When patronizing our advertisers mention Mortarboard

MARION BABETTE WADSWORTH

Let picture, poem, printed word
Recall the spendid days,
When we were undergraduates,
And went our carefree ways.
These times are past, and nothing
But the record of them stays.
So in our Sober Senior Year
Let us give this a place,
This record of our foolish youth,
Told with our little grace.
May you find here, some future day,
A friend's familiar face.

THE MORTARBOARD
1927

PUBLISHED BY THE
BARNARD COLLEGE
VOLUME XXXIII

O to the memory of
Jacob H. Schiff to whose generosity
we owe so much, we,
the class of 1927, dedicate
this, our Mortarboard

We Nominate For The Hall of Fame —

CHARLES SEARS BALDWIN—

because he can read Middle English without one pronouncing “yow” as if it rhymed with “how,” because he can painlessly tell a freshman not to rise when reciting in class, and because, though he has no sign on his office-door saying “Knock and ENTER” everyone always does.

WILLIAM HALLER—

because he can discuss Love for an entire term and still have something left to say about it.

WILLIAM BRAUN—

because in the last six months he has produced five thousand dollars and two pianos out of a pleasant smile, because he can actually make a Personage sorry not to be able to speak at assembly, and finally and most especially because Dr. Griffin treats him like a human being.

VIRGINIA GILDERSLEEVE—

because Coolie belongs to her, because she is the proprietor of an open fireplace, and finally because she may, if she wishes, walk across the grass when Raphael is looking.

MARY V. LIBBY—

because she edits Marnard's Press-notices, because she will patiently answer any question from the nature of the Dodo-bird to why we meet for lunch on Jacob Schiff, and finally because she can survive the mob of Aunts, Cousins, Parents, and Advisors Spiritual that besiege her office at the beginning of each academic year.

THOMAS PEARDON—

because in spite of his bellicose appearance and fierce and uncompromising manner, in spite of his harsh voice and brutal nature, we recently heard a maiden call him her ideal.

HENRI MULLER—

because he shares an office with M. Vaillant.

RENE VAILLANT—

because he shares an office with M. Muller.

MINOR LATHAM—

because any dramatic pie without a touch of her finger would be flat and insipid, because no Mortarboard would be complete without some reference to the twins, of whom she is one, and because if she were not in Mortarboard's "Hall of Fame" the college would rise up and make one of their own in which to put her.

Gilbertiana Facultiae

DR. ALSOP

Perhaps if you address the doctor
Most politely, most politely;
With your health impress the doctor
Most politely, most politely,
She'll grade you "A" with ready cheer
But if you do not persevere
She'll remove it, never fear,
Most politely, most politely.

DR. CRAMPTON

The flowers that bloom in the spring
Tra-la
Have nothing to do with the case.
We've got to look under this wing
Tra-la
And identify everything
Tra-la
And explain why it grew in this place.

MISS LATHAM

Fifty love-sick maidens we,
Love-sick all against our will.
Fifty years hence we will be Flunking English Drama still.

PROF. HALLER

Oh, I'm Professor Haller
And there's not a liberaller
Professor in the whole countree.
Though "Rewrite it" I may Occasionally say
I never give a big, big "D".
What, never?
No, never,
What, never?
Well, hardly ever!
He hardly ever gives a big, big "D."

MR. MARSHALL

A short interview young man,
A large retinue young man,
A highly didactical
Likewise impractical
Roderick Dhu young man.

THE students as a body regulate their extra-curricular affairs through the Undergraduate Association. The Representative Assembly, which is composed of the chosen leaders of the various college activities and members especially elected to it by the college, acts in a legislative capacity for the Undergraduate Association. Student Council is the Association's executive and judicial body. Certain appointed committees have more specialized duties, as those of Eligibility and of Social Activities. Thus, through these three channels, the supervision of the Undergraduate Association reaches every part of student activity.

Entrance Freshman Year

AMONG the Ephesian worshippers comes Maiande, a maiden beloved of all the people, to lay her offering upon the altar of Artemis, patron goddess of maidens. It is a day of celebration, for Maiande is to be given in marriage to Parion, a hero of the last wars.

The Priestesses sing their accustomed chant. Scarcely have its echoes died away when a laughing group of revellers approaches—Parion and his officers just come from a feast in celebration of the approaching marriage. They jeer at the worshippers with mock sacrifices. But it goes too far. The contents of a goblet Parion is carrying are flung upon the white robe of the priestess. There is one shrill scream—then horrified silence as the worshippers realize the sacrilege. Other citizens attracted by the noise come running towards the temple. They cry for vengeance. The desecrator must die. Their anger mounts until Parion, breaking away from their assault, throws himself at the feet of the priestess in expiation for his guilt. Then Maiande, the favorite of the Ephesians, pushes through the crowd offering herself in payment for the crime of her lover. The priestess, knowing that Artemis will prefer the service of a beautiful maiden to the death of a warrior, accepts her sacrifice. So Maiande receives the veil of service and enters the temple. The worshippers, grateful for the clemency of their goddess, burst into a psalm of thanksgiving. But as the priestesses withdraw, fury again surges over the mob. The song breaks and the Ephesians vent their wrath upon the officers, carrying them away from the temple they have desecrated. For a moment Parion remains alone before the altar. Then, broken in spirit, he gives himself into the hands of the enraged citizens.

EONA, knowing of her brother Endymion's hopeless love for the immortal Artemis, comes one evening with her maidens to the temple, and beseeches the goddess to release him from his madness. As they stand there reverently before the altar, strains of plaintive music mingle with their prayers, and Endymion enters to take up his vigil at the Moon-Goddess' shrine. Peona's prayers are futile. Deaf to her pleadings, he sends her away, for no earthly power can dissuade him from his love.

Suddenly a lithe figure, clothed in the tawny skins of the chase, darts towards him. Mistaking her for Artemis he pursues the huntress. Other Oreads gather round and torment the distracted youth. At length breaking away from the fleet-footed huntresses, he falls exhausted before the statue of his goddess.

Then a strange thing comes to pass. The statue seems to breathe—to live. The eyes of stone grow soft and understanding, and the proud lips smile. Then fleet as an arrow shot from her bow, the Huntress-Queen, with the glory of the stars in her eyes, and the witchery of the moon in the coils of her hair, leaps from her pedestal. She springs to earth, living, vibrant. In the path of silver they dance, goddess and mortal. They dip and sway and leap and whirl in a mad abandon.

But when Endymion tries to seize the goddess of the moon, and possess himself of all her radiance, she flees in pride and scorn back to the altar of her shrine. As he gazes, the gleaming figure turns to radiant marble.

Lyrics

Song for the Dancers of the Temple

When the red rites are done,
 And lurid on the altar lies
 A poppy pool of blood;
 When the frail stars have spun
 Their last pale web, before the skies
 Open to the sun;
 When the red rites are done, are done;

 White as the cool moon, fading in the dawn,
 Black where the shadows are,
 Dancers swirl;—
 White, white,
 Seeming in the moonlight
 Silver and ebony, ebony and pearl.

 When the far hills awake,
 And sunlight on the altar dims
 The consecrated fire;
 When on the ambient lake
 Of morning the first gull skims
 And sees the night clouds break;
 When the far hills awake, awake;

 White as the gull's wing splashed with the sun,
 Blue where the shadows are,
 Dancers swirl;—
 White, white,
 Seeming in the sunlight,
 Silver and lazulite, lazulite and pearl.
 HELEN DEUTSCH, 1927.

TO ARTEMIS

I would not have thee mortal. To adore
 A thing no better than mine own poor self
 Would be no worship. For the soul of man
 Lifts not its supplication at the shrine
 Of the familiar, finding comfort there;
 And rapture unto madness does not rise
 From common things. Thou to whom all the hills
 Bow rev'rently, to whom the woodland sings,
 Whose footstep is the pulse of forest life,
 Art wrapt in matchless immortality
 Beyond our feeble reach. I thank the gods
 That the last limits of our meagre minds
 Touch not the borders of those mysteries
 Olympus knows. If thou art not the proud
 High goddess whose white emblem nightly bathes
 The earth in silver silences; whose heart,
 Mocking at love and all things amorous,
 Melts into tenderness at man's distress,
 His body's weakness and incompetence,
 His hopeless quest; then be my blindness blessed,
 For thus I see thee.

THE King has incurred the enmity of the priests of Pan by forbidding the worship of the god in his country. To avenge Pan, the priests have stolen the king's young son, and have taken him to a temple hidden in the mountains.

In searching through the foothills for the child, the king and some of his men come upon the temple, where a group of devotees are about to consecrate the stolen boy to the god. The king calls to his men and they rush forward to snatch the prince away, but in the confusion an acolyte is able to carry the child into the temple.

The king is about to follow them when a sudden silence falls upon the crowd. They stand motionless, frozen with terror while a strange piping comes from within the temple. It ceases, and in a panic, which they themselves cannot understand or control, the people run shrieking from the place. Only the king remains, struggling between this strange fear that has fallen upon him and the desire to recover his son.

Then, realizing his helplessness in the face of a mysterious power, he prays to Pan for the return of the boy. His prayer seems to be answered for the little prince comes alone out of the temple; but the hand of the god has been upon the child and he is mad.

“For His presence inspires terror, striking men with sudden panic; His weapon is madness, and His ways are strange.”

DURING the noonday hush, a shepherd pipes an old song of the love of a nymph for a shepherd.

The story tells of Binon and his companions, who have been lured into an orgy by some mischievous autumn sprites.

In his mad intoxication he no longer recognizes Aeoia, the spring nymph who has been his love. Her sister nymphs, seeing her distress, implore the aid of Pan, their guardian. In answer to their prayer the god gives them three pipes, which have his power of controlling madness. Under the spell of the pipes the shepherds grow calm; they re-awake to the life about them. Then with new love, they return, Binon to Aeoia, his companions to the nymphs of spring.

The song is ended. The piper rises and goes to get the little lamb that has strayed too close to the woods.

Pipes played by Rosemary Keating.

Drums and Cymbals played by Katherine Kridel.

OLD THRENODY

To be sung at the rites of the dying god.
I have not tired of the hills,
Nor lain my fill in the grass,
And here you come blowing, cold wind.

I know that the sun is lying
Hot on the scattered kine,
And the little black goat is trying
To dance in the tangled vine,
But an old wind shakes the pine,
And the low gulls are flying.

I have loved the noontide trailing
Its flame on the turning sky,
And the warm pain in the wailing
Of ewes, but the flock goes by
With udders rank and dry,
And the yellow light is failing.

Something bright is dying.
It will live again
When the new birds are flying.
But now only the rain
And an ashen dusk remain,
And a deep unrest, and a sighing.

I have not tired of the hills,
Nor lain my fill in the grass,
And here you come blowing, cold wind.

HELEN DEUTSCH, 1927.

IN ARCADY

No man who ever walked in Arcady
Can cloud the look of listening in his eyes.
Two silent things, the crusted trunks of trees
And languid bits of sun that wanly gild
With light a twisted root or blackened stone,
Are woven with a single even note
Of distant ecstasy, a wisp of sound
That creeps into the rustling of the leaves
And fills the drowsy canopy of song
With rapture alien to the common talk of birds.
No man who ever found the river there,
And heard in the wild Spring stirring of its grass
The music almost grow into a song
Of such high sweetness that the hillside shook,
Can take away his reason still untouched.
Let no man wander near the haunts of Pan
And seek a quiet born of trees and earth,
Lest he be deafened by the whispered notes,
And hear a wind of madness thru the reeds.

Do You Remember?

M16, G24, W56, L21, A7?

Sem's regal mien and her spiffy cape?

Cora DuBois' rubber apron, and the orgiastic afternoons in the dye room?

The momentous and involved discussions as to whether blue-green was really more subtle than green-blue?

Deal Dunham masquerading as a roast chicken on a platter?

The Four Horsemen who carried the platter?

The difficulty of looking intelligent while making a noise like a Greek:
Nike—ah—eeh—be—lala—nike—oompah—aaaa—ho theos—owowawooo
—nike—blah?

The thrill the first time you saw the dance?

And the chariot?

Helen Robinson's unintelligible but apparently sincere ultimatum to the Freshmen?

Helen Deutsch's vocabulary and her—gestures?

The furtive glances at the Grandstand in spite of orders to the contrary?

The much maligned but indubitably useful safety pin?

The equally maligned and equally useful string?

THROUGH the Spanish Club we try to bring students into closer contact with Spanish life, and to accustom them to the sound of the language. The way in which we try to accomplish this is by having noted speakers at our meetings, and also by giving short plays and dialogues in which members of the club take part. Senorita Carolina Marcial Dorado, the head of our Spanish department, is a most enthusiastic worker, and it is indeed a pleasure to co-operate with her.

THE Deutscher Kreis aims to provide occasion for intimacy with the German language, its literature and culture, with especial emphasis on the language. To this end meetings are held twice monthly in the German Study.

A continuity of contacts and interests is afforded by opening the membership to interested Barnard Alumnae. The gift from the Edward D. Adams fund will enable the Kreis, it is expected, to extend its activities to the interest of the college at large.

B HIS club was founded in May, 1896, in the first home of Barnard College at Madison Avenue. The Purpose of the club as set forth in the Constitution is to promote the interests of the Botanical Department of Barnard College and to promote friendly relations among the students of that department. Every student who has worked more than one year in the Botanical Department is eligible to membership in the club. The membership includes, therefore, not only undergraduates, but also graduate students and alumnae. The activities of the club are one or more business meetings a year, when so voted, and a lecture by some botanist of prominence. Botanical field trips and meetings for reporting and discussing scientific work occur occasionally. In celebration of its twenty-fifth anniversary in 1921, the club presented the department with an apparatus for projection of both slides and pictures, and it has made gifts from time to time to add to the equipment of the laboratories.

THE Math Science Club affords opportunity for discussion of both mathematical and scientific subjects. During the past year the club has endeavored to bring subjects of practical value and interest before its members by means of illustrated lectures and trips to various places such as factories, museums and places of business. New York and its vicinity offers a wide field for actual observation of the modern applications of the principles of science.

POLITICS CLUB

The Politics Club

O become acquainted with the social, economic, and political problems which confront not only the local community, but the state, the nation and the world; to educate along the line of desirable and possible remedies which makes possible constructive rather than destructive criticism; to cultivate clear thinking; to promote intelligent and unbiased opinion based on some knowledge of fact; to secure the exchange of such thoughts and opinions through discussion; in all, to prepare for intelligent citizenship—these are the aims of the Politics Club.

GO cultivate refined, artistic feeling, and to raise the general standard of college singing, are the chief aspirations of Glee Club. In addition to the few big concerts given during the year, such as the Christmas and Spring Concerts, the club is frequently asked to sing at various college functions. The club is under the supervision of a professional director. Membership is granted to those who are successful in the tryouts held only at the beginning of each semester. There is regularly one practice a week, for an hour and a half. Glee Club invites all students who have the ability to sing and who enjoy group singing to try out for membership.

Menorah

MENORAH has been founded in order to fill a definite need in our college life for the study of Jewish life and thought. In accordance with this purpose, weekly discussion groups are conducted under the direction of a leader, in which ancient as well as modern phases of Jewish cultural achievements are taken up. Membership is open to all students of the college.

A system of levels was marked out for each event, creating a higher level, a medium and a low which counted five, three and one points respectively. Class results were arrived at by computing averages from the individual scores of the competitors in each class.

Mysteries

(As Kipling would have told it)

HEAR and attend and listen, O Best Beloved; this occurred in the high and far off days when the Swaggering-Braggering Sophomores and the Freshmen-Who-Ought-To-Be-Spanked were Deadly Enemies. On the sixteenth day of October, they and All—the Junior There—Was and All—the Senior—there—Was came together in the great Cafeteria. And, the reason was to teach the Freshmen-Who-Ought-To-Be-Spanked not to feel that they were All-That There-Was-To-The College. The Freshmen wore their hair in dretful-looking-pigtails, and carried great and most unnecessary umbrellas. They had to. The Swaggering-Braggering Sophomores, who came all dressed in Big Bandannas and fierce piratical garb, had made them. And at the supper the most 'streperous of the Frosh waited on table. They had to.

Throughout the feast, they all sang and cheered, and then the 'portent Juniors and the proper Seniors went downstairs, and left the Freshmen to be spanked.

The Freshmen were still proud even though they looked like an orphan asylum turned out on a cold, dark night, and they said impudent things. The Swaggering Sophomores thought: "Ah, this is a clever Freshman class, but not so clever as we are." And they led them through the big and 'sclusively dark hallway, and they bumped them and thumped them, and hauled them and mauled them, and hurried them and worried them, and made them feel most hot and uncomfortable indeed.

And then, O Best Beloved, after all that, the Sophomores took them into a great, big room all set about with gym apparatus, and Members-Of-The Physical-Ed-Faculty, and gave a most wonderful Revue.

At the end of that, up rose Noel Stone (and she was the President of the Swaggering-Braggering Sophomores) and very solemnly she called Elizabeth Mohun (she was Temporary Chairman of the Freshmen-Who-Had-Been-Spanked) and said: "O Chairman of a most game and admirable class, as a sign of peace and friendship for ever and ever between your class and mine, I give to you this Mysteries Book."

"Thanks awf'ly," said the Chairman.

And so—just so—they made up. And that's all right, Best Beloved. Do you see?

The Student Fellowship Drive

THE Student Fellowship Drive, inaugurated last year as the successor of the Student Friendship Drive, was held this year from November 16 to November 25. The purpose of the drive is to raise a fund which will enable a Barnard graduate to pursue a year's study abroad, and a foreign student to study at Barnard.

Last year the drive was carried out with great success. Jane Dewey Clark, to whom one fellowship was awarded, is now studying chemistry in Copenhagen, and Gunvor Stenberg, the foreign student, is specializing in English here.

Sing Song

THE annual competition in singing and song-writing was held on December 16 in the Theatre. The most interesting, as well as the most successful performance of the afternoon was given by the Sophomore class. Their songs were well-written and were executed with great enthusiasm. The Seniors, singing with dignity and earnestness, won second place. Third and fourth places were won, respectively, by the Juniors and Freshmen.

One of the features of Sing Song this year with the delightful performance of the Glee Club after the class competition. The two numbers, "Love Song," of Brahms, and a humorous song entitled "Oh Didn't It Rain," were rendered with admirable skill and spirit.

Intercollegiate Activities

JUNIOR MONTH.—Every year, twelve or thirteen Juniors from as many Eastern colleges are selected to spend the month of July studying the social problems of today and the methods of modern social work in dealing with these problems. The method of study is largely by direct investigation, and thus the student is enabled to witness the actual application to human living of the problems heretofore studied only from books. Among the problems considered this year were: Juvenile Delinquency, Prison Reform, The Mental Defective, Child Welfare, Medical School Service and the Visiting Teacher.

Mirra Komarovsky, the Barnard Representative, described the experiences of Junior Month as intensely broadening and enlightening. They furnished an opportunity (to use her words) for “contact with actuality,” a “plunge into reality.”

WOMEN’S INTERCOLLEGIATE STUDENT ASSOCIATION CONFERENCE.—This conference, the purpose of which was to consider problems of student government, was held on November 12, 13 and 14 at Wellesley College. It was composed of the undergraduate president and a Junior Delegate from about one hundred Eastern colleges.

The most important result of the conference was the decision to shift its own emphasis from the discussion of the detail of college government to consideration of the effective organization and expression of student opinion on national and international affairs.

Madge Turner and Margaret Goodell were the Barnard representatives.

WOMEN’S INTERCOLLEGIATE NEWS ASSOCIATION CONFERENCE.—On Friday and Saturday, December 4 and 5, the tenth annual conference of the association was held at Smith College. It was attended by editorial and business board representatives of thirteen independent women’s colleges.

In line with a tendency that has been developing since 1922 the interest of the conference centered in discussion of news outside the college and its relations to a college paper. The conference was addressed by Mr. Frederick Allen of the editorial staff of Harper's Magazine, Mr. Douglas Haskell, editor-in-chief of the New Student, and Miss Katherine Knight of the advertising department of the Curtis Publishing Company.

The business staff representatives and the literary board representatives of the different college papers conferred separately. Edith Blumberg and Harriet Wilinsky represented the literary board, Byrna Mason and Pearl Friedman the business board, of Bulletin.

WORLD COURT CONFERENCE.—Delegates from two hundred and fifty colleges and universities representing three-fourths of the States met and conferred at Princeton on December 11 and 12. The chief aims of the conference were the consideration of the World Court with some unified expression of opinion and the discussion of the formation of a permanent union of the colleges and universities in the United States. Numerous round-table discussion groups were held, and at the final meeting, a resolution was passed advocating that the United States adhere to the Permanent Court of International Justice according to the Harding-Hughes-Coolidge terms. This resolution was communicated to President Coolidge. A national student organization was formed for the purpose of focussing and expressing student opinion on important questions of the day.

Dorothy Ashworth was the Barnard delegate.

INTERCOLLEGIATE MAGAZINE CONFERENCE.—On the weekend of February 12, a magazine conference was held at Harvard with the Harvard Advocate as host. The editorial boards of about ten Eastern college magazines were represented and a number of other colleges also sent in manuscripts. The purpose of the conference was to make an anthology of poems, stories and essays published within the last year in the different college magazines. The method of procedure was to have each manuscript read by at least four people, and after all the material had thus been gone over, to have discussion and voting on it by the group.

Barnard Barnacle was represented by Irma Simonton and Frances Banner.

Evidences of A Greek Civilization In 20th Century New York

(Extracts from a Ph. D. thesis of 4000 A. D.)

DATA of a most extraordinary nature has been unearthed in the ruins of an ancient American college. It gives conclusive evidence that a Greek culture flourished in this institution in the 20th century. The discovery consisted of a series of pictures, which are here reproduced on the page opposite. They have been very puzzling to archeologists, so I shall undertake to explain them, and interpret Graeco-Barnardine life through them.

CENTRE PLATE—I cannot but feel that there is deep religious significance in this picture, and also a tragic quality. The mention of Pan sets the religious tone, as well as explaining the use of the musical instrument, which is a gross exaggeration of the syrinx. The tragic element is symbolized by the heavy goloshae which are doubtless derived from the Greek buskin. The building in the background was probably the skene or dressing-room. The puddle of water would seem to indicate that the stage was out-of-doors though, of course, it is still a mooted question as to whether or not they had a stage.

PLATE I—This dishcus-thrower reminds immediately of Myron's Discobolus, because it is so very different. A new element of affectionate interest in the implement seems to be reflected in the athlete's face. The nature of the implement raises an important question for students of Greek and Barnard-Greek archeology:—Was the dish a modification of the typical Greek disc, or was it an outgrowth of the peculiarly American custom of domestic plate-throwing?

PLATE III—The regal person in this picture is either accompanied by his pet bear, or else he is being very careless with his collegiate fur hymation. The architectural background is interesting, showing as it does the use of wooden columns with wooden doors between—a sure sign that stone was not used. . . . The costume is typically Greek except for the sleeves, cuffs, shoes, stockings and belt.

PLATE II—Here is an interesting view of a Graeco-American young woman, or what has been termed a Hellenistic flapper. The young lady's action is difficult to interpret. One scholar believes she is saluting a professor according to a formula now lost to us, while others think she is doing a ritual dance to the demon, Mid-years. Personally, I believe she is only catching cold.

PLATE IV—This shows the marvelous ingenuity of the people in adapting more ancient types of vehicles to suit their own circumstances. Doubtless the need for a small run-about on the campus, and the scarcity of horses led to the use of a light chariot having the horse and charioteer in one. The whip is a survival, and was probably of no practical value except, perhaps, to help clear the paths during the crowded noon-hour.

WE DIDNT KNOW—

Why Seniors, girls just like us, should act so old;
That we couldnt talk;
That we didnt know how to walk, either;
What history papers were for;
How hard we could work;
That Sophomores usually win.

BUT NOW—

1924

WE DIDNT KNOW—

The difference a summer could make;
That life was a pretty serious affair, composed largely of work;
That any Freshman could look so naive;
Whether we had ever looked like that;
What we would major in;
What we would do if we didnt win Greek Games;
What to do when they were over.

BUT NOW—

1925

WE DIDNT KNOW—

How simple college would suddenly get;
That science was so delightful;
That we were such clever conversationalists;
Whether we would really get around to see Greek Games or not;
That we could be so attractive;
That everybody loved us;
That we could do so little work;

AND WE'RE NOT QUITE SURE, EITHER.

The New Curriculum

IN view of the recent heated discussion on the subject of Barnard's New Curriculum, we feel that the moment is opportune to offer our suggestions: a curriculum that is carefully designed to meet every student's needs. A close study of the scheme we submit will convince you of how valuable it really is.

INTRODUCTORY COURSE

DISILLUSION 1-2. Dr. Crampton, Mr. Peardon, Mr. Phillips and Miss Parkhurst. A general course recommended to Freshmen, since the absence of Professor Knight has deprived them of so much necessary instruction. If History A1-A2, Philosophy A, or Zoo C is to be taken, the course may be omitted as it will serve the same purpose as these courses do.

ANTHROPOLOGY

1-2. The Study of Man. This course is designed for those students who have not transferred to Barnard from a Co-Educational institution. Students who take Astronomy need not register for this course, as much of the work will be duplicated.

ASTRONOMY

1. A study of the Constellations, and of the moon. This course will be given at Barnard the Winter Semester so even Freshmen and Sophomores may elect it. The Spring Semester will be given at Columbia. It is uselessly urged that some people elect the Winter half.

BOTANY

91-92. A close study of the dear little flowers that bloom in the Spring. In case Spring is late this year, the time will be given to the science of Botany.

ECONOMICS

A1-A2. The problems of living on an allowance; conserving study until the night before the Exam; cutting down one's dates.

ENGLISH

99. Public Speaking. Mr. Marshall. This course was formerly given by a distinguished assemblage of Faculty, but it did not fill the students needs. From now it will teach the art of small talk, new lines, the process of infatuation, persuasion, and attraction.

FINE ARTS

70. The Art of Coty, Djer-Kiss, Rubenstein, Elizabeth Arden, and Hudnut, with attempts, by the students, to practice this art. There will be Museum trips to the Follies each week.

GEOLOGY

1-2. This will be comprised mainly of field trips. A young instructor will give the course, and only students who can becomingly wear knickers may elect it. This will not satisfy the Science Requirement, but it will serve for that of Fine Arts.

113. A close study of the golf balls and cigarettes stubs of upper New York. Field trips will consist of two hours on the Subway and fifteen minutes in Van Cortlandt Park.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY

The policy of the Department of History has been changed. Formerly it was to give the students a "broad" education and much intensive shocking, and an intimate knowledge of the great characters of all ages. From now on it will endeavor to teach History. The courses will be dull, uninteresting and very hard. Advertisements for Majors will appear each week in Bulletin.

MINEROLOGY

1-2. A primary course in Gold-Digging. Recommended for Juniors and Seniors, and open to Freshmen and Sophomores who cannot get A's and B's in the more accepted ways.

PHILOSOPHY

A1. Required. Along with reading Vanity Fair, every college girl must have a philosophy. This course will not deal with Plato, Socrates, or William James, but with the problem of getting a personal philosophy. It will attempt to answer for each student the question of whether or not she believes in free love, honour systems, education and fairies.

ROMANCE LANGUAGES

The aim of this department is given in its name. One or more courses in this field must be taken by all students who do not take Public Speaking, as English 99 also covers the Romance Languages.

SOCIOLOGY

24. The Art of Meeting and Greeting. How to be cordial, sympathetic and friendly. No outside reading is required, but the students must attend every College Tea, as a part of the laboratory work.

ZOOLOGY

1-2. This course is part of the work required for the New Woman. It will overcome fright at the sight of a mouse, a worm, or a beetle.

A Junior At a College Tea

The Junior asked
The Hostess, and
The Hostess asked
The Servingmaid:
"Could we have some cookies for
The Junior's cup of tea?"
The Maid said,
"I'll look, Ma'am,"
And went to
The kitchen,
And brought back more sandwiches
In great quantity.

The Hostess
Said "Fancy,"
And went to
The Junior:
"Speaking of the cookies that
You wanted for your tea,
Many people
Think that
Orange-bread
Is nicer.
Would you like to take a little
Of the orange-bread
And see?"

The Junior said,
"Bother!"
And then she said,
"Oh dear, Oh dear!"
The Junior sighed, "Oh dear, Oh dear,
This hurts me awfully!"
"Nobody,"

She whimpered
"Could call me
A fussy girl;
I only want a tiny little
Cookie for my tea."

The Hostess said,
"There, there,"
And went to
The phone-booth
And telephoned to Biacake
Hurriedly:
"We'd like to have
Some cookies.
Could you make them
Right away?"
"Of course," said Mrs. Biacake,
And sent them up for tea.
The Hostess took
The cookies
And brought them
To the Junior.
The Junior said,
"Cookies, eh?"
And danced about with glee.
"Nobody," she said,
As she took them with delight,
"Nobody," she said,
As she threw down
The samovar,
"Nobody, dear Hostess,
Could call me a fussy girl—
BUT
"I do like a tiny little cookie to my tea."

THE INDIAN THINKS OF THE OTHER MASCOTS

The lion has a tail; the bull-pup has tag on,
But he's got a tail, and so has a dragon,
And they can make 'em stop, and they can make 'em wag on—
For they've all got tails but me.

A Junior Watches Mysteries

What is the matter with '29?
They marched in bewildered, a terrified line,
And that Freshman—Oh, heavens!—she cannot be mine!

What is the matter with '29?

What is the matter with '28?
In piratical clothes they look simply great,
But they swagger about full of fury and hate.

What is the matter with '28?

What is the matter with '27?
They bring to this work-weary college the leaven,
In fact they're the class that make Barnard
a heaven.

Oh, nothing's the matter with '27.

What is the matter with '26?
Their seniorial splendor's put them in a fix,
For with Freshmen-like nonsense, decorum won't mix—

And that's what's the matter with '26.

A Junior Muses on Profs

I often wish I were a Prof,
For then I'd mark, and flunk and scoff.

If I taught Mathematics A,
I'd bring my cello into play.

I know if I taught German 9,
The girls would think my manners fine.

If I taught English 25,
I'd see that none came out alive.

If I could teach Philosophy,
I'd jog their smug theosophy.

If I but taught Psychology,
Their inhibitions I would free.

If I taught English 42,
The transcendental muse I'd woo.

If I were Prof of anything,
My class would fear the marks I'd sling.

Extra Curricular

A Drama

SCENE ONE

The home of a Barnard student. Early morning.

Mama: Have you a hard day on Wednesdays?

Mary: Oh, yes!

Papa: Poor dear!

SCENE TWO

Milbank, 9 A. M.

Mary: Done your reading?

Her Friend: No. Have you?

Mary: No. Let's cut class.

Her Friend: Let's!

(For purposes of space, we omit the next two scenes, the 10 A. M. one and that at 11 A. M. They are exact copies of the one above.)

SCENE FIVE

Students at 12.

Mary: I've a class meeting.

Her Friend: Let's not go.

Mary: All right!

SCENE SIX

Biacake at 4 P. M.

Mary: We've been here since 12.

Her Friend: Let's go to College tea.

Mary: Let's.

SCENE SEVEN

The home of a Barnard student. Late evening.

Mama: Are you worn out, darling?

Mary: Yes, I have an awfully hard day on Wednesdays.

Papa: Poor dear!

CLEARANCE SALE

Twenty telephones, reasonably priced. Absolutely invaluable to Brooks and John Jay inhabitants who expect calls henceforth.

Three hundred baby caps with detachable ribbons and bows.

Three hundred spoons only slightly used, but which possess broad experience of knife and fork.

Three hundred umbrellas which open and shut automatically at the approach of rain, sunshine, dignity or Sophomores.

Twenty dozen bibs at half prices, beautifully embroidered; extremely youthful lines.

FRESHMAN CLASS '27

Sophomore Year

A is for Apathy that makes chairman froth ;
B is for Bandy-legs dressed up in cheese-cloth ;
C is for Chairman, important and crazy ;
D is for Dye-room, no place for the lazy ;
E is Ethiopian, if curtains get fired ;
F is for Faculty—Poor things, they get tired !
G is for Gods of convenient qualities ;
H is for Heralds who start the day's jollities ;
I is for Innocence as revealed in the dancing ;
J is for Judges who find it entrancing ;
K is for King of surprising ubiquity ;
L is for Lunacy, our idea of antiquity ;
M is for Mob, and its grim agitation ;
N is for Nowhere, its great destination ;
O is for Obscurity, cherished and credited ;
P is for Purity, carefully edited ;
Q is for Quasi-emotional Blah ;
R is for Rooters and Rah Rah Rah Rah !
S is the Sacrifice ; its become quite the rule ;
T is the Time that is taken from school ;
U is for Underwear, slightly exposed ;
V is for Victory ! Crushed are our foes !
W is for Weariness, all healed in good time ;
X is for anything else that will rhyme ;
Y is for Youth, quite lovely, in fact ;
Z is for Zanies, and the whole gym was packed.

The Leap into the Dark

OR

HER JUNIOR YEAR

A College Novel

Editor's Note: This is by far the most undistinguished contribution made to literature this year. We know you will like it. Read what others say:

"A startling and honest portrayal of college life as it is being lived this very minute." Bull Gazette

"A keen little tip to the wise on college."—Times.

"Pretty good." Barnard Bulletin.

I

MARY swung slowly down the avenues of kindly old elms, her long flannel trousers gleaming pinky-white in the dusk. Some place, she thought. "Dear old elms," she lisped, "What did you whisper to grandfathah when he wath a boy?"

The campus was filled with the febrile activity of noon. The committee on Student Government was on its way to meeting and lunch. The committee on Social Intercourse was on its way from meeting to lunch. Bulletin was on its way to tea.

Suddenly the crowd was hushed before the clear summons:

"Class Meeting! Class Meeting! 27! 27! Class Meeting!"

Mary turned. Except for the little sty on her left lid she had the clear rebel gaze of youth.

"I'm not going," she said simply.

* * * * *

The college was deserted. Mary was lonely. Why was she alive? She sat down on the board walk and sobbed a bit. Nobody loved her. There weren't any worms, either. She took a big bite out of her Zoo book and felt better.

That night after she had been asleep for a while she almost forgot herself.

* * * * *

Mary took her Freshman sister out to tea. Her eyes filled with tears as she saw the fresh little face put its hand confidingly in hers as they set out together down Broadway. Time, Eternity, Stars.

"Do you want a chocolate éclair?" she asked.

"No, Ma'am" said the child wonderingly.

"Well, we aint got all day! Do you want a baked apple?"

The Freshman didnt know. There were no baked apples.

"Please, Ma'am, may I have a Hershey bar?"

Mary laid her nose flat.

* * * * *

Allah, she should have treated the child better.

* * * * *

Somewhere from between the layers of smoke and coal-dust that sliced her room that evening, boomed a voice.

"The trouble with college is that we have too much work." It was Florence. There was something fine about Florence. She had that sturdy slouch, that wistful look in her great tan wall-eyes that bespoke something out of the ordinary.

Mary started. The words fell slowly on her sleepy consciousness and then their import exploded in her brain. Too much work! What an idea! She hung over the radiator a few minutes to get used to it. Somehow she drifted into a sea of consciousness. Little birds in the Jungle, little tennis balls on the tennis courts, dinner bells, telephones, coal strikes, all sent their mysterious night clamor in her ears. College . . . Ha! Ha! She began to laugh with increasing cynicism. Ha-ha. Ha! Ha! Ha! Ha!!

Night. City roofs. Stars. More Night. Somewhere there was a Jazz Band. It was the Junior Prom. She could see the twined figures in the slow languorous rhythm of the Charleston, the din, the smoke, the stench of denatured Brilliantine, the sabre cuts on the handsome faces of the young history students.

* * * * *

Allah! What are patterns for?

* * * * *

There was a general clean-up in the City after the Junior Prom. The question was put up squarely to the student body and the girls turned out to the last one and sat on it.

* * * * *

But the great day dawned at last. The Jungle was hung with the fire of frozen sleet. Mary jumped out of bed and staggered through the day in a dream. Every time she thought of what the night would bring the roots of her heart tied themselves in a bow knot. She was going to help make-up at Junior Show!

* * * * *

That night when It was all over and Mary and her Harold sauntered back through the Jungle, with their programmes held carelessly in the crook of a single arm, Mary sighed. It had all been so wonderful. Youth . . . youth! She wanted to be clean and big. An' big and clean! There was a curious ecstasy running around the board walk.

Harold stopped short. There was deep silence except for the noise on Broadway. The grass lay primal around them.

"Gee," he whispered, "This sure would be a good night for a canoe, if it wasnt so cold."

REVILLON FRÈRES, CREATORS OF FUR FASHIONS TO THE WORLD

A FUR COAT

made for the College Girl

Smart, slender, lustrous
... it carries a Revillon
Frères label

THE ideal fur coat is one that you can wear to class...to the football games...to afternoon teas...and over a party frock in the evening.

Such a coat is an achievement. And it is achieved by Revillon Frères! It is smart; it is Parisian. Yet its good taste makes you well dressed...not overdressed...in the daytime.

Such a coat is beautifully made. The furs have been gathered at Revillon Frères' own trading posts

Established 1723

...carefully sorted...meticulously matched. The designing is done by experts. The workmanship is incomparable...for Revillon Frères have trained their own furriers.

Shops in Paris, London, and New York...A daily cable from Paris to the New York salon

...Over two hundred years of experience...Prices that compare more than favorably with furs sold elsewhere. All these things make Revillon Frères invite comparison in quality and cost!

How to Avoid "Rings" in Removing Grease Spots

1. Place a clean cloth or blotter under the Grease Spot. (This is to carry away the Grease as it runs through the fabric after it is dissolved by the Carbona.)
2. Saturate a clean cloth with Carbona, using it freely, and gently rub the Grease Spot back and forth with a sweeping motion as illustrated—never rub in circles. Raise your hand at the end of each stroke after passing the edge of the spot. (This blends the edges of the spot cleaned with the rest of the fabric and prevents a "ring".)
3. Rub gently as it is the Carbona that cleans, not the rubbing.

Beauty Never Walks on Aching Feet

The nagging, nerve-tearing pain of aching feet gives women a drawn expression and tired lines. Beauty goes quickly from the face that shows pain and distress.

Yet it is needless to let aching feet rob you of your looks and your health. Thousands of women have ended their foot troubles by changing to Ground Gripper Shoes. The three corrective features, combined only in these shoes, remove the main causes of foot pains and then allow Nature to restore normal health and energy.

The Straight Line Inner Edge gives full toe-room and the freedom that your foot muscles need to function properly.

The Flexible Arch exercises the arch of your foot and so restores its normal strength.

The Patented Rotor Heel counteracts any tendency to toe-out—a common cause of foot trouble.

Because of these three features, Ground Grippers have given quick and lasting relief to 92%* of the women and men who wear them. Try on a pair today at a Ground Gripper Store.

Amongst Friends

Are you one of those genuine booklovers who like to browse around in a bookstore unmolested by persistent salesmen? We mean one of those chummy places where books are conveniently displayed with prices marked so that you can decide for yourself whether you wish to buy or not.

Our counters are based on this idea. Here you will find a greater variety of books all reduced from list prices. It is very probable that you will find some of the books you have been contemplating for your library.

In other departments you will find selected assortments of COLLEGE JEWELRY, ENGRAVED STATIONERY, SPORTING GOODS, FOUNTAIN PENS, BRIEF CASES, PENNANTS, at tempting prices. And seasonable articles are always displayed at the correct moment to remind you of coming events.

When you visit the store we want you to feel at liberty to come behind the counters and look at the shelves. They contain so many things of interest to you that it is to your advantage to look them over carefully.
