All-College Assembly Opens New Term Drive Mr. Frederick Lewis Is Guest Speaker; Doris Johnson To Outline Drive Plans

The Herald Tribune Fresh Air Fund term drive will be officially opened at tomorrow's all-college assembly at 1 p.m. in the gymnasium, with Mr. Frederick Lewis, manager of the Fund, as the speaker.

Virginia D. Harrington, Assistant to the Dean, will introduce Doris Johnson '47, chairman of the drive, who will introduce Mr. Lewis. Miss Johnson will announce the goal and outline plans for the drive.

Before becoming manager of the Fund in January of this year, Mr. Lewis was assistant manager, the position which he assumed when he joined the Fund in June of 1946.

Previously a Lieutenant Commander in naval air combat intelligence, he flew on many missions as an observer after joining the Navy in 1944 and later briefed pilots on patrol planes which flew patrols between the Third Fleet and Japan.

Mr. Lewis was awarded the Army Commendation Ribbon, one of the comparatively few Navy men to receive that honor, for his defense preparation and operation in Japanese cities, including Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Administrative Officer

After returning to this country, he became administrative officer with the Navy's Office of Research and Inventions, Special Devices Division, where he remained until June, 1946.

Mr. Lewis' first camp experience as a director was with the three Vistamont Camps on Newfound Lake, Bristol, New Hampshire, which he owned from 1933 to 1942. He then went to Washington, D.C. to become Chief of the Junior Citizens' Service Corps Section for the United States Office of Civilian Defense. In this capacity he traveled through the country encouraging parents to create war service opportunities for their children.

Mr. Lewis is also a past vice-president of the American Camping Association.

Curriculum Committee Will Study Students' Major Exam Problems

Curriculum Committee will concern itself this term with the problems of those students who are taking major examinations.

Nancy Cameron, chairman of Curriculum Committee states, "We welcome student opinion and ideas, and hope that the school will learn to use this body. We can't promise results but we will try."

Since Curriculum Committee's purpose is to bring about student initiated changes in the curriculum, it is dependent upon constructive criticism or suggestions from the students.

Those who write to the Faculty Committee on Instruction concerning the examinations should also notify the Curriculum Committee or send the Committee a duplicate letter. Desired changes may thereby be coordinated through this already organized group and perhaps be presented with more weight than that of a single letter.

Curriculum Committee last year was successful in securing for students a new course in Contemporary American Poetry.

Barnard, Drew Debate Value Of U.N. Today

Barnard met Drew University in a debate last Wednesday night. The Drew team, consisting of Eleanor Sikora and John Cullerton, took the negative stand on the resolution that "world federation should replace the present United Nations Organization," while Beverly Beck and Elaine Wiener of Barnard took the affirmative.

The debate was not formally judged, but an informal poll favored the affirmative side, thus giving Barnard the victory.

Miss Wiener, the first speaker, pointed out the need "for a centralized authority in these days when one nation's control of a weapon like the atomic bomb can mean destruction to the entire world."

Miss Sikora, of Drew, insisted that world peace is deeper than a system. She maintained that the world is not yet ready for a federation.

Miss Beck replied by stating the need for a body which can do positive things. "That distinguished discussion group, the U. N.," she said, "is inadequate to attain and maintain world peace. Peace is order based on law."

Mr. Cullerton denied this. "World federation is an idealistic dream," he said. "The U.N. is not a dream but a practical hope which is proving itself."

Student Council Lets Political Body Back Hawaiian Statehood

Student Council, reversing its former decision, has granted Political Council permission to join the organization "Statehood for Hawaii Now," pending the approval of Miss Virginia D. Harrington, Assistant to the Dean in Charge of Social Affairs.

The reversal came about when Council was more fully informed about the group. Through Political Council's participation in the organization, information on the subject of Hawaii's statehood will be brought to the attention of the students. Permission had been formerly denied since Student Council did not have sufficient information about the organization.

Decree "Plaid Shirt Day"

Tuesday, March 7 is to be "Plaid Shirt Day." Council has decreed. All students will be expected to wear the brightly-hued shirts. Those who do not will be asked to contribute ten cents to the term drive, the Herald Tribune Fresh Air Fund. The money will be collected at the term drive assembly.

Lawrie Trevor Vice-President; Choose A.A. Presidential Slate

Biggio, Ford, Howlett, Peters Up For Office

Doris Biggio, Ann Ford, Barbara Hewlett and Grace Peters were nominated for Athletic Association president by the members of the Undergraduate Association at a meeting in the gymnasium last Friday at noon. Voting will start this Wednesday, March 5 on Jake.

The remaining AA officers, vice-president, secretary and treasurer will not be elected until Wednesday, March 26, when all students may again vote.

Duties of the president are to preside at all meetings of the AA, to call special meetings, and to represent the AA on Student Council and Representative Assembly.

In the absence of the president, her duties devolve upon the vice-president.

The president and vice-president must be academically registered in the junior class at the time of taking office, the treasurer in the sophomore class and the secretary in the freshman class.

NEW VICE-PRESIDENT

Lawrie Trevor

Senior Notices

Senior Tea will be held tomorrow from 4 to 6 in the College Parlor. All seniors are expected to come and act as hostesses to the faculty.

Send suggestions for the Senior class gift and Senior Week theme to Ruth Maier through Student Mail.

494 Votes Were Cast In Latest Election

Lawrie Trevor was elected Undergraduate Vice-President in the election held last Wednesday and Thursday on Jake. There were 494 votes cast this year, in contrast to the 493 votes in last year's vice-presidential race.

Martha Muse and Mable Brown were also nominated for the office.

Miss Trevor has been president of the sophomore class, Junior Prom chairman, vice-president of the freshman class and a member of Representative Assembly.

Duties of the Vice-President

Vice-presidential duties include assuming presidential duties in the absence of the president and helping to maintain order and decorum about the College buildings and on the College grounds. She is chairman of the Board of Senior Proctors and has a seat on Student Council. As Carol Johns, out-going Undergraduate president has pointed out, the success of an administration is greatly dependent upon the efficiency of the vice-president.

Interviewed in the tearoom after election returns were announced, Miss Trevor said, "I am thrilled at being elected, and look forward to working with Helen Pond, the Senior Proctors, and the other members of Student Council.

"My sister's shoes are half a size smaller, but I shall do my best to fit in' o them."

Serious Financial Problem Plagues Barnard College

The following statement has been issued by Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve concerning Barnard's finances.

The general financial situation facing Barnard College today is puzzling, as it is in nearly all colleges of the same type. The rising cost of operating the College, combined with the falling rate of interest on the endowment, has puzzled us for some years, and now with the necessity of increasing the wages of our employees and adopting a somewhat higher salary scale for the teaching staff, the matter has become acute.

Last year it cost $1,096,485 to operate the College. Of this, $609,065 was expended on educational administration and instruction, and $111,894 on buildings and grounds expenses connected with instruction.

The operation of the Residence Halls, the lunchroom, the medical department and similar auxiliary enterprises cost $302,114.

Sources of Income

How did the College get the money to make these expenditures? There are only three sources of income for Barnard. The first is interest on our endowment. As the interest rate has fallen over recent years, that source of annual income has declined about $35,000 since 1940.

Another source of income is from current gifts. This amounted to $17,217 in 1945-46, and does not figure very largely in our total picture.

The bulk of our income comes from fees paid by the students. These usually meet about 75% of the cost of operating the College. As I have said in a previous statement, we awarded last year school awards to an amount of $57,156 to help some of the students meet the fees.

Contrary to what some people believe, we do not get any financial support from Columbia University—for example, in the privilege of using the University Library—but Barnard has to pay its own way.

Nor do we get a penny of support from government sources, except that we are exempt from taxation, and that is, of course, a great help.

Employees Wages

This year we have already had to increase the wages of our employees by $40,000 and we have made some increases in salaries which have added another $23,000.

We ought to be spending a great deal more on the reconditioning of our buildings. In past years, we set aside $50,000 toward this, but the cost will probably be several hundred thousand dollars.

Where is Barnard to get the money to pay the additional expense of operation? We are planning a long term campaign to secure financial support, but additional endowment is not easy to get and a million dollars now produces only about $35,000 a year income. It will be some time before we secure much more money annually from that source, even if our financial campaign proves very successful.

The increase of $100 in the tuition fee which went into effect this year raised our income by about $100,000, but this has already been absorbed by the rise in prices, wages and salaries, so that the College is now running at a deficit.

Should the fee be still further increased? This is an important and serious question. If we do not increase the fees, how shall we meet the cost of operating Barnard?

Van Doren Urges Union Of World At 'SF' Rally

Mark Van Doren, professor of English at Columbia, spoke on The Necessity for World Government last Friday, February 28, at a meeting in South Hall of the Columbia Chapter of the Student Federalists.

Dr. Van Doren stated that the United Nations Organization should be transformed into a government of the federal type. He said that the problems will be many and difficult, but our motive, that of "survival," prompts the setting up of a world government with the power to maintain the peace.

Dr. Van Doren was recently elected to the United World Federalists, a merger of the six major world government organizations, formed at a convention in Asheville, N. C., February 21, 22 and 23.

Interfaith Hobby Show To Aid Fresh Air Fund

The Interfaith Hobby Show, which opens Thursday in the Conference Room, will feature such faculty hobbies as cooking (with appropriate samples), exhibits of pictures, collections of coins and of dolls, and mystery books from the philosophy department.

The show will be held Thursday and Friday, from 11 to 4, with 10 cents charged as admission. All proceeds will go to the term drive for the Herald Tribune Fresh Air Fund.

Vocational Meeting Planned on Thursday

Mrs. Dorothy Osborne, headmistress of the Spence School, and Miss Dorothy Blondel, head of the biology department of Curtis High School, will speak on opportunities in the field of education this Thursday, March 6 at 4 p.m. in the Conference Room.

The meeting is being sponsored by Vocational Committee in conjunction with its education program being conducted during February and March.

Mrs. Osborne

Mrs. Osborne, an alumna trustee of Barnard, formerly taught at Miss Hewitt's school, at St. Timothy's and St. Mary's schools. She is a member of the College Entrance Examination Board and President of the Headmistress Association of the East.

Miss Blondel

Miss Blondel was a lieutenant in the Waves, and has taught at George Washington High School, St. Agatha's School and the Packer Institute. She studied at Teachers College and at Cornell University.

Vocational Committee is also sponsoring an education exhibition of books and pamphlets in the library in line with the meeting. All students interesting in teaching and in other positions in the field of education are urged to attend the meeting.

170 COUPLES DANCE FRIDAY AT 1948 PROM

Reflections, the class of '48's junior prom, was held on Friday night at the Savoy Plaza. In a suite of three rooms consisting of a ballroom, living room, and reception room, 170 couples danced to the music of Joe Moss and were served punch and petits fours.

The dance was planned by a committee headed by Lawrie Trevor and consisting of Doris Biggio, hotels; Margaret Shioman, business; Jane Wessling, bids; Georgia Wight, guests; Margaret Podell, refreshments; Patricia Day, orchestra; Astry Beek, publicity; Elsie Koerner, secretary; Marilyn Schwartz, Bulletin.

Guests at the Dance

Guests at the dance were Professor Virginia D. Harrington; Mr. and Mrs. Charles English; Mr. and Mrs. Hans Stabenau; Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Stecher; Helen Trevor, chairman of last year's Prom Committee; Martha Muse, president of the junior class; Lawrie Trevor, chairman of the Prom Committee.

Because of the great demand for bids, sale of them was restricted, on last Monday and Tuesday, to juniors who had signed the poster and the waiting list. Approximately 150 bids were sold at this time.

On the next two days, bids were sold to other juniors and to seniors who wished to attend. It is customary to invite members of the senior class to attend the junior prom.

Freshman Tea

'Apple for the Teacher' Theme of Invitations

In an attempt to promote closer understanding between faculty and students, the freshmen gave a tea yesterday from 3:30 to 5:30 in the Brooks living room, with "An Apple for the Teacher" as the theme.

Invitations carrying out the "Apple" theme were sent to 65 members of the faculty, who have freshman classes. Set to verse, they went as follows:

Your presence is requested
At the freshmen-facul-tea-
For we plan a cordial welcome
That begins at half-past three
The mood will be informal
And we hope you recognize
The girl above the teacup
As a student in disguise!
The living room of our Brooks
Hall
Will set the proper scene
For thought and conversation
With sipping in-between.
The date is twenty-seven
And as February ends;
Please accept this invitation
That the Freshman class extends.

Many of the guests retaliated with versified acceptances.

The committee on arrangements for the tea were dressed in cotton dresses, hair ribbons, and bobby socks. They presented each member of the faculty with an apple upon his arrival.

Jane Steinberg, chairman of the freshman social committee, declared that the tea was a great success. This represents the first attempt in many years of the lower classmen to meet socially with the faculty.

Greek Games Tryouts

Tryouts for the parts of Greek Games priestess, challenger, and lyric readers are to be held in the gym on Wednesday, from 12 to 12:30. Applicants for the part of lyric reader will read the winning lyric by Ethel Hutcheson '49 titled "The Gift of Pallas Athene." All those who wish to try out should see Mrs. Mary Morris Seals before signing the poster on Jake.

Reasons For Prejudice Subject Of Forum Talk

The reasons behind prejudice were discussed by Burton Turner, one of the founders of the Columbia University Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, at a Liberal Club forum last Tuesday, February 25, from 4 to 6 in the College Parlor.

Freshmen, Sophomores Give "Stardust" Prom

Star Dust is the name of the soph-frosh prom, which will be celebrated for the first time in several years on the evening of March 15 in the Hewitt Hall Dining Room from 9 to 1.

The Social Committees of both classes under the direction of Natalie Cole '49, are planning this formal dance. Kim Blanchard's orchestra and a new type of bid (costing $2.25) are included in the arrangements.

Since the accommodations will be limited, those who wish to attend should sign the poster on Jake as soon as possible.

Brain Truster Moley Talks About Politics

—By Peggy Baruth

A politician is a person of many natures welded into one, and it takes a versatile mind to understand him. Such an insight has been developed by Dr. Raymond Moley, professor of Public Law at Barnard College.

His career as author, editor, lecturer, teacher, and presidential adviser has shown him how people get into politics, and the qualities common to those who stay there and succeed. Personality, leisure, a realization of sectional issues, and wide acquaintance are necessary for political success.

Dr. Moley sat behind stacks of papers and periodicals in his office in the Newsweek Building. His position as Associate Editor of Newsweek brings him into constant contact with political figures. Many of them looked down at him in smiling approval from autographed photographs and cartoons hanging on the wall. Dr. Moley looked back at Landon, Roosevelt, and Al Smith, and settled deeper into his red leather chair.

"Politics is a lifetime job," the former presidential adviser declared, "and success in this field comes from knowing a lot of people . . . and the right people. It involves tact, charm, and knowledge of the country."

"Women in politics have the natural advantage of emotional understanding of public questions and a sensitiveness to human contacts," the professor mused, knocking the ashes out of his briar pipe.

He describes Ruth Hanna McCormick as "the greatest woman politician," he ever knew. Others who have impressed the genial, soft-spoken professor are Emily Taft Douglas, of Illinois, and Helen Gahagan Douglas, of California, a Barnard alumna.

Roosevelt "Brain Trust"

Prof. Moley is known more widely, however, for his work with Roosevelt's "brain trust" and his efforts to bring greater justice into the American judicial system.

An ardent believer in the "simplification of governmental processes" to help the man-in-the-street, Dr. Moley was appointed research director of the New York State Crime Commission in 1926. In 1932, Dr. Moley was instrumental in the selection of the presidential brain trust. In 1933 he became Assistant Secretary of State.

Accompanying Roosevelt on cross-country speaking tours, the professor assisted with many of the president's speeches and suggested many punch lines, including the famous phrases, "the New Deal," and "the forgotten man."

Although he disagreed with the president on many issues, he describes the late chief executive as one of "the most delightful persons" he ever met.

Friend of Top Personalities

During his career as a governmental adviser, Dr. Moley became close friend with many of the nation's top personalities. Although his boyhood ideal idol was William Jennings Bryan, as he grew older he developed other political favorites.

Claiming to be a "strict non-partisan," he has many friends on both sides of the political fence. He describes Ed Flynn, of the Bronx, as one of the "greatest politicians" he has ever known, because of Flynn's direction of a political machine "in the interest of the public."

A product of the mid-west, Dr. Moley was born in a small town near Cleveland, Ohio, where he made his first political contacts. His early ambition was to be a political writer. This ambition has been realized through the publication of several books, editorship of the magazine Today, and his appointment as associate editor of Newsweek.

'Magic Cow' Grazes Here Wednesday

Susie Sheffield, the magic cow, famed for her four different types of milk, is playing a return performance this Wednesday, March 5 on Jake.

That renowned animal, loaned last year to Barnard for one day during Health Week by the Sheffield Milk Co., is again scheduled to produce chocolate, butter, homogenized and Vitamin A milk for the varied preferences of all at Barnard.

Health Week, which commences today with the distribution of the Health Herald, continues through Friday, March 7, Mental Health Day. Health Week, the main Health Committee event of the year, is designed to remind everyone of the basic factors necessary for health—sunshine, fresh air and exercise, proper diet, adequate sleep, correction of remedial defects and mental health or sane living.

The "Balanced Life," achieved through a proper proportioning of activity between work, recreation and rest, is the theme of Health Week.

Edited and published by the Health Committee, the two pages of the Health Herald, which were distributed Monday, are chock full of entertaining articles, quizzes, poems and faculty opinions. The Health Herald was first printed last year.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mark the celebrations of sleep, food and exercise days, respectively. On Tuesday a sleeping beauty will be featured on Jake; and in the gymnasium during the noon hour on Thursday, members of AA committees will demonstrate various skills.

From 1 to 2, however, the gym is and will be open to all those who desire to use it. Wednesday, of course, features Susie and her products.

Health Week is under the sponsorship of Elizabeth Lowe and a committee.

Save Money On Books By Supporting Co-op

Rents are high on Broadway. Wages must be paid to storekeepers. Profits must be good enough to make a businessman continue a bookstore. Where does the money come from to pay for all these expenses of handling books? Obviously, the customers must pay.

Barnard students realized several years ago that the large cost of distribution in book selling could be eliminated if they served themselves. In a cooperative spirit, the Barnard Book Exchange or Co-op, located in Milbank Hall basement, was established. This non-profit organization acts as a middleman in the purchasing and selling of books.

Religious Notes

Episcopal Club

Chaplain Stephen F. Bayne will be the speaker at the Episcopal Club meeting today at 4, in the College Parlor. His topic will be "Freedom and Discipline." This talk will be the second in a series of Lenten discussions.

The Barnard Episcopal Club will join with the newly formed Columbia Episcopal Club to form a Canterbury Club which will be part of the National Canterbury Club. The third Sunday of every month the two Episcopal Clubs, the Acolytes, and the Barnard Altar Guild which has charge of the preparation of the Communion Services at St. Paul's Chapel, will hold a Corporate Communion at 9 a.m. in St. Paul's Chapel.

Lutheran Club

Also today at 4, Charles O. Thompson, Executive Secretary to the Lutheran Welfare Council, will speak at a meeting of the Lutheran Club. Mr. Thompson's topic will be "How the Other Half Lives."

Newman Club

"Our greatest aim in life is God now," declared the Rev. W. E. Orchard, noted English author and lecturer, addressing Newman Club last Tuesday afternoon on the subject of "Aims," the first in his series of five Lenten lectures on "Keeping Life in Line."

"Directions," is the topic of Father Orchard's next lecture, scheduled for tomorrow at four in Earl Hall.

"Can Courtship Solve Incompatibility?" will be discussed at the Newman Club meeting this afternoon at 4 in the College Parlor under the leadership of the Rev. John K. Daly.

U.C.A.

"Jesus Christ Our Lord" was the topic on which the Reverend William G. Cole spoke at the meeting of the University Christian Association last Thursday.

The Reverend Dr. Cole stated that there are two great doctrines concerning Christ. One is the doctrine of the incarnation and the other the doctrine of the atonement.

mother and father were in India. They returned to Shanghai in October 1946, and report that sentiment has changed and has become markedly anti-American.

Adjusting to New York City as well as to college was most difficult for Marcia. However, she overcame these difficulties with flying colors. She served as Greek Games chairman in her freshman and sophomore years, was co-chairman of the recent "As you were" dance with her roommate Nancy Cameron, has been on the Residence Halls executive committee, and is now vice-president of Hewitt Hall.

Combines Science and Writing

Her major in zoology and interest in medical social work indicates a continuing family tradition. She would like to combine her medical work with creative writing, and keeps notebooks of ideas which were jotted down at odd intervals.

As to the origin of her nickname "Tinker"—it goes back to the days when her sister couldn't pronounce her name and loved the story of Peter Pan. Tinker Bell and Marcia Balfour were confused and Marcia received the name that has stuck to her ever since.

Co-op Pays You up to One-third More

Salter's Bookstore pays one-third to one-half of the original price of textbooks in demand. Since Co-op pays two-thirds, students can get as much as two times more by selling through Co-op.

Third, Fourth-Hand Books Cost Less

Students save money not only when they sell, but also when they buy books through Co-op. Whereas Salter's calculates the price of a book on the original price, Co-op decreases by one-third the price paid by the previous owner.

Salter's would not state what percentage decrease is allowed on used books. However, after three people had used Simplified Russian Method by Dr. Bondar, the price was decreased only 34%. Under Co-op, as more people use the book, the price decreases at a regular 33%.

Co-op Needs Student Help

In the co-operative spirit, the work of Co-op should be done by the students themselves. At present, Co-op needs members who could devote one hour per week at the office.

Students are urged to buy and sell their books through Co-op and also to take part in its work so that this service can continue.

Receipts Of Foster Parent Term Drive Total $3400

Winding up the Foster Parents drive, Gertrude Rosenstein '48, chairman, announced that the total receipts came to over $3,400, one of the highest sums ever collected for a term drive.

Report on Drives

In reporting on drives in general, Miss Rosenstein commented that Barnard must be educated to contribute to charities. Students are not charity conscious.

She suggested that in the future the drive chairman be elected a term in advance, so that she may set up committees and have time to arrange programs of events.

Other suggestions for future drives include a follow-up system on solicitations, and perhaps one drive for both semesters with the same committee functioning.

Letter of Thanks

Miss Jane Chase Rogers, educational director of Foster Parents, has forwarded a letter of thanks saying, "Please know how deeply grateful we are to all of you at Barnard who have shared so graciously and generously with the war children."

Chairman Rosenstein issued the following statement: "It's a great pleasure to announce that the Foster Parents drive has collected over $3,400. The money has already been given to the credit of "our" children. With this unusual bitter cold in Europe, it is a source of comfort to know that we at Barnard are contributing to the amelioration of such conditions. So, on behalf of these children, thanks to all those who have done their share in making our drive a success."

The following is an itemization of Foster Parents drive receipts as of January 17, 1947. Subsequent contributions have bolstered the total to over $3400.
