MISS GILLS' VISIT TO THE DORMITORY

On Tuesday evening, November 19, the dormitory girls had a very pleasant surprise: Miss Gill paid a flying visit to New York and took dinner with them. Miss Weeks had kept the secret very well, and amazement and excitement reigned in the upper corridors when at half past six girls came up who had seen "the dean" down stairs. Miss Gill saw the dormitory, in consequence, just as it really was, not arrayed in company garb, and in spite of this undress uniform it made a good impression.

Mrs. Anderson and Miss Opdyke were the other visitors. After a short chat in the parlor, the girls showed its guests the rooms. In the crowd it was not noticed just who slipped away to give their own rooms the last finishing touches before inspection. The three ladies were as enthusiastic as even the girls could wish. Miss Gill was particularly happy in viewing the completed home that she had done so much to make possible. Unfortunately she had to leave at nine, so that there was no time after the survey, for any further talk. No guests can mean more to the girls than Mrs. Anderson and Miss Gill, and this was shown in the spirit of the evening.

Miss Gill's headquarters for the winter will be at 1326 Nineteenth Street, Washington, D. C., but she will be obliged to do much traveling on account of her duties as president of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae, and as chairman of two important committees, one in the National Education Association and another in the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

NOTICE

Beginning with Monday, November 11, 1907, the following orders will go into effect:

1. A charge of one dollar ($1.00) per hour before six o'clock and two dollars ($2.00) per hour after six o'clock will be made of the use of electric light in the theater at social functions, plays and rehearsals in excess of the time stated in the requisition.

2. A double charge will also be made for services used beyond the time stated in the requisition.

3. At performances for which admission is charged and which are given after six o'clock and on Saturday afternoons coat-room service must be provided at the regular rates for such extra service.

By order of

W. T. BREWSTER, Acting Dean.

THE JUNIOR SHOW

"If I Were King," presented by the class of 1909 as their Junior Show, was one of the most successful as well as one of the most elaborate productions ever given at Barnard. Although in every way it was more pretentious than the ordinary college play, it was remarkably well carried out in all its details.

The acting as a whole was not particularly good. There were, however, two marked exceptions to this rule in Florence Wyeth as Francois Villon and Jessie Cochran as Huguette Du Hamel. Difficult as both these rôles were they were played with extraordinary skill. Miss Wyeth's interpretation of the part of Villon showed both sympathetic understanding and ability to carry out her conception. Miss Cochran rose to dramatic heights seldom reached in amateur performances; her acting in the third act, where she is killed in defense of Villon, was remarkably good—and remarkably hard.

Olga Lee as Louis XI played a difficult part and except for the fact that her voice was not well suited to the rôle, played it well. Winifred Barrows made a charming Catherine but her voice also was rather weak and she missed some opportunities for splendid acting, notably in the case of her denouncement of Villon in Act III.

The play was staged admirably and by careful management the difficulties usually resulting from little space and many characters were reduced to a minimum. In spite of the fact that several times there were a large number of characters on the stage at once, it did not appear to be crowded, except for the "ballet." The dancing girls were rather startlingly Broadwayish in their manner, and the execution of the dance suggested that the drill had taken place in more roomy quarters.

No account of the play is complete without a mention of "John Mallory" and his—or her—excellent coaching to which the success of the play was doubtless largely due.

The committee, consisting of Florence Wyeth, chairman; Olga Lee, Olga Rilke, Helen Phillips, Helen Scheuer, Lillian Closson and Eleanor Gay and Herlinda Smithers, ex-officio, must feel amply rewarded for their work by the success of the performance.

The cast follows:

Francois Villon..... F. S. Wyeth
Louis XI..... O. Lee
Tristan L'Hermite..... L. F. Alexander
Olivier Le Dain..... P. Johnson
Thibaut D'Aussigny..... J. Goldberg
Noel LeJolys..... M. Schlesinger

Guy Labarie..... L. Thompson
Jehan Le Loup..... M. King

STUDENT COUNCIL REGULATION

At its meeting on Monday, November 18, Student Council passed the following regulation:

At all plays and shows where admission is charged, no seat shall be reserved in the theatre after a quarter of an hour before the performance.

Ushers are requested to enforce this rule.

BASKETBALL

The basketball game between 1910 and 1911 was played Thursday, November 21 in the Thompson Gymnasium. There was more intense excitement and interest in this game than in any of the other interclass games that have been played at Barnard, because there was great diversity of opinion about the relative power and strength of the two teams. Needless to say everyone was greatly surprised when 1911 won an easy victory by a score of 15-0. Their main strength lay in their team work, although the forwards played a remarkably steady and clear-headed game.

The line-up was as follows:

1910	1911
H. Woodhull..... Forward.....	E. Leveridge
M. Nammack.....	F. Randolph
G. Hunter..... Center.....	L. Schoedler
D. Dietrich.....	A. Bishop
M. McCann..... Guard.....	M. Conroy
M. Emery.....	A. Weil

In the first half Ethel Leveridge made four baskets for 1911, making the score 8-0. Neither team was able to take advantage of the numerous foul throws, of which 1910 had six and 1911 had five. The ball was seldom up at 1910's end, which fact was due, in part, to Lillian Schoedler who would jump any number of feet to get the ball and send it back to her forwards. 1910 showed such good work in practice that it seems as though the team had lost its head in the excitement, for there was quite a little wild throwing and reckless playing. The second half began with three foul throws for 1910, none of which they were able to put in the basket. Then Clara Lewis substituted for Mabel McCann who had had to call for time out. Ethel Leveridge made a foul goal and Frances Randolph three field goals, closing the game with the score of 15-0.

C. S. A.

A meeting of the College Settlement Association was held on Monday, November 18. Plans for the year's work were discussed. It was decided that an attempt be made to have persons prominent in sociological work speak before the society at monthly meetings. Miss Potter has been asked to speak in December and Dr. John Elliot for January.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1907.

The Student Council regulation (printed in this issue of the BULLETIN) regarding the reserving of seats at college entertainments is another evidence of this year's Council's good sense and energy. It is to be hoped that the new law will be carried out to the letter and that the girls will of their own accord add some common sense acts of their own, such as taking seats at the far side of the room if they are early comers instead of leaving the remote or middle seats for those that come late.

Regulations like the one under consideration seem trivial, at first glance, and indeed, their importance lies not so much in their immediate effect in any one particular matter as upon their influence upon the tone of the college community. A year or more ago a regulation was passed forbidding the students to sit on the main stairway. At first many thought that the rule suggested primary school discipline; now it is regarded simply as a custom, and any violation of it is considered bad form rather than disobedience.

It appears to us very fortunate that the present Student Council realizes so clearly that when a rule has been in force for a while people forget that it is a definite rule, and accept the enforced attitude as due to custom, precedent or habit, and are governed by the general feeling. By recognizing this principle and working on it, our legislative bodies will do much for the future Barnard. The motion passed at the last undergraduate meeting reading in its amended form that only notices of college entertainments and publications shall be sent to the members of the faculty, and no requests be made of them is another act that may be expected to have far reaching consequences. In our opinion the passing of this measure is one of the best things that has happened at Barnard in a long while. It is the sort of thing that builds up our college's character. One may safely prophesy that in a few years the general attitude would be one of surprise and disfavor if anyone suggested importuning our instructors as we have done heretofore.

Keeping in mind the future influence of regulations, the students will feel it more than ever their duty to co-operate heartily with the executive officers of our undergraduate bodies.

REPORT OF DORMITORY COMMITTEE

As the Dormitory has passed out of the hands of the Alumnae and is happily transferred to its permanent home and the care of the Trustees, I feel that in making a report on the Hall of Residence for the past year, it would be well to incorporate a brief review of its entire history under the care of the Alumnae.

The question of Barnard's need of a dormitory was first brought up in informal discussion at a meeting of the Board of Directors in the winter of 1905. This discussion resulted in an interview with President Butler, followed by an unsuccessful attempt to secure from prominent and wealthy men the required money for a permanent building. It next occurred to the Directors that it might be feasible to run a temporary dormitory on our own responsibility and under our own direction. In October, 1905, these plans took definite form in the election of a committee of three from the Board of Directors—Miss Alsberg '02, Miss Keys '03 and Miss Johnson '03. After much work in investigation this committee succeeded in winning the approval of the trustees to proceed with the work, and was consequently enlarged to seven members to meet the demands of practical work. Mrs. Miller became chairman of a sub-committee to raise $5,000, the amount needed as initial security. By the spring of 1906 sufficient money had been raised to warrant the renting of two floors (20 rooms) at 521 West 122d Street. The lease was signed by the Trustees, though the Alumnae were financially responsible. During the spring and summer the necessary making of house plans—advertising, furnishing, engaging of a house-matron, Miss Hannah D. Buckingham, and corps of servants—was carried out by the committee.

When the dormitory was finally in running order the original committee was replaced by a House Committee of five: Miss Wheelock, chairman; Miss Johnson, secretary; Miss Spencer, treasurer; Mrs. Hess and Miss Tatlock. During the winter, upon resignation of Miss Wheelock, Miss Spencer became chairman.

The 46 rooms were arranged as 3 parlors, 3 dining rooms, office and bed room for Miss Buckingham, kitchen, pantry, maids' rooms and 32 students' bed rooms. These rooms were all occupied from the beginning, and additional rooms could have been filled. During the last half of the year 2 rooms were rented in another apartment to accommodate a Chinese student, Miss Kang, whom Miss Gill especially wished to have live in the dormitory.

The house matron, Miss Buckingham, had full charge, under the committee, of the running of the house. Her duties were to supervise the servants, attend to all the catering, O. K. the bills as they came in, which were then paid by the treasurer, and also to act as chaperone for the girls. The monotony of existence was frequently broken for her, as well as for the committee, by various eccentricities of the building: ceilings fell, water pipes refused to do duty, cornices cracked, coal gave out periodically, etc. In a word, most of the things happened which could happen in a cheaply built new apartment house. Of course the students were the chief sufferers, and I want the Alumnae to know that their patience and cheerful co-operation during the most trying moments did much to help matters. In January Miss Buckingham was given a vacation of a week, during which time I, as chairman of the committee, took her place—lived at the dormitory and ran the house.

The student life on the whole was successful. The 32 girls were from the south, the middle west, New York and New Jersey. In spite of the very close contact into which they were thrown by the cramped accommodations, harmony prevailed; and a democratic, loyal spirit was always in evidence. They had the customary self-government rules, met together socially on occasions, and gave teas to the Trustees and to the Alumnae. The Dean and several of the Trustees showed their interest by visiting us. Mrs. Annie Nathan Meyer used her influence to secure us a piano free of charge.

From Christmas to June things ran as smoothly as could be expected. The Dormitory was closed on June 15th. The Directors had decided to offer all furniture and fixtures to the Trustees for Brooks Hall which offer was accepted by them. What few things they did not wish were given away or sold.

There was some consideration of keeping the Hall of Residence open during the summer session of Columbia, but as the lease ad at each meeting, and discuss the particular problem that has been set for the day while having lunch. This plan proved very successful: the table was decked out very attractively, and everybody enjoyed the symposium thoroughly. Dr. Montagu was present, and very kindly led the discussion on James' Pragmatism.

The next meeting will be held at the same hour, in the same place on December 19th. The discussion will be on the first part of Fiske's "Through Nature to God."

To the Editor of THE BULLETIN:

During this Fall, various remarks have been made of such a nature that it seems to me all Barnard girls ought to know of them. There is a great deal of truth in what people say about the atmosphere of a home or institution, and when both girls here and outside people spoke of the happiness in general that seems to characterize our college life, it made me prouder than ever of Barnard. It is pleasant to hear such a remark, but one wonders why that happiness has not been felt before. Perhaps it is due to the dormitory life which cannot help but influence the rest of us, or it may be due to the general spirit of all the separate classes, especially to that of the Juniors. But whatever has caused this pervading feeling, we girls should do all we can to promote it and make it more noticeable, both in and out of college. For happiness is our aim in our work as well as in our play, and Barnard has still many people to show what it stands for in this city. It is a duty that we cannot shirk individually if we love our Alma Mater—a Christian duty as well as a social.

Sincerely yours,
FRANCES MAY INGALLS.

The Committee feels, and I think the Alumnae will also feel, that our Dormitory has been a great success. We took on our shoulders the beginning, which is always the most difficult part. It may be a question whether Brooks Hall would be open to-day, if the Hall of Residence had not existed. It matters not so much how great or how little our assistance has been, the main point is that we attempted and we accomplished something worth while. I hope we'll do it again at the first opportunity.

Respectfully submitted,

CARITA SPENCER, Chairman
