THE JUNIOR BALL.

The Junior Ball of the class of 1908, held on Friday evening, February 8th, in the Columbia University Gymnasium was most successful in every respect. The decorations of the gymnasium were blue and white, undisturbed by the customary promiscuous banners and flags. The floor was in good condition, and although the dancers were somewhat crowded at times, the excellence of the music kept everyone in the best humor. The program of dances was as follows:

TWO- STEPS.

1. Popularity.
3. Rocky Road to Dublin.
5. Iola.
7. A Little Girl Like Me.
9. Just the Girl I'm Looking For.
11. If the Man in the Moon Was a Coon.
13. Experience.
15. Mariuccia.
17. Lemon in the Garden of Love.
19. Bullfrog and the Coon.
21. Mascot of the Troop.
23. Waiting for a Certain Girl.

WALTZES.

14. Mlle. Modiste.
16. Quand L'Amour Meurt.
18. Red Mill.
20. The Only One.
22. Love's Dreams.

The dance orders were enclosed in soft white leather card cases embossed with the class emblem in gold.

1910.

At the regular monthly meeting held on Thursday, February 7, 1910 extended a hearty welcome to the new freshmen and decided to give them a party on Friday, February 15.

THE BARNARD UNION.

On Wednesday, February 13, at 4 o'clock, the Barnard Union will hold an open meeting, at which Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McClurg will deliver an interesting lecture on "Panoramic Colorado," illustrated by stereopticon views. These lecturers have addressed audiences throughout this country and France for a number of years on such subjects as "The Cliff Dwellers," "The Pueblos," "The Discovery of Pike's Peak" and "Colorado's Scenic Wonders and Romantic Development." Their views are remarkably vivid and picturesque, and Wednesday's lecture promises to be very instructive and entertaining. All are cordially invited to attend.

LECTURES ON PRAGMATISM.

Professor James's lectures on Pragmatism were largely attended. Pragmatism, Professor James said, is primarily not a doctrine, but a method of teaching philosophical problems. The pragmatic method asks, What is the practical value of a belief? Does it work in actual experience? Then it is true in so far as it does work, and false in so far as it fails to give satisfaction. The pragmatic conception of the universe is opposed to the rationalistic. The latter regards truth as a thing pre-existent, ready-made, which the mind of man observes and registers; the former conceives of truth as incomplete, in process of making, an abstract name for the things which men have come to believe. Man is, therefore, creative, and is in part a maker of truth. Unwillingness to receive this conception of truth Professor James attributes to temperament, the rationalistic mind tending to rest on authority, and fearing the insecurity of a universe which is man-made.

The humor, satire and richness of illustration with which Professor James has enlivened his lectures have made them exceptionally enjoyable.

At the regular meeting of 1907 on Thursday, February 7, the Class Day Committee was elected as follows: Chairman, Jean Disbrow, Louise Odencrantz, Emma Lay, Grace Turnbull and Evangeline Cole and Helen Goodhart, ex-officio.

1909.

At the regular meeting of the Class of 1909 held on Thursday, February 7th, it was decided that the class should give a Valentine party to the Seniors. The following committee was appointed by the president: Maud Armstrong, Elsie Smith, Berenice Leerburger, Edna Scales, Anna Holm. The date of that party has not been set.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1907

The course which many social affairs at Barnard seem to be taking might lead one to wonder whether we are not growing too ambitious, and with it too mercenary. Our plays, for instance, have evolved from the comparatively simple (yet equally well appreciated) matters of five years ago into undertakings which make committee members shudder at the thought of them. We do not as a rule realize two obvious facts: namely, that the real motive of these plays is in most cases supposed to be to entertain our fellow-students and their friends; and that a dollar is really a good deal to ask for a show which is, at the best, palpably amateurish. We rush ahead, half killing ourselves in the effort to produce something entirely original, which must at the same time quite outdo the corresponding performance last year. But most important of all, we must make money. Now, there are, of course, many occasions when this motive is perfectly commendable. Nobody objects to the sophomores and juniors wishing to reduce the tax on their dances. But just at this point the trouble springs up again. Why does the tax have to be so heavy? Why, for instance, does money have to be spent on such ridiculous items as, for instance, decorations for the pillars in the gymnasium? The only effective remedy for those pillars would be dynamite; all efforts to beautify them as they stand are useless. If we could only make up our minds to a fact that in reality we know to be so: which is, that we should have an equally good time at a dance where as much money as usual was spent on things that count and less on things that do not, it seems probable that certain desirable results would be attained. We should save a great deal of energy that we consume to little effect at present by giving simpler plays and charging less for tickets, and we should spare our friends the drain on their pocketbooks, which they do not appreciate as much as we do.

CLASSICAL CLUB.

The members of the Classical Club were delightfully entertained by Miss Hirst at tea on Friday, January 11th. The members were all there, and found a pleasant surprise in the presence of their president of last year. The opportunity, too, of meeting thus the honorary members was much appreciated.

On the following Wednesday Dr. Shear delivered a most interesting lecture before the club and its friends on the development of Greek art. The theme was one that is ever new and never fails in attractiveness. The treatment of the theme was not only instructive and entertaining, but had likewise the unusual merit of being original. The art of Greece was traced from its first stiff, rude forms, through the period of the wonderful, supple, graceful figures of the Periclean Age to the ascendancy of pathos and grief. Some of the illustrations were familiar, but more were quite new, and all were unusually vivid.

The girls in Marimopol Court will be at home to the college on Thursdays, from 4 until 5.30 o'clock. All students are cordially invited to come over to tea at this time.
