In Keeping With the Sound Principles of Banking

The Corn Exchange Bank Trust Co. stands for safe and conservative management of its depositors' funds; by this is meant that those funds will be invested only in the securities of, or loaned to, conservative and well-established concerns, and for promoting legitimate business, and will not be loaned in speculative enterprises, even though this could be done at greater profit to the company.

KEEPING US EDUCATED

BY MARIAN HERITAGE CHURCHILL, '29

LAST year Barnard joined the small but growing number of colleges and universities that are experimenting with alumni education. This whole movement has grown up within the last decade, and the pioneers themselves are still groping toward the perfect solution of the problem expressed by Mr. Levering Tyson of the Columbia Home Study Department when he quoted the alumni as crying, "Don't just educate us—keep us educated!"

There are very few rules as yet; each college is advancing tentatively year by year and finding out by trial and error just what its graduates need and want. National bodies like the American Association of University Women, the Association of Alumni Secretaries, and the American Association for Adult Education have been watching the work so far and have issued valuable bulletins of advice, but in the long run it seems to be a problem that varies from college to college. Barnard, like the rest of the alert institutions that have recognized the need, is feeling her way as yet.

When questionnaires on the subject were handed to the alumnae at the Trustees' Supper in 1930, a vast amount of preparation had already been made. Officials in the Association knew what other colleges were attempting, and had considered introducing some plan for continued education here. They felt, however, that any such scheme was foredoomed to failure unless the alumnae themselves felt a need for it, and so it was not until graduates began to ask for help from the college that the wheels were put in motion. A committee was formed, consisting of Mrs. Louis I. Dublin, '06 (Chairman); Mrs. William C. Macavoy, '05, the President and the Executive Secretary of the Association, and Mrs. Edward M. Earle, '17, who represented the college. The project was discussed at a meeting of presidents and secretaries of all classes, tentative plans were drawn up, and finally three distinct proposals were laid before the alumnae body.

Graduates were asked to choose between two methods, that of reading lists and a single lecture by some authority, and an alternate plan of a series of lectures covering several departments in the college. 62 per cent of those answering preferred the first plan. Then they were given a choice of subjects; problems of family life in the modern home, or political problems of the United States and Europe. 63 per cent voted for the study of political problems, as against 37 per cent for work in family relationships; 10 per cent of those who answered offered other topics in which they might be more interested.

Accordingly this year we have launched our own version of alumnae education, beginning with a lecture by Professor James T. Shotwell on "Sanity in the Peace Movement," and supplemented by reading lists. The first such list to reach the graduates was a short one of six recent and outstanding books which would provide a balanced background for Professor Shotwell's address, and it accompanied the announcement of his lecture on Alumnae Day, 1931. There is no way of checking how many of these books were read, but there is rather conclusive proof of the interest aroused by the experiment. Brinckerhoff Theater was packed long before the time for the address, and latecomers stood for an hour, listening to this beloved professor whom Barnard could once claim and who is still bringing renown to our university.

"Any peace movement which relies upon a . . . kind of emotional stirring and sentiment cannot hold its own against war sentiment, so long as peace is a doctrine which makes its appeal solely to those religious doctrines . . . with which the peace movement has always been associated," said Dr. Shotwell. "The men will always march with the troops, the families will send out their quota to the draft, the masses will go to war . . . Any war will triumph if it is held in check only by sentiment." We must turn, then, to some new weapon against war if we are to succeed. Dr. Shotwell pointed out that the scientific age, which has so changed our life that history can never again repeat itself, has forged such a weapon. The growing interdependence of the world forces us to build up institutions to study that interdependence, for individual citizens can no longer face it alone. What is more, such institutions must be built up in times of peace, for they assuredly will not be founded in times of war. Dr. Shotwell referred to two such instruments, the League of Nations and the World Court, and described the preventative work that they have already been able to do. He closed by describing the destructiveness of another war, and pointing out how inevitably the United States would be drawn into such a conflict, despite her policy of aloofness. He felt sure, he said in closing, that there was enough "essential sanity in the American people" so that "these great experiments, these instruments of justice and peace, the World Court and the League, will be part and parcel of the instrumentation of the United States in international affairs, and sooner than most of us are likely to expect from the present state of the world."

The response to this initial lecture was so enthusiastic that a second has been planned, this time for the afternoon of June third, at four o'clock in the theater. Professor Raymond Moley, head of the department of Government at Barnard, and Professor of Public Law at Columbia, will speak on "Faith in Numbers, Faith in Facts, and Faith in Ourselves." Professor Moley is able to present a picture of a very different side of public affairs. He has served with crime surveys and commissions in ten states, and is now Consultant to Judge Seabury in his investigation of the Magistrates Courts in New York City. The more recent alumnae remember him with as much enthusiasm and respect as Professor Shotwell receives from graduates of a few more years' standing. The Committee on Continued Education can feel that in securing the services of two speakers of such renown this first year it has set a high standard for future programs.

Their plans for the coming years must, of course, depend on the response to these early ventures. It may be that the discussions after the lectures will prove important enough to warrant the devotion of a whole day to lectures and round table conferences for more detailed work. Such a plan has been followed at Radcliffe since 1928, and in 1929, 400 alumnae attended, and paid a fee of two dollars to cover the expenses incidental to this more ambitious program. In years to come the demand for continued education on the part of our alumnae may result in a special session, to cover several days and a wider variety of subjects. Vassar has experimented with Alumnae Conferences on campus since 1924, when a whole week during the summer was turned over to alumnae of all colleges. In 1929 their Summer Institute of Euthenics had an attendance of 74 adults, and conducted a progressive school for the children of the students in the Institute. Mills College is carrying on an even longer period of study, since the opening of its summer school of Fine Arts in 1929, with a special faculty in music, drama and art. There seems to be no need for as elaborate a development as this at Barnard, since the summer session of Columbia University answers that need. There is no reason, however, why we should not be able to give our alumnae a course of several days in any one of a vast number of fields—if they show that they want it. So far the College has defrayed whatever expenses arose in connection with this year's program, and both Professors have very kindly donated their services to the alumnae. In this respect we are more fortunate than any of the others women's colleges except Smith, for a small fee has been necessary for all of them to carry out their plans. At Smith the work is centered upon reading lists, which have been issued since 1924, with Child Psychology proving to be the most popular subject. We, too, are working on reading lists as well as planning lecture groups; in this issue of the BULLETIN each of fifteen Barnard departments has set forth the most worthwhile recent books in its own field. If alumnae find these reading lists helpful, they will be published regularly.

All of these plans depend unconditionally upon the wishes of the alumnae. If they are interested in keeping informed about contemporary problems, if they wish to take up again some field which attracted them in their undergraduate days, or if they want help on problems that arise as their interests in home or profession expand, they can turn to their college for information and stimulation. The college stands ready to meet their needs.

NOTES FROM THE DEAN'S OFFICE

For reasons of health Dean Gildersleeve is spending part of the winter and spring in Camden, South Carolina. Her condition is responding to the rest regime which has been prescribed for her. During her absence Professor George Walker Mullins, head of the Mathematics Department, is Acting Dean.

The Honorable James R. Sheffield, a member of the Board of Trustees for more than thirteen years, has been elected Chairman of the Board, succeeding the late John G. Milburn. Mr. Winthrop W. Aldrich, who is president of the Chase National Bank, has recently been elected a member of the Board of Trustees.

Five members of the staff who have been absent on leave have returned for the second semester of the present year. Miss Marcial-Dorado, head of the Spanish Department, spent the summer and fall in Spain. Professor Raymond Moley, head of the Government Department, travelled in Europe during the summer and spent the fall semester at the University of California carrying on some research work. Professor Moley is special adviser to Judge Samuel Seabury in the present investigation which is now going on in New York City. Professor La Rue Van Hook of the Department of Greek and Latin, who is absent on leave for the entire year, is Annual Professor at the American School of Classical Studies in Athens, Greece. Professor Van Hook has recently been appointed Jay Professor of Greek at Columbia. Professor Hugh Wiley Puckett, who returned to the College for the spring semester, expects to spend the summer in Germany, continuing the research work which he began last September. Professor Puckett has recently published a book based on his study in Germany, entitled "Germany's Women Go Forward." Miss Lelia Finan of the Department of Physical Education has returned after spending the fall semester in further study.

During the spring session of 1931-32 the following members of the Faculty will be absent on leave: Professor Charles Sears Baldwin of the Department of English, Professor Emilie Hutchinson of the Department of Economics, Professor Eleanor Keller of the Department of Chemistry, and Professor L. A. Loiseaux of the Department of Romance Languages.

Professor Tracy Hazen, Assistant Professor of Botany, and Professor Helen Huss Parkhurst, Assistant Professor of Philosophy, have recently been promoted to the rank of Associate Professor. Professor Hazen has for some years been editor of the Torrey Botanical Journal. Professor Parkhurst, whose principal interest in philosophy is in aesthetics, has recently published a book entitled "BEAUTY—An Interpretation of Art and the Imaginative Life." Miss Parkhurst has been awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship for the year 1931-32 and will spend the year abroad in travel and study with a view to gathering material for a new book on the aesthetics of architecture.

The International Student Fellowship has been awarded to Miss Anne Gary, an honor student in History, with Miss Gertrude Wiley, an honor student in Physics, as alternate. Miss Gary plans to spend the year at Oxford. The student body has recommended that a foreign student from Spain be brought to Barnard next year on this fellowship.

The Students' International Union has awarded a scholarship to Miss Madeleine Gilmore of the Junior class, for summer study in Geneva.

The Caroline Duror Memorial Fellowship has been awarded to Miss Eva Saper, majoring in zoology, with Miss Frances Markey, honor student in psychology, as alternate.

The George Welwood Murray Fellowship, established within the year, has been awarded to Miss Mary Etta Knapp, majoring in English, with Miss Celeste Jedel, honor student in government, as alternate.

Recent Publications by Barnard Graduates

The Library is very anxious to have as complete a collection as possible of the articles and books published by the Barnard alumnae. A start has been made on this collection and any contributions from the alumnae in the way of books, articles and reprints of articles will be very welcome.

Material may be mailed to Bertha L. Rockwell, Librarian, Barnard College. These publications will eventually be kept in a separate book case.

Leonie Adams, 1922, published poems in the New Republic, "The Bell Which Speaks to Rest" appearing September 23, 1930 and "When Green Went Up the Tide" on December 17, 1930. Her book, "High Falcon and Other Poems," was issued by John Day.

Dr. Gulielma Fell Alsop, 1903, wrote for the Woman's Journal a number of articles, among them "Intelligent Eating," September 1930; "Insuring Your Health," October 1930; "Conquering City Nerves," November 1930; "The Gland Route to Health," December 1930; and "For a New Year of Health," January 1931.

Beulah Amidon, (Mrs. Paul G. Ratliff), 1915, published in the Survey articles entitled "Out of the House of Magic," December 1, 1930; and "Some Plans for Steady Work," November 15, 1930. "It's Hitting the Luxury Trades" appeared in the New Republic, December 17, 1930.

Helen Augur, 1916, has written a life of Anne Hutchinson, "The American Jezebel," published by Brentano.

Dorothy Brewster, 1906, collaborated with Angus Burrell in writing "Adventure or Experience; Four Essays on Certain Writers and Readers of Novels," which was published by the Columbia University Press.

Mary Van Rensselaer Cogswell, 1926, published in the July 1930 number of Country Life an article on "Ragusa, Aristocrat of the Adriatic."

Mary Edgar Comstock, 1922, is the author of a book of verse, "A Penny A Dream," published by Henry Harrison.

Pauline Dederer, 1901, has written for Eugenics, "Genetics at Connecticut College," June 1930; "Feminism and the Racial Future," August 1930; "Nature Hunting and Hiking" appeared in the Nature and Science Educational Review, January 1930; and "The Life Story of An Eel" in Evolution, September 1929. She has also published several reviews in Biological Abstracts.

Babette Deutsch (Mrs. Avrahm Yarmolinsky), 1917, published in the Nation the poems "Narcissus," June 25, 1930, and "Free Lecture," October 29, 1930. She wrote "Brief Solace," a poem, in the Yale Review, December 1930; and two books of verse, "Fire for the Night," and "A Message to Prometheus," both published by Cape and Smith. "Potable Gold—Some Notes on Poetry and this Age," was issued by W. W. Norton and with her husband she collaborated in "Russian Poetry—an Anthology," published by Lawrence.

Jane Dewey, 1922, was the author of "Intensity Maxima in the Continuous Helium Spectrum," published in the Physical Review, January, 1930.

Ida Gertrude Everson, 1920, published a poem, "In Redwood Canyon" in the Carmelite, Carmel-by-the-Sea, California, November 6, 1930; "Northern California" in the Boston Evening Transcript, December 20, 1930, and an article, "Portraiture in Petrarch's Letters," in the Christian Science Monitor, February 24, 1931.

Jessie Douglas Fox, ex-1911, has written a second novel, "What Mad Pursuit," published by Brewer, Warren and Putnam. Her first book, "Rain Before Seven," was recently republished by Grosset and Dunlap.

Mary Granger, 1921, is the author of a novel, "Lucy and Three," published by Brewer, Warren and Putnam.

Freda Kirchwey, 1915, edited "Our Changing Morality—A Symposium," for Bonibooks.

Louise Burton Laidlaw, 1929, is the author of a book of verse "Wishing on a Comet," published by Dodd, Mead.

Amy Loveman, 1901, wrote "Say It With Books," for the December 6, 1930 issue of The Saturday Review.

Margaret Mead, 1923, has written a book, "Growing Up in New Guinea," published by Wm. Morrow & Co., and is the author of "The Maoris and Their Arts," a guide leaflet issued by the American Museum of Natural History. Her article, "Water Babies of the South Seas," appeared in the September 1930 issue of the Parents' Magazine.

Agnes Miller, 1908, had a mystery novel, "The Obol of Paradise," published in London in the 1930 autumn list of Hutchinson and Company.

Alice Duer Miller, 1899, has written a number of short stories, "Brown Hussy" for the American Magazine, January 1931; "Last Trolley" appeared in the September 1930, and "One Emerald" in the December 1930, issues of the Ladies' Home Journal. "Taxi," which ran as a serial story in the Ladies' Home Journal, beginning January 1931, has been issued in book form by Dodd Mead, who also published her novel "Green Isle." Her books, "Manslaughter" and "Honey" (the photoplay edition of "Come Out of the Kitchen") were republished with scenes from the motion pictures by Grosset and Dunlap.

Charlotte E. Morgan, 1904, is the author of "The Origin and History of the New York Employing Printers Association; The Evolution of a Trade Association," one of the Columbia University Studies in History, Economics and Public Law, published by the Columbia University Press.

Susanna Myers, 1898, wrote the text and translations for "Folk Songs of the Four Seasons," a book of traditional melodies associated with festivals and folkways, which was published by G. Schirmer.

Elsie Clews Parsons, 1896, is the author of "Curanderos in Oaxaca, Mexico," an article published in the Scientific Monthly, January 1931, and "The Social Organization of the Tewa of New Mexico," No. 36 of the Memoirs of the American Anthropological Association, published by the University of California Press. She edited "Kiowa Tales," volume 22 of the Memoirs of the American Folk Lore Society, published by G. Stechert.

Celeste Comegys Peardon, 1926, wrote with Professor Arthur Irving Gates, "Practise Exercises in Reading for Grade 3," published by Teachers College.

EDITORIAL

In honor of her completion of twenty years as Dean of Barnard College, the Associate Alumnae presented the following resolutions to Miss Gildersleeve in January:

Whereas this year of 1931 marks the twentieth anniversary of the appointment of Virginia Crocheron Gildersleeve as Dean of Barnard College, in which capacity she has served with a rare ability and a boundless enthusiasm, bringing both to herself and to Barnard College renowned distinction, and

Whereas Dean Gildersleeve has always displayed a willing cooperation in every undertaking of the Associate Alumnae,

Therefore Be It Resolved that the Associate Alumnae of Barnard College take this opportunity to express its deep appreciation of Dean Gildersleeve's exceptional leadership, and of her loyalty to Barnard College, to its undergraduates, and to its alumnae, and

Be It Further Resolved that a copy of these resolutions be presented to Dean Gildersleeve at the Alumnae Luncheon as a token of the high esteem in which she is held by the Alumnae of Barnard College.

THE ASSOCIATE ALUMNAE OF
BARNARD COLLEGE

ELLEN O'GORMAN DUFFY,

President.

DOROTHY BROCKWAY,

Secretary.

January 17th, 1931.

The resolutions, beautifully illuminated by Olive Reilly, '21, were bound in a blue leather cover, and made a book of about nine by twelve inches.

As we go to press there comes welcome word of the election of Jean Disbrow Hadley, '07, as President of the Women's University Club of New York. Mrs. Hadley, who has been one of our two Alumnae Trustees since 1929, has a splendid record of service to community and college. After receiving her degree she became executive secretary of the Women's Auxiliary to the Civil Service Reform Association of New York, of which organization she is still a member. She served as a Director and Treasurer of the Associate Alumnae from 1913 to 1914, Executive Secretary in the Spring of 1918, and as President of the Association from 1927 to 1929. In addition to her Barnard Alumnae work she has been an active committee member of the Women's University Club and President of the Parents' Association of the Saint Agatha School. Her selection as head of the New York college women's organization recognizes outstanding ability and loyal service and brings distinction both to Mrs. Hadley and to Barnard.

The enthusiastic reception of the February lecture indicates that there is a demand among Barnard alumnae for continued contact and interchange of ideas with faculty and college, and gives the committee in charge reason to feel cheerful about its more ambitious plans for next year. It is obvious, of course, that if this contact is to mean more than an occasional stimulating hour together, something beside enthusiasm and appreciation must be contributed by the alumnae. The committee hopes that through the reading lists sent out with each lecture announcement, alumnae will be prepared to take a lively and informed part in the discussion that follows the lecture. With such participation we shall be justified in embarking upon an extensive program of continued education.

June reunion brings to mind again the fact that we are now so large a group that not all of us can be included in the Trustees' generous annual supper invitation. A glance at the chart to be sent out again with the June reunion notices will tell if your class is included in this year's Trustees' Supper. Alumnae who do not attend the supper may secure service at nominal cost in Hewitt Hall, and it is hoped that a large number will be on hand for every event in the reunion schedule.

Most encouraging is the news that Glee Club has had two winter engagements in response to the letter in December's BULLETIN. We welcome this sign that BULLETIN is serving as a bond between members of a group with many common interests.

ALUMNAE LUNCHEON

BARNARD leaped into front-page prominence as a result of the annual Alumnae luncheon this year, on January 17th, but those fortunate alumnae who attended know that there was much more to President Butler's address than the reference to "only eight true universities in this country" which caught the ear of the reporters. The whole program was one of the most interesting the Association has ever presented. The first item, and a necessarily important one, was the excellent luncheon which the Hotel Pennsylvania served. When that had been fully appreciated, and alumnae could turn to less mundane matters, the Barnard Glee Club sang two groups of songs in English, French and German. This was an innovation, and a delightful one. Mrs. Duffy explained that the Glee Club was willing to present similar programs at any meetings in which Barnard alumnae were interested, and urged graduates who are harassed with entertainment problems to consult with the Glee Club. She then read the resolutions of congratulation adopted by the Board of Directors to commemorate the conclusion of Miss Gildersleeve's twentieth year as Dean of Barnard. Unfortunately Miss Gildersleeve was unable to be present, as she was convalescing in the south, but she sent her best wishes to the alumnae whom she had hoped to address.

Her place was taken by Professor Sinnott, of the Botany Department, who performed that difficult feat with great success. He sketched an amusing picture of the differences he found between men's and women's colleges, and praised the academic freedom which he found here. He closed by describing the new greenhouse, and explaining the part that botany plays in a well-balanced course of study.

President Butler recalled the day when he had recommended our Dean to the trustees, and reminded us that she was now the Senior Dean of the University in point of service. Then he turned to a discussion of the proper functions of a true university. Too much confusion exists in our discussion of "colleges" and "universities," he said; we should define our terms more exactly.

Professional training has no place in the undergraduate program of a liberal arts college, although the pressure is growing every year to include courses which are, strictly speaking, professional. He pointed out that that was one problem which the women's colleges had not really had to meet as yet, but that the time was soon coming when it would press upon them as insistently as it does upon men's colleges.

The true definition of a university is "an institution of higher learning where scholars of high competence guide students who have been prepared by a liberal education, into advanced studies, with the aid of libraries, laboratories, and seminars." There are not more than eight of them in the country, he said. Economic and other public services that the true university renders to the world community are a part of its function, which is the dissemination of knowledge. President Butler mentioned a few such services which Columbia performs, and the list was one to make every alumna in the room glow with pride for her university. Professors from Morningside Heights have, among other things, been assisting in a correct restoration of ruins in Greece, helping to reorganize the school system of Brazil, advising in the financial affairs of Roumania, and working with the government of the United States and various states in all kinds of projects from locating new reservoirs and dams to reforming systems of probation and parole. Anyone who listened to that address could not fail to realize that a university is much more than a collection of colleges and professional schools, and that we are indeed fortunate in being a part of such an institution.

ALUMNAE ADDRESSES

About one half of the "lost" alumnae whose names appeared in a previous issue of the Alumnae Bulletin have been found. The other half, with a few recent additions, are listed again in the hope that information which may aid in locating them will be sent to Alumnae Office. Be sure to send in your own new address every time you move!

CLUB NOTES

Boston

The Barnard College Club of Boston held its first meeting of the year in November, at the home of Mrs. James A. Muller in Cambridge. It was a supper meeting to which husbands were also invited. Dr. and Mrs. Muller who had recently returned from a trip through India and Burma, talked of their travels, telling of economic and political conditions, religious beliefs and customs in those countries. Their talk was illustrated by stereopticon views.

A second meeting was a tea with Mrs. P. D. Morrison of Brookline, as hostess. A third meeting is scheduled for May.

The officers for the year 1930-31 are: President—Mrs. Shepherd S. Glueck; Vice-President—Mrs. James A. Muller; Secretary-Treasurer—Mrs. Moses H. Lurie.

New York

Just five years ago last January, the Barnard College Club was founded by an enterprising group which felt that the alumnae of a college in the city were entitled to a pleasant place in which to foregather and continue the friendships of their student years. The present clubrooms, on the twentieth floor of the Barbizon, with a magnificent view over the city, fulfill the requirements of the most exacting.

The comfortable two-story lounge is an attractive place in which to meet one's friends. Afternoon tea is always available during the winter months. The bridge parties which take place here have been very successful and only the remarkable elasticity of the lounge saves it from being crowded to capacity on these occasions. There is a balcony and dressing room for out of town members who wish to rest or change before an evening's gaiety.

The social events of the past winter include a dinner dance at the Vanderbilt, a dinner at the club, and a luncheon at the Casino, as well as a fashion show given at the Barbizon. The dinner, at which Dean Gildersleeve was to have been guest of honor if her health had permitted, featured interesting travelogues by Barnard alumnae. Miss Caroline Spurgeon, of London University, the Dean's companion during her recent sabbatical leave, told of their wanderings together. Margaret Mead, '23, ethnologist and author of two books, gave a sketch of life among savages in Samoa and New Guinea, and Mary Van Rensselaer Cogswell, '26, presented a vivid picture of modern Russia, as seen by a journalist.

The annual luncheon, held this time at the Casino in Central Park, brought out a record attendance. The date selected was March twenty-first, the first day of spring, and the weather for a wonder co-operated with the calendar. The speaker of the day was Mme. Halide Edib, who is lecturing on Turkish history at Barnard this semester. Mme. Edib's delightful personality and the interesting light she cast on the mysteries of the Near East combined to make the luncheon a memorable occasion.

Montclair

The Barnard College Club of Montclair plans to hold its spring meeting on May 1st at the home of Mrs. William Klaber (Florence Wolff '08) at 167 Park Street.

Mount Vernon

The Barnard College Club of Mount Vernon elected Mrs. William Chamberlain, President, and Miss Helen Johnson, Secretary, early in the fall. The annual extemporaneous speaking contest sponsored by this Club took place at the Mount Vernon High School in December. So far this year, there have been no purely social gatherings.

IN MEMORIAM

1900

Elizabeth E. Bryant died at the Brooklyn Hospital, March 4, 1929. Miss Bryant spent only her senior year at Barnard, after which she taught for a number of years. Among her pupils who remember her not only as an inspiring teacher but a true friend was one of the doctors who attended her during her last illness. She traveled abroad a great deal and climbed enough mountains to become a member of the Alpine Club of Canada. After she retired from teaching, she carried on successfully a modest importing project assisted by correspondents in Italy and France. Her ashes were buried in the family plot at her old home in Gilbertsville, New York.

1902

Ruth Earle Lawrence died January 5, 1931, at her home in New York City of heart disease after a month's illness. During college she held several offices, among them Junior Presidency, took part in athletics and dramatics, was a member of Alpha Omicron Pi. After graduation she worked on the staff which prepared the famous Century Dictionary. Subsequently she did staff, editorial and interview work for the "New York Evening World" and the "Sunday World." In 1906, Miss Earle married Richard W. Lawrence, who is now President of the National Republican Club. They made their home in the University Heights section of the Bronx, where Mrs. Lawrence became a member of the local school board. In 1917, she became a member of the Executive Committee of the local Red Cross chapter and in 1918 was very active in the financial drive of the seven welfare agencies. Later on she pioneered in the development of the local Visiting Nurse Service, serving on their committee. Of late, the family of four has traveled extensively in many parts of the globe. Besides her husband Mrs. Lawrence is survived by her daughter and son.

1912

Eleanor Doty Kerr died on January 27, at her mother's home in New York, after a long illness and several operations. While in college she was very active in extra-curricular activities, was undergraduate Vice-President, a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, and elected to Phi Beta Kappa. In the first few years after graduation she studied at the Institute of Musical Art, did some private tutoring and settlement work and served as Secretary of the College Settlements Association.

When in 1918, the Barnard Alumnae decided to send two units overseas, she volunteered for canteen work with the Y. M. C. A. and was the first to sail of the first Barnard unit. She served with the S.O.S. at St. Aignan, and then with the 78th Division near the front, and in the Argonne, and after the Armistice in camp near Dijon.

In 1919, she married Hobart W. Kerr, one of the 78th Division, whom she had met overseas, and lived for several years in Des Moines and Minneapolis. Returning to New York in 1927, she worked for about two years with the Appointments Bureau at Columbia, and later, until illness in the spring of 1930 forced her to resign, with the College Entrance Examination Board. She leaves one son, Donald.

1926

Ruth Russell Halsted died July 2, 1930, at her home in Yonkers, New York, of unresolved pneumonia. In 1928, she received a B.S. from the Columbia School of Library Service. She worked in the Circulation Department of the New York Public Library from the time of her graduation from Barnard in 1926 up to the time of her illness in the spring of 1929. She was planning a tour of Europe and attendance at an international library conference in Rome when her work had to be given up due to failing health.

SEND IN YOUR ORDER NOW!

The cooperation of the alumnae is urged in the matter of orders for Carol Fayence toiletries. Miss Fayence (Caroline Fajans '16) is a Barnard alumna who has offered the alumnae association a percentage on all orders sent in by her fellow-alumnae. This is an opportunity to augment the funds of the Associate Alumnae in a way which puts little strain on the purse of the individual.

If you have mislaid your order blank, telephone to Miss Fayence at Bogardus 4-5470.

If you intend to become a secretary, learn
