A New Scholarship.

The Alumnae Association of the Peebles-Thompson School gave, on March 19th, at the Berkeley Lyceum, tableaux for the purpose of starting a scholarship at Barnard. The receipts are enough to furnish a scholarship for one year.

It is supposed that the school will in time attempt to establish a permanent scholarship.

Lecture by Frederick Harrison.

On Friday afternoon the large lecture room in Havemeyer Hall was filled to overflowing with an audience of students and outsiders, assembled to hear a lecture on the "Rise of the Dutch Republic," by Frederick Harrison, the well-known disciple of Comptist philosophy. President Low, on introducing the speaker, made mention of Mr. Harrison's varied attainments as a writer and student of philosophy and of history. Abandoning for a moment his serious manner, he added, half humorously, that he believed Mr. Harrison had once been an alderman of London, and, more important still, a graduate of King's College (London), a reference to the early name of Columbia which drew forth much applause from the audience.

Mr. Harrison, with his dignified and impressive bearing, and his clear and resonant voice, immediately gained the undivided attention of his listeners. He described at length the heroic struggle of the Netherlands against tremendous odds, and spoke in the most enthusiastic strain of the part taken in the memorable contests by William, Prince of Orange, that most sterling patriot and advocate of public liberty. The resistance of the Dutch extended over eighty years, the period of especial importance embracing the time from 1539 to 1554. In the former year Philip II. inherited the Netherlands and immediately instituted oppressive reforms, which aroused the ire of the Dutch, and finally led them to embark upon a desperate revolt against the hated rule of Spain. Failing to conquer the sturdy burghers by diplomatic means, he attempted to gain his end by the use of the Inquisition. Then he sent the Duke of Alva, a skilful soldier and a most atrocious monster, to Holland to carry out his policy. The result was the fearful religious massacres that Alva instituted.

Mr. Harrison treated his subject in a discursive way, emphasizing a few special personalities and events, rather than presenting a classified account of the historical facts. He gave a particularly graphic and circumstantial report of the siege of Leyden, and the inundation of Holland by the Dutch under William of Orange, and incidentally an extremely fine character sketch of William.

C. S. M. A.

The Barnard chapter of the Church Students' Missionary Association has outlined the following plan for the remainder of the year:

Every Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, in Room 307, joint meeting with the Y. W. C. A. for the study of general missions.

First Wednesday in the month, April 3rd and May 5th, Corporate Communion at 9 o'clock, at St. Luke's Chapel.

Second and third Wednesdays, April 10th and 17th, May 8th and 15th, meeting at 9 A. M., in Room 307 Milbank Hall, for the study of Episcopal missions.

Fourth Wednesdays, April 24th and May 22nd, meeting at 9 A. M., in Room 307, Milbank Hall. Prayer for missions.

Will all Episcopalians, who have not already given their names to Miss M. E. Clark, 1902, kindly do so as soon as possible?

Barnard Wins.

On Monday evening, March 25th, the Barnard College Basket-Ball Team played a game with the team connected with the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church. Especial interest is attached to the match, by reason of the fact that it was the second meeting of the two teams, Barnard having proven the victor in the first contest. The Barnard girls were determined to duplicate this success, and at the end of two twelve-minute halves they had placed a rather one-sided victory to their credit, the score being: Barnard, 22; Grace Church, 0.

The Grace Church girls struggled hard to keep down the score, but Barnard was too strong to be overcome, and for the first time had the satisfaction of shutting out her opponents. Goals were made by Miss Budd, '02; Miss Kimball, '02; Miss Kroeber, '03, and Miss Alsberg, '02. Miss Whiton played an excellent defensive game, and kept the best forward of the opponents from scoring. Altogether the game was an extremely satisfactory one for Barnard, the most encouraging feature being the improvement displayed in goal throwing.

Word from Syracuse.

Miss Robinson, captain of the Syracuse University Basket-Ball Team, has written a letter to the captain of the Barnard Team, from which the following is quoted:

"Nothing is left of our New York trip but a very pleasant recollection. I want to thank you personally, and all the rest of the Barnard girls, in the name of the Syracuse Team, for the very pleasant time you gave us while with you.

"Sincerely yours,

"RUBY E. ROBINSON."

The Toy Symphony Orchestra of Barnard College, Miss Marian Newcomb, conductor, will give a concert in the Theatre, Brinckerhoff Hall, on Saturday evening, April 13th, for the benefit of the Tennis Club. Admission 25 cents. The members of the orchestra are as follows:

Notice.

All applications for loans for the ensuing year which shall not have been filed with the Students' Aid Committee before May 1, 1901, will receive no attention from the committee until next October.

BARNARD BULLETIN,
BARNARD COLLEGE,
COLUMBIA UNIV., N. Y.

MONDAY, APRIL 1, 1901.

The Executive Committee of the Undergraduate Association has at present under consideration the advisability of amending the constitution in such a way as to admit certain special students to limited privileges of the association. This move appears to us one in the right direction, and we hope that the plan will shortly be carried through.

There are at present many special students at Barnard, who, while practically subject to the rule of the Undergraduate Association, have no voice in its management. Several of these students are credited with more hours of work than the average class member, and coming so much in contact with the life of the college are naturally interested in the affairs of the student body. Moreover, in many cases these girls expect ultimately to receive a bachelor's degree, and are, therefore, in a certain sense regular members of the undergraduate body. While these special students, who take no less than fifteen hours of undergraduate work, are obviously entitled to a vote on all college matters, it would be impossible to permit them to hold office, as our constitution provides that all officers must be members of one of the four classes. Thus we believe that provision, however, should not preclude any special student, who takes at least fifteen hours' regular undergraduate work, from having all other privileges accorded her. We hope to hear that as a result of the next meeting of the Undergraduate Association this plan will become a law.

In view of the fact that an editorial appearing in the issue of the BULLETIN of March 25th in regard to the Syracuse-Barnard basket-ball game has been interpreted in a very personal manner by the Columbia reporter of the "Herald," the editors feel called upon once more to state their position in regard to this matter. The remarks which Mr. Wagner has applied to himself were general, and intended for no particular individual; any personal strictures which may have been made were an entirely uneditorial expression of opinion. The position which the BULLETIN has taken is simply that which the article in the "Herald" has rendered obvious—that to prevent a repetition of the appearance of any such unfortunate accounts as were published lately, no Barnard news can be given to a reporter, other than one authorized by the College, unless assurances are first received that the report will not be garbled. It is felt by the students that if this plan is carefully pursued, they may perhaps in some measure control newspaper accounts of Barnard.

Since the last issue of the BULLETIN, Mr. Megrue has written to the editors explaining his position in regard to the "Herald" article. As he desires, and as is only fair to him part of his letter is printed below.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY, March 25, 1901.
To the Editor BARNARD BULLETIN:

Dear Madam: The editorial in the BARNARD BULLETIN for March 25th, concerning the "Herald's" account of the Syracuse-Barnard basket-ball game has just been brought to my attention. As I have been informed from many sources that it is common report among Barnard students that I wrote the newspaper article in question, it is but natural to consider the editorial an attack on me, rather than the generality it might appear to the uninitiated. I think, therefore, that it would perhaps be best for the general reputation of Columbia correspondents, and myself in particular, to dispel the illusion and explain the circumstances of the case.

Through a misunderstanding two people were sent to report the game for the "Herald," myself and a woman reporter. I secured some information from Miss Alsberg in regard to the contest, which I wrote and turned in to the "Herald." The woman reporter took the facts from my article, combined them with what she had been able to eke out at Barnard, and, with the not inconsiderable aid of a brilliant imagination and vivid descriptive powers, wrote the report. I take pleasure in enclosing you the original manuscript written by me.

The following amendments to the constitution have passed the Executive Committee by a unanimous vote, and will be brought before the class at the regular April meeting.

Article II., Section 3, which now reads: The officers of the class shall be a president, a vice-president, a recording secretary, a corresponding secretary, a treasurer, and a historian, to be elected during the last month of the year, shall be amended by adding the following clause: And to begin their term of office the first day of the next year.

Article III., Section 1, which now reads: Nominations shall be made by acclamation and shall be closed by order of the president; shall be amended to read as follows: All nominations except those for president shall be by acclamation and shall be closed by order of the president. In nominating for president a general vote of the class shall be taken by secret ballot, and the four girls, having the four highest numbers of votes, shall be the nominees.

J. D. EGGLESTON, Secretary.

Columbia University
in the City of New York.

Columbia University includes both a college and a university in the strict sense of the word. The college is Columbia College, founded in 1754 as King's College. The university consists of the Faculties of Law, Medicine, Philosophy, Political Science, Pure Science and Applied Science.

The point of contact between the college and university is the senior year of the college, during which year students in the college pursue their studies, with the consent of the college faculty under one or more of the faculties of the university.

Barnard College, a college for women, is financially, a separate corporation; but educationally, is a part of the system of Columbia University.

Teachers College, a professional school for teachers, is also, financially, a separate corporation; and also educationally, a part of the system of Columbia University.

Each college and school is under the charge of its own faculty, except that the Schools of Mines, Chemistry, Engineering and Architecture are all under the charge of the Faculty of Applied Science.

For the care and advancement of the general interests of the university educational system, as a whole, a Council has been established, which is representative of all the corporations concerned.

I. THE COLLEGES.

Columbia College offers for men a course of four years, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Candidates for admission to the college must be at least fifteen years of age, and pass an examination on prescribed subjects, the particulars concerning which may be found in the annual Circular of Information.

Barnard College, founded in 1889, offers for women a course of four years, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Candidates for admission to the college must be at least fifteen years of age, and pass an examination on prescribed subjects, the particulars concerning which may be found in the annual Circular of Information.

II. THE UNIVERSITY.

In a technical sense, the Faculties of Law, Medicine, Philosophy, Political Science, Pure Science, and Applied Science, taken together constitute the university. These faculties offer advanced courses of study and investigation, respectively, in (a) private or municipal law, (b) medicine, (c) philosophy, philology, and letters, (d) history, economics, and public law (e) mathematics and natural science, and (f) applied science. Courses of study under all of these faculties are open to members of the senior class in Columbia College. Certain courses under the non-professional faculties are open to women who have taken the first degree. These courses lead, through the Bachelor's degree, to the university degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy. The degree of Master of Laws is also conferred for advanced work in law done under the Faculties of Law and Political Science together.

III. THE PROFESSIONAL SCHOOLS.

The Faculties of Law, Medicine, and Applied Science, conduct respectively the professional schools of Law, Medicine, Mines, Chemistry, Engineering, and Architecture, to which students are

3. The SCHOOL OF MINES, established in 1864, offers courses of study, each of four years, leading to a professional degree, in mining engineering and in metallurgy.

4. The SCHOOLS OF CHEMISTRY, ENGINEERING, AND ARCHITECTURE, set off from the School of Mines in 1896, offer respectively, courses of study, each of four years, leading to an appropriate professional degree, in analytical and applied chemistry; in civil, sanitary, electrical, and mechanical engineering; and in architecture.

5. TEACHERS' COLLEGE, founded in 1888 and chartered in 1889, was included in the university system in 1898.
