Swimming Pool for Barnard Students

MORNINGSIDE HEIGHTS, Feb. 1, 1902.
The swimming pool at the Columbia gymnasium will be open to women Wednesday evenings between the hours of 7.30 and 8.30 for three months, commencing February 5th. The fee for this privilege will be $2.

For an additional fee of $3 instruction in swimming will be given to as many as can be accommodated. Squads will be formed and hours arranged for instruction in the order of application. This class will be open to wives and daughters of officers of the University, women students and women members of the staff. Should the enrolment be sufficient to meet the expense, another evening a week will be open for similar use.

Fees must be paid to the Bursar, room 108, Library, and the receipt presented at the Gymnasium office.

W. L. SAVAGE,
Director of the Gymnasium.

Undergraduate Notice

The next meeting of the Undergraduate Association will be held on Thursday, February 13th, at 12.20 in the Theatre. The special business of this meeting will be the final consideration of the Play Committee's report.

E. M. POOL, Secretary.

French Plays

The French Society held a social meeting on Monday afternoon, February 3, in Fiske Hall. The names of those who intend taking part in the French play have been called for. The Society after considering upon plays to be given, has practically decided upon "Les Précieuses Ridicules" by Molière and "La Poudre aux Yeux" by Labiche. The play will take place in the spring.

Examinations

The new system of examinations has been unsatisfactory inasmuch as it has caused confusion in the work and discontent among the students. The pressure of study in the one week was so great that students were unable to do themselves justice in the examinations.

In consideration of these facts the Barnard Faculty, together with the other faculties of Columbia University, has decided to abandon the new scheme of examinations, although it will not decide until the next meeting of the University Council what plan will be adopted for the future.

The faculty has also decided to extend the present courses. Several higher classes will be offered in the department of Political Science and Economics. There will also be changes in this department owing to the resignation of Prof. May.

President Butler's Inauguration.

Professor Nicholas Murray Butler is to be installed as president of the University on the 19th of April. The event is to take place in the Columbia gymnasium, which will hold about three thousand persons. President Roosevelt, Gov. Odell and the presidents of several large universities in the United States will probably be present to address the students. The Chairman of the Board of Trustees, William C. Schermerhorn, will present President-elect Butler with the keys and the charter of the University according to the tradition of the College. Mr. Butler will make his inaugural address after the speeches of greeting from the presidents of other universities. Music will follow these addresses. In the evening the Alumni Council will give a dinner for President Butler at Sherry's, at which President Roosevelt will be a guest.

The 18th of April will probably be declared a holiday for the students.

Beatrice Herford

At the entertainment to be given by Alpha Zeta Chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta Friday afternoon, February 14, at 4 o'clock, Beatrice Herford, who has been enthusiastically received by New York audiences this winter, will recite some of her original monologues.

Freshman Game

The Freshman Basket-ball team will go to Mt. Vernon to meet the Emanon team on either the 18th or the 25th of February. The members of the Freshman team are Miss Fisher, captain, and Miss Talbot, centers; Miss Cooley and Miss Dorian, forwards; Miss Hoffman and Miss Reiley, guards.

The Botanical Club

At a meeting of the Botanical Club on Friday, January 31st, it was decided that four meetings of the club should take place during the year: the first to be a business and social meeting combined; the second a scientific meeting with an address; the third a trip to the Botanical Gardens to see the progress of spring flora; the fourth a tea for the college.

Sophomore-Freshman Debating Society

The regular meeting of the Sophomore-Freshman Debating Society was held Tuesday, February 4th. The following members were elected to hold office until the end of the present college year: President, Miss Parker, '04; Vice-President, Miss Hutchinson, '05; Secretary and Treasurer, Miss Draper, '05. A debate followed on the question, "Resolved, That Co-education is Beneficial to Both Sexes." The negative side won.

1902 Notice

There will be a meeting of the Senior Class on Monday, February 10, at 5.30 to discuss Class Day matters.

Christmas at the College Settlement

The committee on Christmas work for the College and West Side Settlements wishes to extend sincere thanks for the effective cooperation given by the College. The day before Christmas, fifty-six dressed dolls, eight dozen tarlatan stockings, two large boxes of toys, some pieces of serviceable clothing and seven dollars in money were sent to the Settlements for distribution.

Miss Williams, head worker at the College Settlement House on Rivington street, writes that the boxes were deeply appreciated. The children were especially delighted with the dolls.

Perhaps the most adequate idea of a "Settlement" Christmas can be gained from a description sent to Barnard as an expression of gratitude by one of the resident workers at Rivington street:

"Some one once said of a Settlement Christmas that, 'there was doubtless great good-will toward men but that peace fled from its door.'

"If this gentle spirit really does desert us at this season no one really has time to inquire, for after the first arrival of the expressman and his big unsightly boxes, all is activity and work.

Long before the festival begins the Residents' parlor is gay with color, there Santa Claus reigns and children are warned to keep out. Dolls cover every available spot, awaiting, with well-dressed confidence, their turn for adoption, and into this big room is gradually stored all the treasures that college and school girls have for weeks been collecting and arranging. The result on Christmas Eve is like a corner of Schwartz's Toy Bazaar, with the price marks omitted.

"The college girl who sits up late to finish her doll for the box, and the city child who receives it rapturously from the lighted tree, are strangers, but the Settlement is a mutual friend. To one it presents an opportunity to "lend a hand" in the real world beyond her college gates, and to the other of a glimpse into the world beautiful beyond the gray streets.

"Sunday afternoon for an hour all children are welcome in the house to sing and listen to a story. The Sunday before Christmas it was a Christmas tale, and at the end the doors into the parlor were rolled back and there stood the lighted tree. There was a breathless moment, followed by a glorious, excited shout, and then following the piano the children began to sing:

"Look now for glad and golden hours
Come swiftly on the wing;
Close by the winter days,
We hear the angels sing.

With this happy crowd of the door-step children, the Christmas season at the Set-

BARNARD COLLEGE,
COLUMBIA UNIV., N. Y.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1902.

THE BULLETIN prints elsewhere in its columns an invitation from Dr. Savage to Barnard students to use the Columbia Gymnasium. This presents to us an unexpected and unsolicited opportunity. Several women connected with the families of the faculty were desirous of using the swimming pool on a disengaged evening. Incidentally, through the arrangement that was made to accommodate them, women students in the University were also admitted, thus lessening the expense for all concerned.

This arrangement, which is much less official than that of last year, will be considered a great privilege by many students who live near the University. The Director of the Gymnasium has certainly been most courteous in offering these facilities to women at hours which, under present conditions, can in no way interfere with the comfort of Columbia men.

Notice

Miss Spencer has resigned from the staff of the BULLETIN and her place as Business Manager will be taken by Miss Curtis. Any one wishing to try for the position of Assistant Business Manager may apply for further information to the Editors of the BULLETIN.

Barnard College Committees

President Butler has appointed the following on the Committee on the Curriculum and the Scheme of Attendance: Dean Laura D. Gill, Chairman; Prof. James H. Robinson, Prof. Mortimer L. Earle, Prof. Benjamin D. Woodward and Dr. Henry W. Crampton. Committee on Admissions: Prof. Mortimer L. Earle, Chairman; Prof. Frank N. Cole and Prof. William P. Trent. Members of the Committee on Scholarships: Dean Laura D. Gill; Chairman, Mr. William T. Brewster, and Miss Maltby. Committee on Honors: Prof. Herbert Lord, Chairman; Prof. Benjamin D. Woodward and Prof. William P. Trent.

Dr. Canfield on Women's Needs

Dr. James H. Canfield, Librarian of Columbia University, has recently published a book entitled "The College Student and His Problems." This work contains helpful advice drawn from the author's long experience as Secretary and President of the National Educational Association; Professor of History, University of Kansas; Chancellor of the University of Nebraska; President of the Ohio State University, etc. The following, as being of special interest to women, is printed below:

"The life work of the great majority of women will always be in the home. This does not mean, of course, that she is necessarily to be a wife or a mother—though this will be true of the great majority of women. But whether as wife, or daughter, or sister, or even when living alone—she will be the home-maker. The great natural division of labor, to which there may be many exceptions, is this: that the men prepare the world for the children and the women prepare the children for the world—meanwhile taking good care that the man himself is enabled to do his part of the work in a most efficient manner. The modern thought, therefore, about the education of women is to bring into the curriculum enough of that which will bear practically upon home-making to satisfy the young woman that her time is not being thrown away and to give her at least a somewhat adequate preparation for her special work. It is useless to say that this preparation should be secured at the home; the conditions of modern home life and of social life practically forbid this. Just as it is quite impossible for a man to apprentice his son to himself in his own business, because the unions have filled their apprentice list, so it is impossible for a mother to train her daughters as they were once trained—and it must be confessed that we are looking at that old-time training through the rose-tinted glasses with which we always regard the past.

"The elements of this work should be done in the high school, precisely as the elements of manual training are placed there for the boy. But the higher forms of the work should be taken up during the college course, in which they need not absorb more than one-quarter of the entire time. It is not at all difficult to determine what studies may be very profitably elided from the curriculum to give place for this work; it is somewhat more difficult to determine how this work shall be carried.

"That the educators of this country will find a way to do this intelligently and efficiently goes without saying. They will find a way, without overloading the present curriculum, and without introducing work that in any respect falls below college standards.

Wellesley to Debate with Vassar

Wellesley College is to debate with Vassar at Wellesley on or before May 1. Vassar has held two trial debates in order to decide who shall represent her at Wellesley. The following have been chosen: Miss C. M. Thompson, '03, Atlanta, Ga., leader; Miss E. E. Johnson, '02, of Utica, N. Y., and Miss C. A. Spicer, '03, of Providence, R. I.

Notice

There will be no basket-ball practice on Tuesday, February 11.

tlement opened, and for ten days a beautiful old house remained "en fête." There were dances every evening, of them gay cotillions, and afternoon parties where Santa Claus presided and presents were distributed.

"Many of the afternoon clubs gave a carefully prepared program of entertainment. One club of girls was especially attractive as the flowers that grew in Mistress Mary's garden, and felt consciously proud of its bright costume.

"A clause in the constitution of the Sky Blues, a club of small girls who have originated their name and rules, is that the club shall aid the poor and suppress cursing. In harmony with this spirit the club decided to present a tree to a poor family on Water street. A committee of seven, accompanied by a resident, carried the precious offering to the family, but for some reason the committee waited on the sidewalk while the resident went in with the tree. When she returned, there was the committee of young philanthropists surrounded by a hostile crowd of hooting children, throwing stones and calling them 'sheeny.' The following account of the affair was written by a member of the committee:

"We trimmed the tree on Tuesday; we trimmed it very nice. All the girls come in the house and we had lots fun. We brot down the Sky Blue tree to the poor people in Water street and they were glad to have. We brot stockings and mits and we trided to help them for the the poor peoples Sky Blues shall help and the poor mans and the poor childrens. The boys threw fire and old thinks at us and we all cryed and they called us dirty names and this is the rest."

"In addition to the Sky Blue tree, there were about ten other small trees sent with Christmas dinners to Christian families whom the Settlement knew would otherwise not be remembered. One family, where the mother and children were away all day, came home at Christmas Eve to find a trimmed tree and a Christmas dinner on the table. Since that event it would be difficult to persuade the children of that family that Santa Claus is not a reality.

"The big New Year's party was the last of the festivities. The evening clubs were all invited and the Residents gave an amusing review of the Settlement year in a series of living pictures with descriptive verse, that proved very popular.

"With the New Year chimes the Yuletide came to a close, the big room upstairs was empty of toys, the tree, dear friend of the children, was old and dry. Christmas of 1901 had passed beyond the College and the Settlement into the homes of the thronging children, but the New Year was begun, it is hoped, to carry into another twelve months the inspiration of the past ten days."

Classical Club

The Classical Club of Columbia University held its first meeting in Room 323, University Hall, on the evening of Friday, January 31, at 8.30. The meeting was wholly informal and social in nature, its object being to bring together the various members of the University who have a common interest in the classics and afford them an opportunity of becoming acquainted with one another, before determining the character of the formal work of the club. About fifty members were present, Barnard being represented by two members of the Senior Class. Every one was given an opportunity for meeting Professor Peck, the president of the club, and the evening was pleasantly passed in introductions and conversation, refreshments being served towards the close.

The first business meeting will be held on Friday, February 14, and thereafter there will be two meetings a month, one social, the other for business.

Theses at Wellesley

The requirements for the M.A. degree have been changed at Wellesley College. A candidate for that degree must now devote to it one entire year of work, including not less than nine hours nor more than twelve hours of regular class work. Besides this a thesis or report or both based on independent work must be handed in. Graduate students applying for the degree must have done the work required at a university which does not grant the M.A. to women. This is only in the case of non-resident students. Part of the work may be done at an institution granting the degree to women, if this work is tested at Wellesley. The professor in charge must approve of the work of the student, and she must take at least six hours of class room study at Wellesley.

College Examination Board.

The catalogue of the College-Entrance Examination Board for 1902-1903, contains all information as regards the subject for examination, the requirements for entrance for 1902, a schedule of examinations, and full information for candidates. The chief examiners in botany, drawing, and chemistry, are Prof. William M. Ganong of Smith College, Prof. Henry P. Talbot and Alfred E. Bennett of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Prof. Herbert Weir Woodhead of the Greek department of Harvard. Prof. Mears of Williams, Prof. Rice of Wesleyan, and Prof. Chapman of Wellesley will be associate examiners in the above subjects.
