Freshman Lunchon.

Getting acquainted on the Hewitt Hall Porch.

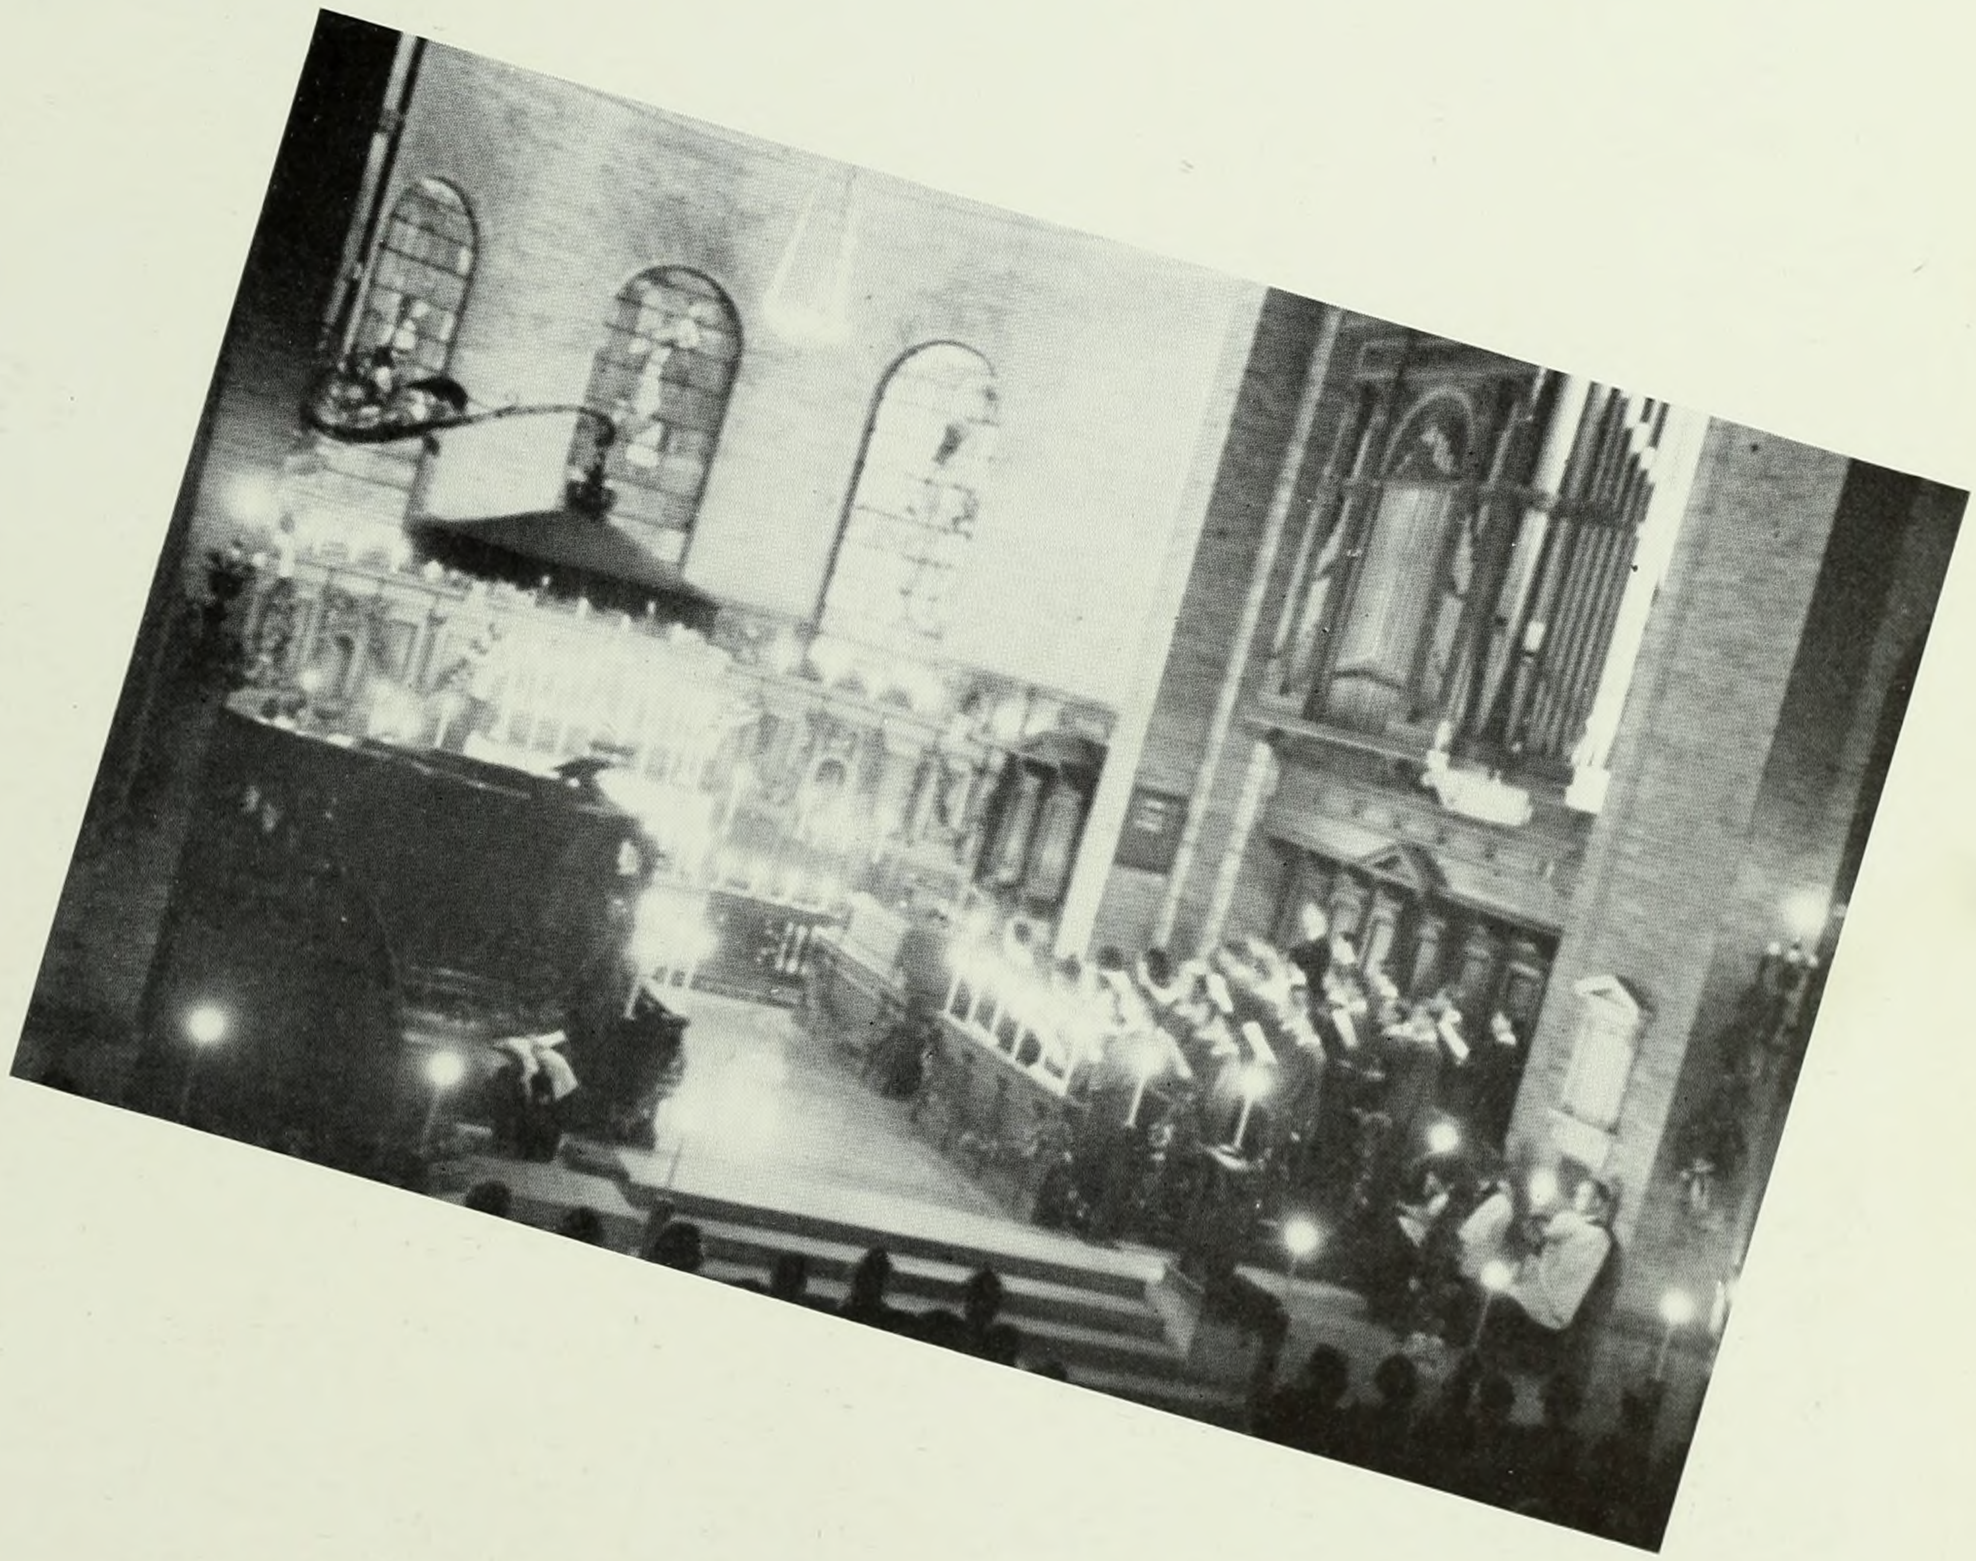
"Chopsticks"—Harvest Hop.

Dances, teas, etc.

Conversation piece.

"Refreshments will be served."

". . . . and the band played on . . . ."—the Dean and Dr. McIntosh at Harvest Hop.



"O Holy Night"—Christmas Candlelight Service at St. Paul's Chapel.

Greek

At ease, men.

A word from the wise:
Miss Streng and Miss Finan.

A flame that twice meant victory.

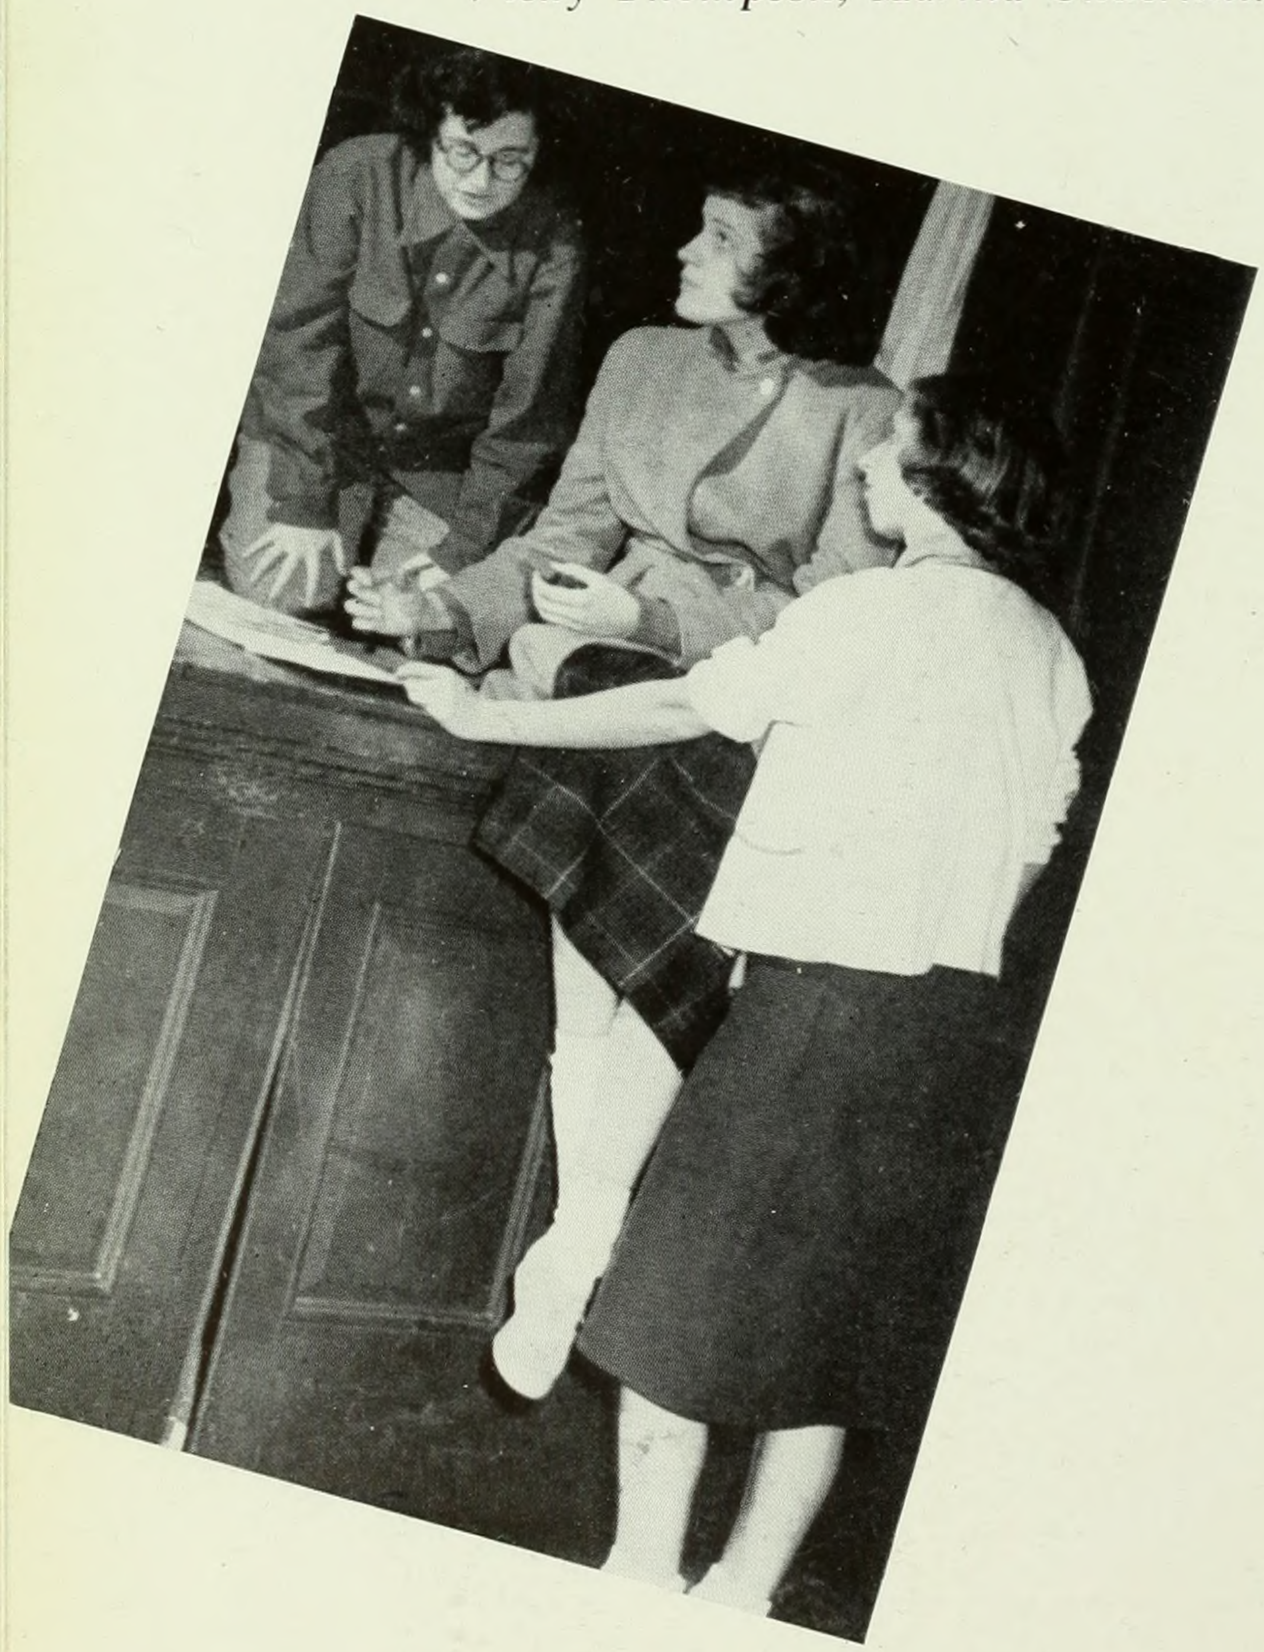
A moment to spare during rehearsals.

Games

April took us from the sidewalks of New York into Athenian forests, to hold our rites to Artemis, goddess of the moon and hunt. Months of stitching togas, perfecting dance steps, and painting chariots, culminated in the grand spectacle of music, dance, and athletic feats. Artemis with her followers pursued the wild deer. Strange atonic music floated above the sacred altar. To the wild shouts of the Greek crowd, the sophomore leader was carried in the triumphal chariot to receive the laurel wreath.

The ladies of the chorus, who helped make Junior Show a tremendous success, as they related the tale of the unhappy pigeon.

Steering Committee — Nancy Quint, Vicky Thompson, Martha Underhill.



Junior show

In telling the sad tale of Ethel, the ubiquitous campus pigeon, the Junior's musical fantasy offered caricatures of familiar college figures, memorable songs, and dances keyed to a bright new pace. There were the tryouts, the long afternoons and evenings of rehearsal, and then . . . . opening night when 1950 took the spotlight and Ethel stole the show.

Junior prom

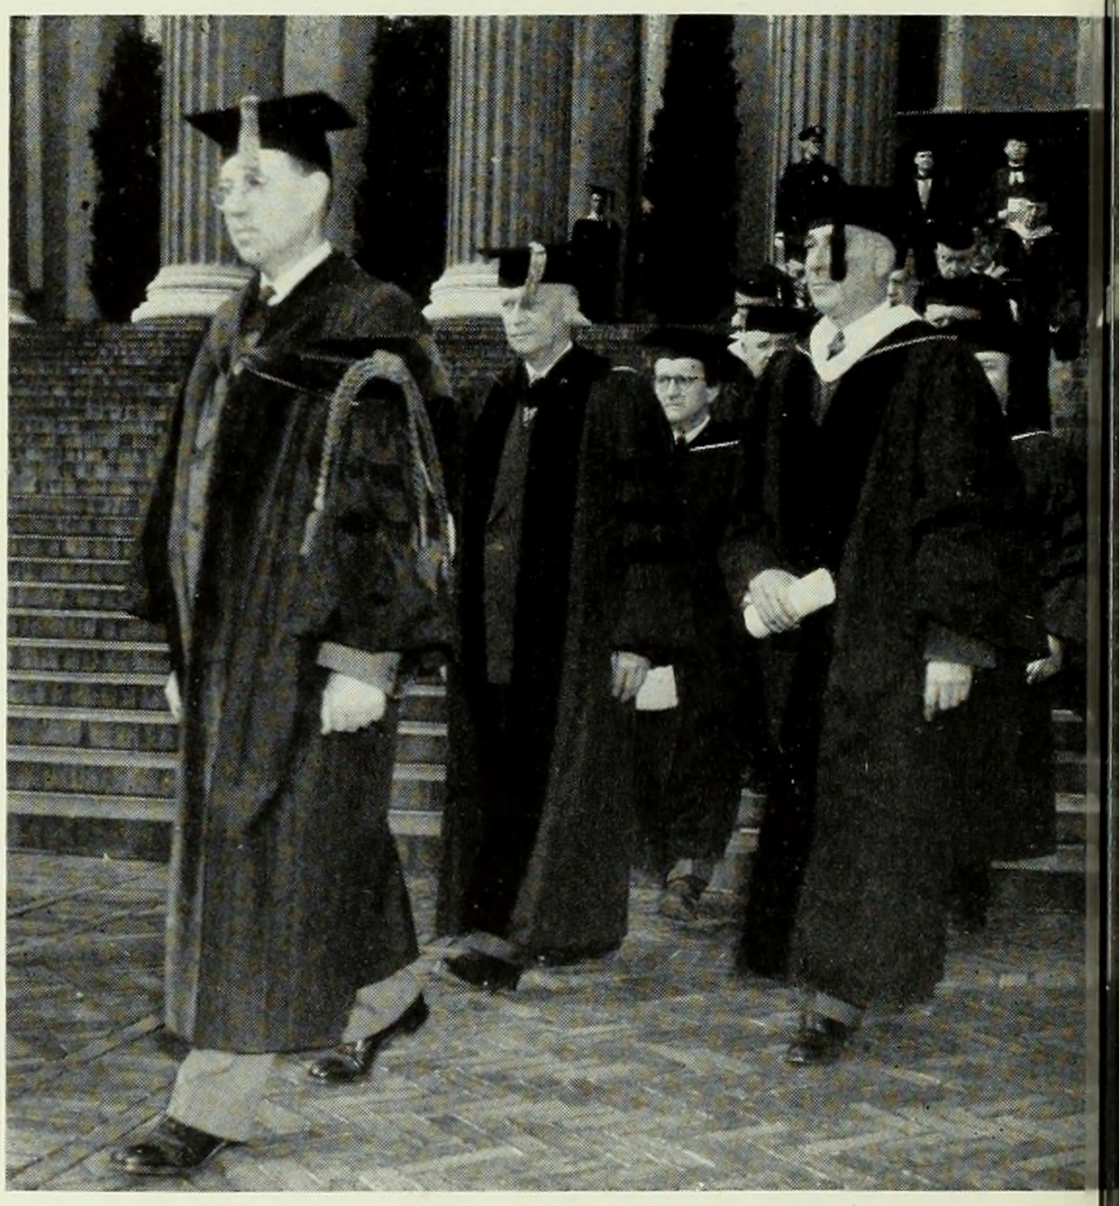
Table for four at the prom.

Amid discarded flowers and wet wraps, the Juniors pretty up at the Ritz Carlton.

Commencement

"The last rose . . . ."—Step Singing.

And finally on the heels of exams—Commencement, when Barnard goes into black gowns and white dresses. There is a good deal of ivy on our walls by now, but the newest sprig is duly planted, and the step singers loudly proclaim that "You can tell . . . ."



"Pomp and Circumstance."

For ivy covered walls.

Columbia Commencement — 1948.

The climax of Senior Week and four years comes with the presentation of those hard-earned diplomas. This is the moment when freshmen turn envious eyes towards seniors—or now more correctly the alumnae—who, in turn, somewhat staggered by 'the great wide world's boundless opportunity,' begin to think back a little nostalgically to the days when they were freshmen.

The Dean accepts for Barnard.

And Now . . .

for the younger set

Remember back when you were struggling with your A B C's. . . . how proud you were to be able to read those first few words . . . how much you wanted to show off your newly acquired knowledge?

Children are amazed at the magic of words . . . the way the little letters can be grouped together to have meaning. Their first books are treasured possessions to be read over and over again.

For these young readers, the Bookstore has assembled a fine selection of children's books in Pooh's Corner . . . books that will bring hours of enjoyment to some youngster that you know.
