BARNARD DEFEATED BY NORMAL.

In the basketball match on Saturday morning, December 13, in the Normal College gymnasium, the Barnard team met defeat at the hands of the Normal team by a score of 16 to 2. It was the first match game of the season for Barnard, and the team did not play well. It put up rather a hard defensive game, but made no leading plays and did but little passing. The Normals, on the other hand, were in good training and showed excellent team work. Their passing was swift and sure, and their accurate goal throwing was an example for Barnard, which too often loses opportunities through lack of good aim.

Mr. Allen, the coach of the Normal team, was referee, and Mr. Cook, coach of the Barnard team, was umpire. Elsa Alsberg, '02, was timekeeper. The line-up was as follows:

First Half—Center, Abigail Talbot, '05; forwards, Edith Somborn, '06; Cecil Dorian, '05; guards, Margie Hoffman, '05; Anna Reiley, '05.

Second Half.—Center, Annie Fisher, '05; forwards, Edith Lomborn, '06; Cecil Dorian, '05; guards, Margie Hoffman, '05; Anna Reiley, '05.

Annie Fisher scored the two for Barnard. Several fouls were called on Normal, and one or two on Barnard, but neither team scored by them. The Normal team was cheered to success by about two hundred rooters, and a good many from Barnard faced the storm to stand by their side. The team is grateful to them for their support.

After the game the Normals entertained the Barnard team at a spread, which was served on long tables decorated with the Normal colors, white and lavender.

The two teams meet again in the Barnard gymnasium on February 28.

BASKETBALL NOTICE.

At the last meeting for practice before the holidays, Edith Somborn, '06, was chosen captain of the Freshmen team.

The Freshmen will probably play their first match game on Saturday, January 17, with the Emanon team of Mount Vernon.

TENNIS.

Owing to the cold weather the final match of the tennis tournament will likely be postponed until spring. Even if a warm day should come, the court would be in such poor condition that playing on it would be out of the question. The championship rests between Jean Egleston, 1904, and Edith Handy, 1905.

DORMITORY NOTES.

On account of the death of Miss Dunn, the dance which was to have been given in Whittier Hall on Friday evening, December 19, has been postponed until January 16.

ALUMNAE LUNCHEON.

The Associate Alumnae held their annual luncheon in the college theatre on Tuesday, December 30. It was perhaps the largest and most successful meeting in the history of the association. At the seven tables one hundred and ten places were occupied. Miss Gil, Miss Pullman, president and the first graduates of the college sat at the chief table. The class of 1902 had the largest attendance, twenty-four being present. But there were other classes which had a larger percentage of their members present. '96 missed only six of their membership of eighteen.

A large class banner hung from the balcony over the table at which sat the members of '99. This class was perhaps the most joyful of all, if one can judge from the laughter and toasts that were almost constant at that table.

Mrs. Annie Nathan Meyer, Mrs. Liggitt and Miss Gildersleeve sat at each, with the class of which she was honorary member.

Miss Pullman, in a short address, spoke of the desirability of having a close bond of sympathy between graduates of the old Barnard and the director of the present college; she then proposed a toast to Dean Gill.

The tables were tastefully decorated in red and green. Christmas trees, holly and mistletoe were scattered about in abundance.

After the luncheon was over, the class of 1900 entertained the rest of the guests with a farce called, "Serious Situations in Burleigh's Room." The cast of characters was as follows:

Ned Burleigh.....	E. T. B. Reiley
Steve Hudson.....	F. Lippincott
Jack Randolph.....	F. T. Baldwin
Prof. Shreedy.....	E. Osborne
Mrs. Hudson.....	Florence Sill
Miss Hudson.....	Helen Cole

Miss Schwed was stage manager. The play was well acted and the actors were generously applauded.

DIED.

Suddenly, on Thursday morning, December 17, 1902, Louise Brisbin Dunn, of the class of '97 and tutor in the Department of Botany.

1903 NOTES.

The Seniors held a class party on Wednesday, December 17. The members of the class brought their baby photographs, and these were put up around the theatre and guessed. Much surprise and comment was occasioned when the names of the owners were finally announced. After this part of the entertainment, refreshments were served, and dancing, charades, and singing of class and college songs followed.

CHRISTMAS AT 95 RIVINGTON ST.

It has been the custom in former years to collect donations for the Christmas work of the College Settlement by means of boxes placed in the class studies; this year the work was carried on by personal appeal. In the Senior class, Edna Fry collected $1, which was spent for dolls; Edith Van Ingen and Margaret Stone handed in 85 cents from 1904; the Sophomores contributed $12.58, through Katharine Goodyear; but the class of 1906 took the lead, by donating $21.54, through Edith Somborn. It was intended that the entire sum should be expended for dolls and toys, but, owing to the facts that the amount was larger than necessary for that purpose and that money was greatly needed to meet the expenses of the entertainments, the greater part was handed to Miss Williams, head worker at the Settlement, to be used at her discretion. In all, about $34.97 was paid out for entertainments and for Christmas dinners for poor families in the neighborhood. In addition, twenty-eight dolls were sent to 95 Rivington street. About eighteen of these were dressed by students in co-operation with the Christian Association, and the rest were given by Sophomores.

Miss Williams was very much pleased with the generous interest of Barnard in the work.

A few words concerning the character of the Christmas festivities to which the students have so long contributed may be of interest.

For a week before and after Christmas, afternoons and evenings are given up to the entertainment of all the clubs connected with the Settlement. Each member receives a gift. This method of individual entertainments has been decided upon as the most practical, for the total membership of the clubs is so enormous that a single Christmas personal interest is greater when the parties are small, and the club members celebrate the holiday season with those with whom they have already become acquainted in their regular weekly meetings. The parties are always held in the Settlement house, and are frequently visited by delegations from Barnard or from other women's colleges. This year a large number of Vassar girls were present. Some amusement is provided, as, for example, a sleight-of-hand performance, which is followed by refreshments.

On the second floor of the house one large room is set aside for presents, contributed by the colleges. These are distributed among families in the neighborhood, as well as among the clubs.

SOPHOMORE DANCE.

On account of the death of Miss Dunn, the Sophomore dance has been postponed until Friday, January 9.

BARNARD BULLETIN,
BARNARD COLLEGE,
Broadway & 119th Street, COLUMBIA UNIV., N. Y.

MONDAY, JANUARY 5, 1903.

To all students in the college, and particularly to those who were personally acquainted with Miss Dunn, the news of her death has come with a great shock. Those who have taken courses under her direction will not lose the inspiration of the faithfulness and enthusiasm which so characterized all her work.

A most important question which has already begun to interest the students is that of the undergraduate play. Although the time of presenting the play is still distant, it is by no means too soon to discuss the matter thoroughly from all points of view.

The first thing to be considered is what the play shall be. Since the two former productions of the Undergraduate Association, "She Stoops to Conquer," and "The Rivals," are comedies of the same period and alike in many ways, it would probably be wise this year for the sake of variety and experiment as well to attempt something quite different. On this point, no doubt, public opinion is unanimous. As a second essential, we would suggest that the play chosen be well within the capacity of the actors. Although the desire to uphold the reputation of Barnard by presenting a classic and dignified drama is well intentioned, it would surely be a mistake to make a selection on grounds which smack strongly of pedantry. A simple, even frivolous play, easy to interpret and given faultlessly, is plainly to be preferred to one which the most talented amateurs cannot adequately produce.

It must be unnecessary to urge on all students their obligation to support the play by showing their interest in every way possible. We invite correspondence on the subject in order that no useful ideas may be lost.

It is hoped that students interested in the work of the basketball team will not feel discouraged over the defeat in the game with Normal College on December 13. There are two good reasons to offer for Barnard's low score. Four members of the team who played in the game had worked hard in preparation of the Sophomore show for Freshmen, given the day before the game with Normal, and found themselves worn out when it came to a hard struggle in basketball. Besides, this was the first time when the team had played a match with its present line-up. Taking these facts into consideration, it is not to be wondered that the Barnard team met defeat.

Experience is a valuable teacher. In this first game, the players learned their weak points, and know where to work to strengthen the team. Though somewhat discouraged at first, they now have renewed energy and enthusiasm to get the team in good form for the next match game.

The experience of the players in the tennis tournament should be a warning to those who undertake the management of the tournament next year. It is hard at the beginning of the season to realize how short the autumn is, and the lack of this realization is just where the trouble has been this year. As there are a great many matches to be played off and as appointments are difficult to arrange, every effort should be put forth to bring the tournament to a close during October or early November, for the weather after the middle of November cannot be counted on. It is impossible for the college at large or for individual players to feel the same interest in a match which has been postponed for several months.

BARNARD BOTANICAL CLUB.

The annual business meeting of the Barnard Botanical Club was held on Saturday afternoon, December 13, at the home of Mrs. Henry S. Gibson.

A letter from Dean Gill was read, in which she accepted honorary membership in the club. It was decided that, following a custom of former years, the club should hold a botanical tea in the laboratories early in May. At the request of the president, Dr. Richards told the club of the work which is being done in botany in the college, of the recent improvements in laboratory space and equipment, and of the department's present needs.

This fall the club presented to the college ten volumes on botanical subjects by Darwin, Huxley, Lubbock, Sorauer, MacDougal, Coulter, and others.

The Barnard Botanical Club was organized in 1897, when Dr. Emily L. Gregory was head of the department, and a certificate was given for a four years' course in botany. Its members include the teaching staff, and present and former students. Any person is eligible to membership who has completed at least one year of botany and is continuing her work in the department.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. A. B. Hepburn; first vice-president, Miss Alexandrina Taylor; second vice-president, Miss Elsie M. Kupfer; secretary, Miss Mary M. Brackett; treasurer, Miss Emily O. Long.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Although we are glad to publish letters signed with the names of their writers, we are not responsible for the sentiments expressed. Unsigned letters will not be published.

To the Editors of the BULLETIN:

With memories of our difficulties in regard to a recent entertainment still in our minds and visions of greater ones to come, I wish to make a suggestion which seems to me to be both plausible and timely. Namely, that the Undergraduate Association shall purchase some scenery for the stage to be used by any of the organizations of the college.

The stage-setting of plays in these days is considered one of the most important features and goes a long way towards the success of a play.

There are five dramatic entertainments given every year, not including the undergraduate play. The only scenery we have is a frame covered with a patch-work of four different shades of green baize, which does not make an attractive parlor background, to say the least. It is almost impossible to rent suitable scenery for our stage, as it is all too large; consequently, when any society feels that it cannot stand the green patch-work, it must have a setting made specially, which is very expensive.

A complete setting for a drawing room and a drop curtain, with an exterior scene, are all we need at present and would add a great deal to the effect of our entertainments. The cost of these two settings would be about one hundred dollars.

If the Undergraduate Association did not care to give this to the college, a good plan would be to purchase it and then charge five or ten dollars for the use of it for the next two years, by which time it would nearly have paid for itself.

I hope this matter will receive due consideration from all the girls. I feel sure that at least all who have been on play committees realize the necessity and will agree with this idea.

A SOPHOMORE.

To the Editors of the BULLETIN:

Some two months ago, when the Undergraduate Association requested a change in the mail service, it was satisfied by the promise to provide individual lockers in the studies. We have waited quietly for the lockers to appear, but so far none have been forthcoming.

Let us hope that the hearts of the students will be cheered and their patience rewarded by the speedy fulfillment of the promise made so long ago.

UNDERGRADUATE.

C. S. M. A. CONVENTION.

The sixteenth annual convention of the Church Students' Missionary Association was held December 9 to 11 at the General Theological Seminary in Chelsea Square. Many of the colleges, theological seminaries and secondary schools of the East, South and Middle West were represented. The delegates from the Barnard Chapter were Helen Rogers, '03, and Alice Draper, '05.

After the cordial welcome given by the Acting Dean of the Seminary on Tuesday afternoon to all those assembled, the remainder of the day was occupied with addresses on missionary work in general, its scope and possibilities; the privileges and responsibilities of the generation about to leave the colleges and seminaries, and the definite influence which such work is certain to have on the church-life of civilized lands.

On the mornings of Wednesday and Thursday, which were given to business sessions, the chief topics of consideration were the provision of a traveling secretary for the coming year, the possibility of having a woman secretary for the women's colleges, and the raising of pledges for the support of Dr. Huntington, a member of the C. S. M. A. who is now a missionary in China. Free discussion by the students was encouraged, and many helpful criticisms were brought forward.

The afternoons and evenings were filled with stirring addresses by prominent workers from the home parishes, from the western missionary districts of the United States, and from the more distant fields of Japan, China, and Africa. Among the speakers were the Rev. Dr. Greer, of New York; Rev. Mr. Mann, of New Jersey; Mr. Jays, of Africa, and Bishops Hall, Brewer, and Partridge. Their words all fell under one main subject—the C. S. M. A., and what it can accomplish in the seminaries, colleges, parish churches and mission field. In this last a three-fold work was presented—to cure the body, to educate the mind, and to convert to Christianity both body and mind. A forcible plea was made for more medical missions, and an urgent appeal for more volunteers from among the very best members of the Church Students' Missionary Association.

The convention of next year will be held at Huron College, London, Canada.
