THE PRINCETON CONFERENCE.

The student missionary conference held in Princeton, N. J., on February 16 and 17, was well attended by delegates from various schools and colleges, in the district of New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania and New York City. Thirty institutions in all were represented, comprising colleges, universities, technical and preparatory schools, while the delegates numbered 218, 115 of these being men and 103 women. The following Barnard students were present: From 1907, Sophie Woodman, Florence Gordon, Elizabeth Lord, Emma Wilkes, Lucetta Johnson and Anne Carroll; from 1908, Anna Brush, Agnes Miller, May Quinn and Gladys Quinby; from 1909, Theodora Hall, Ethel Goodwin and Lois Kerr; from 1910, Ethel Shaw, Lillian Anderson, Christella MacMurray and Gertrude Hunter. Miss Eleanor Harris, the Barnard general secretary, also attended.

All the women delegates were quartered in the houses of the Princeton faculty and the townspeople, while the men were entertained in the college dormitories. The Barnard girls were particularly fortunate in securing the most hospitable hosts and hostesses possible, who gave them every attention and did all in their power to make the visit agreeable.

There were five sessions of the conference; these began on Saturday afternoon and closed Sunday evening. They were held in Marguand Chapel, the official chapel of the university, with the exception of the Sunday morning session, which was like an open meeting, taking place in the First Presbyterian Church. Besides the regular religious sessions, two brief business meetings were held on Saturday, the purpose of which was to effect a permanent organization of college missionary interest in the territory.

It was a source of surprise no less than of pleasure to many delegates that the committee on arrangements had been able to secure such unusually able speakers for such a comparatively small gathering. Among the conference leaders were such distinguished men as the Rev. H. P. Beach, F.R.G.S., who fills the chair of missions at Yale University; the Rev. John W. Wood, secretary of the Episcopal Board; the Rev. Arthur J. Brown, D.D., secretary of the Presbyterian Board; Mr. Fennell P. Turner, general secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement, and the Rev. C. A. R. Janvier of India.

The addresses and discussions of the convention were mainly given over to the study of mission problems on the various foreign fields, the consideration of student volunteer methods, and suggestions for the solution of local college problems and the promotion of religious work among students.

ORGAN RECITAL.

On Thursday afternoon, February 21, Mr. Samuel A. Baldwin, organist of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Brooklyn, gave his third organ recital at St. Paul's Chapel. The first number of his program was a "Wedding Hymn," by R. H. Woodman, which was not, on the whole, very impressive. The second number was a "Concert Adagio" in E major, op. 35, by Merkel. This selection was beautifully interpreted. The extremely delicate tone-production and the exquisite blending of the harmonious chords made the number delightful in the highest degree. The execution of Bach's "Prelude and Fugue" was absolutely finished. The complicated theme was so very clearly pronounced that one could follow it with ease. Mr. Baldwin seemed to hit exactly the true Bach spirit. The next number—"Choral Preludes," op. 122, Nos. 5 and 11, by J. Brahms—was chiefly characterized by very clever manipulation of contrasted tone-production. Two compositions by Bossi, called the "Prayer" and the "Etude Symphonique" followed. They formed a striking contrast. The first, quiet and reposeful; the second, brilliant and striking, and executed with great skill and effect. "The Swan," by Saint-Saëns, was like a soft summer breeze. The melody was beautifully brought out, with a delicately shaded accompaniment as a setting. Händel's "Largo" was perhaps the crowning number of the program. It was truly thrilling, and served admirably in leading up to the last number, "Symphony No. 5," by Widor. The allegro movement abounded in tremendous technical difficulties. The second movement was quite different, more of a "pastorale" style, with peculiar melancholy melody running through it.

The last movement, the "Toccata," was extremely brilliant. It seemed to bring forth the resources of the organ in every possible way.

SPECIAL NOON-DAY ADDRESSES.

The subjects of the Friday services during Lent at St. Paul's follow:

Friday, March 1—The Rev. G. Ashton Oldham, B.A., acting chaplain of Columbia University. "Honesty in Religion."

Friday, March 8—The Rev. Lyman Abbott, D.D., editor of the "Outlook." "The Battle of Life."

Friday, March 15—The Rev. Loring W. Batten, Ph.D., Rector of St. Mark's Church. "Belief and Knowledge."

Friday, March 22—The Rev. Ernest M. Stires, D.D., Rector of St. Thomas's Church. "Christ Before Pilate."

Regular services are held as follows:—Daily, 12.10; Mondays (during Lent), Litany; Wednesdays, Short Talks on "Practical Religion."

All officers and students of the University are cordially welcome.

THE FRESHMAN ENTERTAINMENT

The class of 1910 cordially invites the College to attend their show, to be given on Friday, March 1, 1907, at 3 o'clock, in Brinkerhoff Theater. The show will be repeated on Saturday, March 2. At this second performance the price of admission will be 25 cents.

BASKETBALL.

The second game between the Barnard and Horace Mann teams took place Monday, February 11, at five o'clock. The line-up was as follows:

Barnard.—Forwards, A. Smithers, H. Woodhull; centers, J. Goldberg, F. Sammet; guards, J. Prah, H. Smithers.

Horace Mann.—Forwards, L. Hodge, L. Sommerville; centers, Misses Wegener, Wise; guards, Misses Frankle, Weil.

In the second half Miss Mader played in Miss Sommerville's place.

The final score was 6-4 in favor of Horace Mann, Miss Sommerville making one and Miss Wegener two baskets. Miss Woodhull made two foul goals and one from the field for Barnard. The game was a most interesting one, and considering that the score of the last one was 20-5 in favor of Horace Mann, Barnard may well be proud of the score. The team showed marked improvement in passing, and did not "bunch" on the foul line as much as heretofore.

DORMITORY NEWS.

On Wednesday, February 18, Miss Gill invited the girls in the Dormitory to meet Miss Mabel Weeks, who is to be the head of Brooks Hall next year. Miss Weeks is to be assistant professor of English, as well as the head of the social life of the Dormitory.

The plan for Brooks Hall were shown and explained.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1907

Probably not a few of us have met students from other colleges who say, with an air of envy most agreeable to us at the time: "At Barnard you are always able to get fine speakers whenever you want them, aren't you? What an opportunity you have in New York!" On such an occasion we give the speaker a smile of condescending commiseration, admit that New York is not such a bad place when one wants to get anything, and depart from the scene in an elevated state of virtue very impressive to behold. We could not, of course, do anything so unpleasant as recall to mind that there are such things as Barnard Union meetings, for instance.

It is not, however, with specific reference to these meetings alone that this article is written. Within the last two weeks there has been more than one distinguished lecturer to offer his services to the college under the auspices of some one of several different organizations; and the most charitable critic could not say otherwise than that the attendance on these lectures was scandalous. Neither is this indifference the case simply at present; for with very few exceptions the same lack of interest has been manifested since last October. We ask people to come and speak before our societies; we put up posters, send out notices of their coming, and give personal invitations to half the colleges. And when the speaker arrives he finds the theater thronged—with chairs.

What is the matter? Is there any decent excuse for not having a respectable representation when outsiders are especially invited to address us? If we do not want to go to lectures, why not refrain from asking speakers to come here? But if we do ask them we can at least be sufficiently courteous to treat them properly when they come.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE BULLETIN:

The Barnard Bear had to suffer the misfortune of losing its business manager twice during the early fall—the period when a publication requires steady effort to get it under way. As a result it has had to depend for its support largely on the undergraduate body. The College, and particularly the Barnard Union, has failed absolutely to give us this support. The subscription list is disgracefully small. If a girl is asked why she does not subscribe she answers, "Oh, I like the Bear well enough, but I always read So-and-So's copy." That is just where the trouble lies. Twenty or twenty-five girls pass a single copy of the Bear around until each one has read it, and as long as they can borrow one they feel no need of buying it. That may be all very well and very economical from the point of view of the individual's purse, but it does not tend to make any college publication a success. It also shows an extremely economical expenditure of college spirit.

The Bear is technically the organ of the Barnard Union, a society which is supposed to embody the literary side of Barnard life. The membership of the Barnard Union is ninety; the number of Union subscribers to the Bear only twenty. Are those figures anything to be proud of? It is the Union's duty to support the Bear, and I refuse to believe that this shameful state of affairs is due to anything more than thoughtlessness on the part of the individual members.

The most appalling aspect of this matter at present is that unless the College will give its quarterly more generous assistance the editors will be unable to issue four numbers this year. They sincerely trust, therefore, that all readers of THE BULLETIN will give these facts their serious consideration. Yours very truly,

MARGARET HART BAILEY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE BARNARD BULLETIN:

It seems to me that the attention of the college should be drawn to the scanty membership in the College Settlement Association. In most other colleges the majority of the student body are interested either directly or indirectly in this organization, while in Barnard there are at most thirty members, and very few other girls in the college seem to even know of the existence of such an association.

The purpose of the College Settlement Association is to keep the College girls interested in the work that is being done for social welfare, and particularly to support the various College settlements, one of which is situated in our own city. The dues for this association are only $1.10 per year, $1 of which goes to the support of those settlements and 10 cents to the support of the Barnard Chapter. Membership in this organization is one of the few opportunities we have at Barnard to do charitable work. Are there not more girls who are really interested in this work, but who do not join because they do not know enough about it? Leslie Gardiner, 1907, or any of the electors will be glad to give any information about the association. I sincerely hope that the College will give this matter its most careful attention, and that as a result there will be many new members this year.

DEPARTMENT OF PHYSICS, 1906-1907.

The following course of lectures in Mathematical Physics will be given in Room 301 Fayerweather by Joseph Larmor, A.M., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, England, Lecturer in Mathematical Physics in Columbia University, 1906-07.

PHYSICAL DYNAMICS.

Physical science has progressed by leaning on dynamical theory, and in return pure dynamics has been broadened and strengthened by attention to the indications and requirements of experimental and observational physics. Are any limits assignable to this mutual influence?

On the one side it is proposed to pass under review the history of dynamical progress—Newton, d'Alembert, Euler, Lagrange, Hamilton and the moderns—and to take note of the critical places in which the introduction of physical ideas has molded the abstract science.

On the other hand it is proposed to survey the successive expansions of physical concepts and to consider whether it is in an implied purely dynamical basis that our confidence in their mutual congruence has its source. If that be so, it supplies the reason why the dynamical aspect of events should ever be kept in view, so as to become gradually refined, purified and simplified, and thus maintain its historical position in the foreground of the science.

Wednesday, March 27, 4 P. M.—The origin and history of the fundamental dynamical ideas.

Thursday, March 28, 10 A. M.—The history of the physical ideas connected with energy and its transformations. Illustrations from the recent expansion of Chemical Physics: Carnot, Kelvin, Gibbs, Helmholtz.

Friday, April 5, at 4 P. M.—The formulation, from the physical aspect, of the framework of Pure Analytical Dynamics. (Continued on page 3, first column.)

ZOOLOGY CLUB

The Zoology Club will give its annual tea on Wednesday, March 6, at 3.30 P. M. The reception will be preceded by a lecture in the theater, to which the College is cordially invited.

FRENCH SOCIETY.

At the monthly meeting of the French Society, on Monday, February 18, 1907, Professor Curtis Hidden Page, of the Romance Department, delivered a lecture on "The Original Cyrano." Professor Page gave a very clear and entertaining exposition of the life of that highly original gentleman, and read extracts from his dramatic work, his poems and burlesques, to show Cyrano's exceptional versatility. Professor Page also paid tribute to Rostand, in whose play, "Cyrano de Bergerac," he gives so admirable a portrayal of that character. The lecture was followed by an informal reception.

C. S. M. A.

The C. S. M. A. holds a weekly mission reading circle on Wednesday afternoons at 3.30. It plans to have visitors to give informal talks on these afternoons two or three times a month. On the 20th Miss Grace Lindley, who is connected with the Student Volunteer Movement, spoke on "The Spirit of Missions." Tea was served afterward.

A regular meeting of the C. S. M. A. was held on Thursday. The committee for the Christmas box reported that a box of clothing, books and toys had been sent to St. Barnabas House, City Missions.

Miss Steam, who has visited the New York Training School for deaconesses, reported on the plan of having a traveling secretary for the women's chapters. The money for this purpose has been promised if the plan is agreed upon. A committee to take charge of the reading circles and Lenten work is to be appointed. A request was made to each member to help in vesting the choir at the Chapel of the Messiah by giving ten cents.
