1902 "Mortarboard."

The aim of the 1902 "Mortarboard" is the same as that of its predecessors—to be a publication containing matters of interest to the College as a whole, but more especially to the Junior Class, from whose members the Board of Editors is elected at the close of the Sophomore year.

The dedication of the book reads: "To Professor James Harvey Robinson, Acting Dean of Barnard College, in all respect, gratitude and friendship, this Eleventh Annual 'Mortarboard' is dedicated by the Class of 1902." The frontispiece is an admirable portrait of Professor Robinson, which will prove a very valuable souvenir to each student who was in College while the Acting Dean held office.

In this "Mortarboard," the commendable tendency is shown to lay less stress on the literary work to be found there, than on the records of class enterprises and various college organizations, which will cause the 1902 "Mortarboard" to be a cherished book of reference in days to come. From this, it is by no means to be inferred that the literary side of the publication has been slighted; on the contrary, there are several clever articles well worth reading, notably, the "Undergraduate Primer," for which Miss Elliman is responsible. There are also a good many bright bits of verse—perhaps that most worthy of praise is "One Point of View," in which the Sophomore holds forth.

An innovation in this year's annual is the collection of Individual Records, containing the photograph and brief college history of each member of 1902. Each of these is accompanied by a "grind," the inevitable characteristic of all Barnard College annuals. On the whole, the "grinds" are bright and well selected, although in some cases it would seem they were a little too pointed to be in good taste. In a publication like the "Mortarboard," any "grind" is out of place which can cause an instant's ill-feeling to any one.

The book is bound in black and silver, the cover being the exact size, the editors tell us, of the mortarboard which the students wear. Compared with last year's issue, this is rather scanty in drawings and photographs, but those which appear are uniformly good.

Taken altogether, the 1902 "Mortarboard" is a worthy successor to the ten which have preceded it, and the editors may well be complimented on the results of their labors.

Reception to Miss Gill.

On Friday evening, May 17th, Miss Walker gave a dinner and reception at the College in honor of Miss Gill. At dinner were Professor and Mrs. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Simkhovitch, Mrs. Putnam, Professor Lodge, Dr. Richards, Dr. Nitze. Miss Gill and Miss Walker received in the reception room of Milbank Hall, and refreshments were served in the Theatre, where there was music and dancing. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Low, Mr. Silas B. Brownell and Miss Brownell, Dr. and Mrs. Meyer, Miss Maltby, Professor and Mrs. John B. Clark, Professor and Mrs. James R. Wheeler, Professor and Mrs. Lord, Professor and Mrs. Earle, Professor McCrea and Miss McCrea, Professors Seligman, Hallock and Cole, Professor and Mrs. Munroe, Professor and Mrs. Burdick, Professors Munroe Smith, Butler and Peck, Dr. and Mrs. Canfield; and from the Teachers' College, Professor and Mrs. Woodhull, Professor and Mrs. McMurry, Professor and Mrs. Hutton.

This was the first formal opportunity for the wives of the Faculty to meet Miss Gill. In addition to the members of the University circle there were present many guests from outside.

Columbia News.

Professor James R. Wheeler, of the Department of Classical Philology has succeeded Professor Seymour, of Yale, as chairman of the Managing Committee of the American School for Classical Study at Athens.

The statutes of the University were recently amended so as to insure promptness in student registration. After July 1, 1902, every student failing to register within the limits of the time fixed by the regulations, will be permitted to register only on the payment of an additional fee.

Frederick Keppel, Columbia, '98, assistant secretary of the University, has been chosen to serve on the Faculty Committee on Employment for Students.

University Fellowships.

Of the three fellowships open to the colleges and universities of the United States, two this year have been awarded to holders of Columbia degrees: Agnes Baldwin, Barnard A.B., '97, Columbia A.M., '00, and Bert Hodge Hill, University of Vermont, A.B., '95, Columbia A.M., '00.

A temporary fellowship, under the department of Germanic languages and literatures, has been awarded to Annina Perian, a graduate of the Women's College of Baltimore.

Fiske Hall Under New Management.

Miss Walker has resigned her position as head of Fiske Hall, in order to become manager of the West Side Branch of the University Settlement in King street. The position has been offered to and accepted by Mrs. Charles H. Gibson, widow of ex-Senator Gibson, of Maryland. Mrs. Gibson will have two assistants, Mrs. Emma G. Hurt, in the position of housekeeper, and Miss Alice R. Jackson, Wellesley A.B. and Columbia A.M.

English 21.

Barnard students intending to elect English 21, in 1901-1902, may obtain, at the Dean's office, or of Professor G. R. Carpenter, copies of the syllabus of the corresponding course given at Columbia College by Professor Brander Matthews. Precisely the same reading will probably not be required in the Barnard course, but the syllabus will serve to indicate, in general, the work to be required of Barnard students. Much of it may be, with profit, accomplished during the summer vacation.

Two Rare Books.

Students who have been taking the course on the "Development of Culture During the Middle Ages" will be interested in two volumes that have recently been obtained by the Columbia Library. One, which was published in the fifteenth century, is a manuscript in old Italian, an interpretation of Herodian, by Politian, the Humanist poet, who wrote such remarkably polished Ciceronian Latin. It is bound in old half-Russia.

The other book is the "Musical Compendium," by René Descartes, published in 1650. It treats of the theory of music from a purely mathematical point of view.

Commencement Schedule. Corrected.

The schedule for commencement week has been drawn up, as follows: Thursday, June 6th, Barnard Senior Dance; Friday, June 7th, Barnard Class Day; Sunday, June 9th, Baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. Dr. Rainsford; Monday afternoon, June 10th, Columbia Class Day; Monday night, June 10th, Columbia Senior Dance; Tuesday, June 11th, Reception to the Seniors, by President and Mrs. Low; Wednesday morning, June 12th, Commencement.

Latin 3.

Special attention is called to the following change in the time-table for 1901-1902: Latin 3, M. W. F. at 11.30, instead of 10.30.

BARNARD COLLEGE,
COLUMBIA UNIV., N. Y.

MONDAY, MAY 27, 1901.

The close of the College year brings with it not only retrospect but thoughts of the future that is waiting before us. A new administration has begun, and with it a new era has been inaugurated. With the installation of our present Dean, Barnard entered on another period of its history, one which must, as the inevitable consequence of its growth and development, be larger and broader, and more potent, than any which has preceded it.

The marked increase in the number of students which characterized the present year's enrollment bids fair to be far surpassed by next year's registration. New students are coming to take part in the life and spirit of our College, new opportunities are opening out before us, and new conditions are to be met and conquered. Barnard is no longer the small college that it was even five years ago; it is entering on something very like a university life, with all the many advantages and the possible disadvantages which this status entails. It is but natural that with the growth of the College something of the intimate and close relations of the students should be lost, and yet such a state of affairs, though in one sense unfortunate, is not necessarily alarming. It will henceforth be impossible for the classes to meet and know each other on the same intimate terms which obtained before, yet there need be no diminution of a sane, healthy and earnest college spirit. On the contrary, the immense strides which our College has already taken, and the promising future which spreads out before it, the pride which we must naturally feel in its development, and the interest which we must inevitably bestow on its every opportunity for advance and improvement, should form new links to bind us together, and to build up a spirit, true, and loyal, and forceful enough to give Barnard the support and strength which are necessary for its fullest and richest development.

There are two complaints which we have to make in connection with the College lunch-room. The first is that the lunch-room is kept locked during the examination weeks, to the inconvenience of many of the students who find it impossible to make arrangements to take lunch in the Fiske Hall dining-room. Such students, and there are a number of them, bring their lunches with them. And, even if they disregard the very necessary rule made by the Undergraduate Association, namely, that they shall eat their lunches nowhere in College but in the lunch-room, they find it almost impossible to discover a corner where they can lunch in peace and quiet.

While we realize that the demand for lunches during the examination weeks is so small that it is financially impossible to serve them to the students who are at College during the middle of the day, nevertheless, we cannot see why the lunch-room cannot be kept unlocked during the examination weeks.

The other grievance is hardly a grievance, but rather a suggestion. Last year we had a clock in the lunch-room; this year, when we all eat where we cannot hear the electric bells of the clocks in Milbank Hall, we have been greatly inconvenienced, and often forced to take too little time for our lunches, because there was no clock visible in the room. It is such a small matter as hardly to deserve comment, and yet the two grievances we mention would, if corrected, be a source of comfort to many students.

To the Editors of the BULLETIN:

May I take the opportunity of expressing, through your columns, an opinion which seems to be rather prevalent among the members of the College? Without any special reference to the recently issued "Mortarboard," I wish to state that in the past few years there has been a marked tendency toward making a large part of the material which appears in these annuals decidedly personal. The grinds on the instructors and on the members of the Junior class have been becoming more and more sharp and annoying, and have in several cases approached, and in one or two instances surpassed, the bounds of good taste. While harmless and measured "hits" on faculty and students are amusing and interesting, the pointed epigrams which appear too often are undignified and unworthy of a place in our College publications. In some of the prominent universities of the country grinds are absolutely forbidden. While we would not wish to go so far as to abolish this department from future "Mortarboards," it would seem that some measures ought to be taken to prevent any abuse of this portion of the work. Either some very rigid rules, drawn up by the editors of the "Mortarboard," ought to be introduced and strictly adhered to, or else no grind ought to be accepted which does not receive the unanimous approval of the board of editors. X

Latin 22.

The work of the course known as Latin 22 will be so far different in the academic year 1901-1902 as to admit of students who have once satisfactorily pursued the course electing and counting it a second time.

Notice to Seniors.

Members of the Class of 1901, who desire their themes written in Rhetoric B during the year 1898-99, and in Rhetoric C during the year 1899-1900, may obtain them from Miss Sumner in the reading room. All themes not called for by June 1st will be destroyed.

Candidates for Admission.

A report from the Bursar's office states that there are about 225 students coming up to take entrance examinations in June. Of these about seventy-five are to take preliminary examinations.

Notice.

All members of the Basket-ball Club who have played basket-ball this winter are requested to remove their gymnasium suits from the dressing-room, before the end of May.

Greek 7.

The work of the course known as Greek 7 will be so far different in the academic year 1901-1902 as to admit of students who have once satisfactorily pursued that course, electing and counting it a second time.

Barnard Y. W. C. A. Delegates.

The Barnard Chapter of the Y. W. C. A. has decided to send Miss Grace V. Peters, '02, and Miss Una Winterburn, '02, as delegates to the Northfield summer conferences for young women.

Senior Lunch Arrangements.

The Senior luncheon will be held in Fiske Hall, on Wednesday, June 5th, and will be followed by a reception to Miss Gill, in the theatre, at 4 o'clock. The committee are Miss Hamilton, Miss Roberts, and Miss Loveman.

1904 Notes.

The Freshman luncheon will be held on Saturday, June 1st. The committee on arrangements is as follows: Miss Durant, Miss Sexon, Miss Schlüssel, and Miss Stobo.

Woman's Graduate Club Notes.

The final meeting of the Woman's Graduate Club was held on Thursday last. The election committee for next year was appointed as follows: Mrs. Bryson, chairman; Miss Woodhull, and Miss Simpson.

Candidates were nominated to go as delegates to the next annual meeting of the Federation of Graduate Clubs, at Washington, D. C., and important amendments to the constitution were considered, which will be acted upon at the first regular meeting next year.

Graduates who wish to become members of the Graduate Club would do well to send in their names to any member of the election committee.

Notice.

The cloakroom closes on June 1. Students are requested to return their checks on or before that date.

The death of Susie Bogia, at her home in Passaic, N. J., on May 16th, is a matter of sincere regret to her class, and to her friends at large throughout the college.

Columbia University in the City of New York.

Columbia University includes both a college and a university in the strict sense of the word. The college is Columbia College, founded in 1754 as King's College. The university consists of the Faculties of Law, Medicine, Philosophy, Political Science, Pure Science and Applied Science.

The point of contact between the college and university is the senior year of the college, during which year students in the college pursue their studies, with the consent of the college faculty under one or more of the faculties of the university.

Barnard College, a college for women, is financially, a separate corporation; but educationally, is a part of the system of Columbia University.

Teachers College, a professional school for teachers, is also, financially, a separate corporation; and also educationally, a part of the system of Columbia University.

Each college and school is under the charge of its own faculty, except that the Schools of Mines, Chemistry, Engineering and Architecture are all under the charge of the Faculty of Applied Science.

For the care and advancement of the general interests of the university educational system, as a whole, a Council has been established, which is representative of all the corporations concerned.

I. THE COLLEGES.

Columbia College offers for men a course of four years, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Candidates for admission to the college must be at least fifteen years of age, and pass an examination on prescribed subjects, the particulars concerning which may be found in the annual Circular of Information.

Barnard College, founded in 1889, offers for women a course of four years, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Candidates for admission to the college must be at least fifteen years of age, and pass an examination on prescribed subjects, the particulars concerning which may be found in the annual Circular of Information.

II. THE UNIVERSITY.

In a technical sense, the Faculties of Law, Medicine, Philosophy, Political Science, Pure Science, and Applied Science, taken together constitute the university. These faculties offer advanced courses of study and investigation, respectively, in (a) private or municipal law, (b) medicine, (c) philosophy, philology, and letters, (d) history, economics, and public law (e) mathematics and natural science, and (f) applied science. Courses of study under all of these faculties are open to members of the senior class in Columbia College. Certain courses under the non-professional faculties are open to women who have taken the first degree. These courses lead, through the Bachelor's degree, to the university degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy. The degree of Master of Laws is also conferred for advanced work in law done under the Faculties of Law and Political Science together.

III. THE PROFESSIONAL SCHOOLS.

The Faculties of Law, Medicine, and Applied Science, conduct respectively the professional schools of Law, Medicine, Mines, Chemistry, Engineering, and Architecture, to which students are admitted as candidates for professional degrees on terms prescribed by the faculties concerned. The faculty of Teachers' College conducts professional courses for teachers, that lead to a diploma of the university.

1. The SCHOOL OF LAW, established in 1858, offers a course of three years, in the principles and practice of private and public law, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Laws.

2. The COLLEGE OF PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, founded in 1807, offers a course of four years, in the principles and practice of medicine and surgery, leading to the degree of Doctor of Medicine.

3. The SCHOOL OF MINES, established in 1864, offers courses of study, each of four years, leading to a professional degree, in mining engineering and in metallurgy.

4. The SCHOOLS OF CHEMISTRY, ENGINEERING, AND ARCHITECTURE, set off from the School of Mines in 1896, offer respectively, courses of study, each of four years, leading to an appropriate professional degree, in analytical and applied chemistry; in civil, sanitary, electrical, and mechanical engineering; and in architecture.

5. TEACHERS' COLLEGE, founded in 1888 and chartered in 1889, was included in the university system in 1898. It offers the following courses of study: (a) graduate courses leading to the higher diploma or to the secondary diploma; (b) professional courses, each of two years, leading to diplomas for teachers and supervisors in kindergartens or elementary schools, or for specialists in Domestic Art, Domestic Science, Fine Arts, and Manual Training; (c) a collegiate course of two years, which, if followed by a two years' professional course, leads to the degree of Bachelor of Science. Certain of its courses may be taken without extra charge by students of the university in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Master of Arts, and Doctor of Philosophy.

SETH LOW, LL.D., President.
