PRIZES FOR ECONOMIC ESSAYS— THIRD YEAR.

In order to arouse an interest in the study of topics relating to commerce and industry, and to stimulate an examination of the value of college training for business men, a committee composed of Professor J. Laurence Laughlin, University of Chicago, chairman; Professor J. B. Clark, Columbia University; Professor Henry C. Adams, University of Michigan; Horace White, Esq., New York City, and Hon. Carroll D. Wright, Clark College, have been enabled, through the generosity of Messrs. Hart, Schaffner and Marx, of Chicago, to offer again in 1907 four prizes for the best studies on any one of the following subjects:

1. The practical wisdom of freeing raw materials, essential to subsequent manufactures, from custom-duties when entering the United States.

2. The best methods of obtaining an elastic currency in times of panic.

3. To what extent and in what form are Socialistic tenets held in the United States?

4. In what respect, and to what extent, have combinations among American railways limited or modified the influence of competition?

5. The best methods of avoiding resort to force by labor unions in their contests with employers.

6. The effect of "trusts" upon the prices of goods produced by them.

7. How far does the earning power of skill obtain under a régime of trade unions?

8. A critical study of modern commercial methods for distributing products to consumers.

9. The development of economic theory since John Stuart Mill.

A first prize of $1,000, and a second prize of $500, in cash are offered for the best studies presented by Class A, composed exclusively of all persons who have received the bachelor's degree from an American college in 1895, or thereafter; and a first prize of $300, and a second prize of $150, in cash are offered for the best studies presented by Class B, composed of persons who, at the time the papers are sent in, are Undergraduates of any American college. No one in Class A may compete in Class B; but any one in Class B may compete in Class A. The Committee reserves to itself the right to award the two prizes of $1,000 and $500 to Undergraduates, if the merits of the papers demand it.

The ownership of the copyright of successful studies will vest in the donors, and it is expected that without precluding the use of these papers as theses or higher degrees, they will cause them to be preserved in some permanent form.

Competitors are advised that the studies should be thorough, expressed in good English, and, though not limited as to length, they should not be needlessly expanded. They should be headed with an assumed name, the year when the bachelor's degree was, or is likely to be received, and accompanied by a sealed envelope containing the real name and address of the competitor, and the institution which conferred the degree, or in which he is studying. The papers should be sent on or before June 1, 1907, to J. Laurence Laughlin, Esq., University of Chicago, B. 145, Faculty Exchange, Chicago, Ill.

DEBATING SECTION.

The subject of the debate, Wednesday, Feb. 28, was "Resolved, That the War of 1812 was Justified." The affirmative was taken by Anne McClane, '09, and Emma Bugbee, '09; the negative by Emma McClane, '07, and Rita Hocheimer, '09. The decision was made by two Juniors. Prof. J. Laurence Laughlin, Esq., University of Chicago, B. 145, Faculty Exchange, Chicago, Ill., gave the decision in favor of the negative.

THE PHILOSOPHY CLUB.

The Philosophy 161-162 Class is forming, at the suggestion of Dr. Montague, a Philosophy Club. Graduate and Undergraduate students who are taking, or who have taken, this course of Philosophy are eligible for membership. No one will be invited to join the club, but those who are interested may apply to the Membership Committee, who will submit their names for approval. A simple constitution has been adopted, and the following officers have been elected: Honorary President, Dr. Montague; President, Agnes Ernst, '07; Secretary, Kathleen Hurty, '07; Treasurer, Evangeline Cole, '07.

The object of the club is to stimulate interest in Philosophy at Barnard. Its members hope not only to discuss philosophical problems among themselves, but also to hold open meetings, to which the college will be invited. At these open meetings it is planned to have addresses by men who are eminent in this branch of learning.

THE BARNARD UNION.

At a regular meeting of the Barnard Union, held Wednesday, Feb. 28, it was decided that two tickets for Mark Twain's lecture be given to each member of the Barnard Union who has paid her dues, and one ticket to each Freshman.

The following girls were elected to membership in the Union, 1906, Katherine Darrin, Edna Stitt, Adele Dorsett, Marion Simons, Marie Gelbach, Florence Lilienthal; 1907, Anne Carroll, Marguerite Israel, Elsie Schachtel, Grace Turnbull, Cora Bennett, Lucille Rosenberg, Lucetta Johnson, Judith Bernays, Lillian Wardell, Eva Auerbach, Beatrice Bernkopf; 1908, Irma Alexander, Aminta Casseres, Eleanor Hunsdon, Laurie Manly, Ada Müller, Josephine Prahl, Gertrude Stein, Marguerite Strauss, Louise Tattershall, Anne Turnbull, Florence Wolff, Florence Mastin; 1909, Eva vom Baur, Julia Goldberg, Rita Hocheimer, Helen Hoyt, Olga Lee, Una Logan, Myra McLean, Edith Seguire, Florence Wyeth, Jennie Wylie.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION MEETING.

At a special meeting of the Athletic Association it was voted to have a game of basketball with Smith on the Saturday during Easter vacation. A committee was appointed to investigate the cost of medals for Field Day.

HISTORY OF CHRISTIAN MISSIONS IN THE ORIENT.

A course of illustrated lectures on the History of Christian Missions in the Orient, by the Rev. Abraham Yohannan, Ph.D., lecturer in Oriental Languages at Columbia University, is being delivered in Earl Hall, on successive Monday afternoons, at 4 o'clock, which began Monday, February 26.

These lectures are open to all students of the University and to the public. The subjects and dates of this series are as follows:

Miss Janet McCook will give a short series of Bible lessons in Lent. These lessons will be independent of the regular Bible course. An opportunity is thus offered to those girls to attend during Lent who have not felt that they could attend during the other months of the year. The first lesson will be on Monday, March 12, at 12.25, in Room 130.

COME NEXT MONDAY.

The Class Day Committee announced that the office of Class Poet would be competitive, the poems to be handed in by April 1.

1907 NEWS.

UNIVERSITY BIOLOGICAL LECTURES.

A series of most interesting lectures is being given by Dr. Herbert S. Jennings, assistant Professor of Zoology of the University of Pennsylvania, in room 407, Schermerhorn, at 4:30. The title of the course is "The Behavior of Lower Organisms." Two of these were given last week, but the three remaining are as follows: On Thursday, March 8, No. 3, "Selection from Among the Conditions Resulting from Various Movements;" on Friday, March 9, No. 4, "What Conditions Are Selected, What Rejected?"; on Friday, March 16, No. 5, "Modifiability of Behavior in Lower Organisms; Relation to Behavior of Higher Organisms and Man."

GIFT OF A TELESCOPE TO BARNARD.

Three years ago, upon the death of Mr. Samuel Wilde, of Montclair, N. J., his 6-inch telescope was presented to the College by Mrs. Wilde for the use of students of astronomy. Unfortunately, there was no place to put the instrument, so it was packed away, and has remained unused up to the present time. Now, however, Mrs. Wilde has offered to supplement her previous gift with the sum of $2,000 to pay for the building of a temporary observatory. A dome building is to be erected on the Columbia grounds in connection with the Transit Building. The telescope then will be for the use of all the students of the University, both in Barnard and Columbia. It is a great pleasure to Barnard to be able, in a measure, at least, to repay its debt to Columbia for the use of the library, and they cannot but feel that the privilege of the use of so handsome a piece of apparatus is a highly enviable one.

ADDRESS BY MARK TWAIN.

On Wednesday, March 7, Mark Twain will make an address in the theatre, at half past three, for the Barnard Union.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 7, 1906.

The action of the Barnard Union in restricting admission to its meeting to-day, at which Mark Twain is to speak, should be commended by all who have watched the growth of the Union, and who know something about the real state of affairs in the Union.

Heretofore, it has been the policy of the society to make public every important meeting, and to invite the whole college whenever any notable person spoke. That it was very fine and generous of the Union to follow such a policy no one doubts; but that it was a very wise or practical policy has not been proved by the results. If everybody could go to all important meetings, then what was the advantage of belonging to the Union? Those not in the society enjoyed practically all the privileges of members, and bore none of their responsibility. To be elected to membership meant practically to be elected to the privilege of paying dues; and these dues went to support a society, the benefits of which the whole college enjoyed. Of course, if there could be found a group of girls who would be willing to support an organization from purely philanthropic motives, if there were to be had a hundred girls who cared only to entertain the college, without considering just what return they personally received, then could the Union be the ideal generous institution it started out to be. But the fact of the matter is that such girls are not to be found.

The results of the work of the membership committee and the wails of the treasurer about her slim credit column give ample proof of such a state of affairs. The membership committee, in making lists of names to propose for election, on asking a girl whether she wished to be proposed, too often received the answer, "I get all the privileges of the Union now. The only advantage to be had by joining, is that I must pay dues." The treasurer had like tales to tell.

Several Union girls declared that they would no longer be members, since they did not profit thereby.

Such a condition indicates one thing, that the Union must make very clear the fact that to be one of its members is an advantage. Mark Twain's address offered a good opportunity to show the college that the Union, not being an all-inclusive body, has the right to keep certain privileges for its own members alone, and to invite to share those privileges just whom it deems advisable.

That it does appear ungenerous to keep any of the college girls from the meeting is perfectly true. It is ungenerous. But it is justifiably ungenerous.

The purpose of the founders of the Union was to have a big society in which could be concentrated the best energy of the college. Instead of allowing capable girls to expend effort on numerous little clubs, which worked for no big end, the founders of the Union proposed to unite all capable girls into one body, where they could work together for the things of most value to the college. "The things of most value" for the present seem to be an interest in literature, the production of our own college literature in the form of a magazine, and debating. For these things the Union works.

A society with such aims should be valued by the college girls. It should be held an honor to be one of its members. Once elected a member a girl should gladly support the society. All these things should be; but they are not.

And they are not for this reason. The aims of the Union are ideal; the open, generous policy of the Union was ideal. But ideal aims and policies are not always practical aims and policies. If such aims and policy have caused the society to be undervalued, and have lessened its efficiency, then must the Union recognize that fact, and adapt itself to less ideal conditions.

The simplest means at hand for making the society more practically efficient is to make membership in it seem worth while.

The proposition has been made that the Union allow the college girls to attend the meeting, if they "contribute toward the expenses of the meeting," that is to say, if they pay for admission. It takes only a second's thought to realize that such a measure is wholly out of the question. The Union is not a money-making organization. Such a measure would wholly violate the purpose for which the Union has restricted the attendance at the meeting, and would reduce this late action to a pure money-getting scheme.

The whole state of affairs is this. For any society to succeed, membership in its ranks must mean one of two things. It must mean material advantage or it must mean honor. Let the Union first give certain definite material privileges to its members. Then will the society get on a firmer basis. Once well-established and recognized as a power in college, it will come to be an honor to belong to it. And when that happy day arrives, then can it afford to be magnanimous and to pursue a uniformly gracious and generous policy.
