FOREWORD

The true meaning of Barnard cannot be understood merely through a student's impressions. Her parents, her friends, her professors—each look upon the school from a different viewpoint. Each is interested in diverse aspects of college life, and each one's impressions of Barnard will naturally differ from the other's in emphasis. Combining these viewpoints will result in a composite picture showing the many activities found at Barnard. It is with this in mind that 1947 MORTARBOARD presents "The Viewpoint's the Thing."

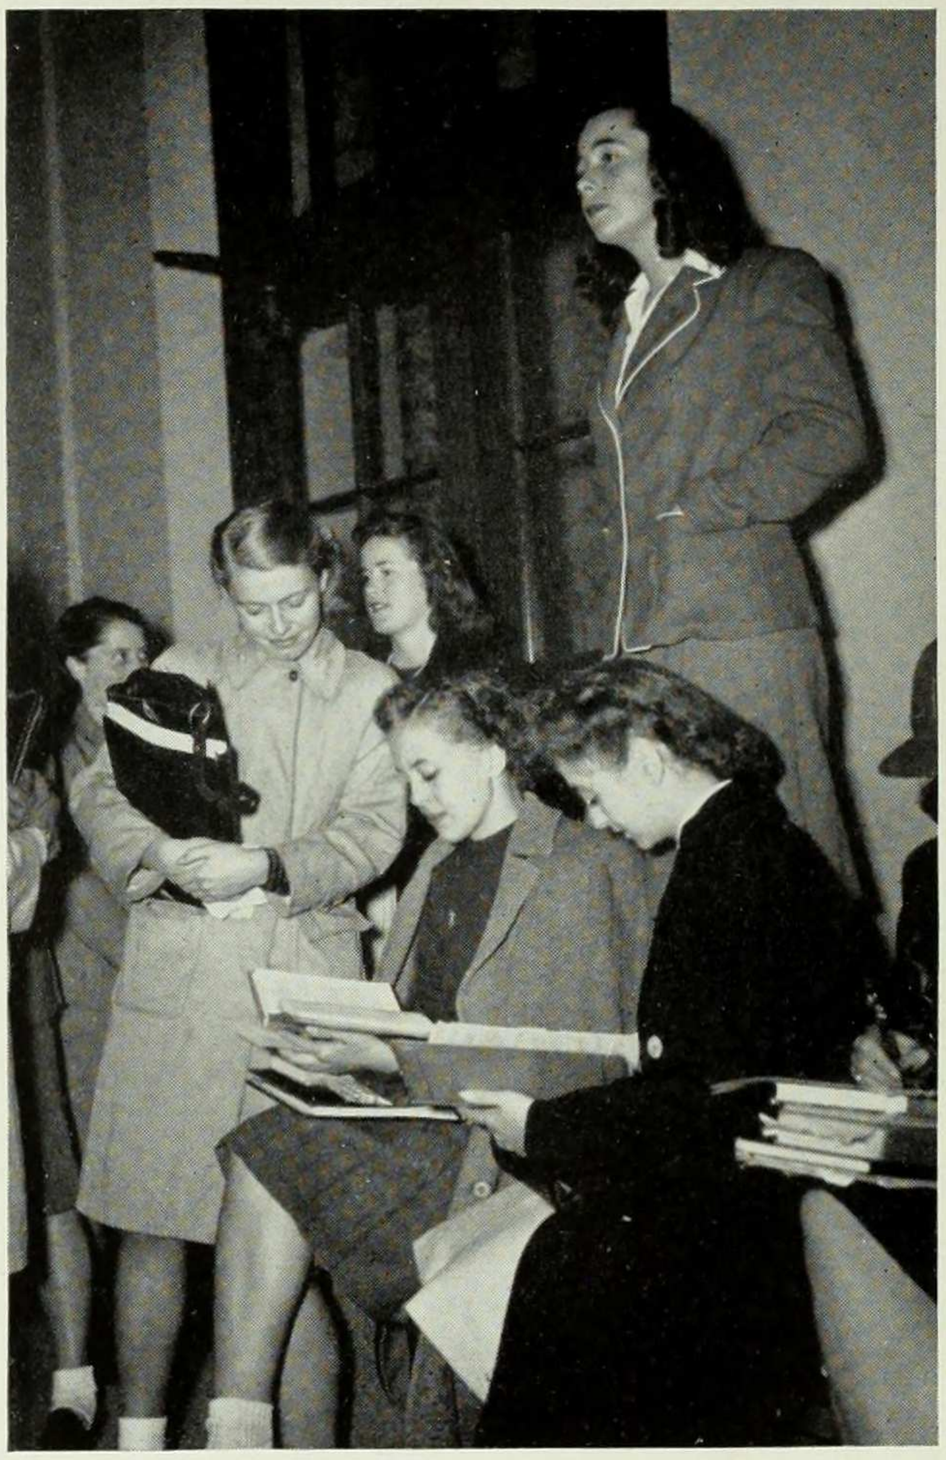
Through Parents' Eyes

BARNARD COLLEGE OF COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

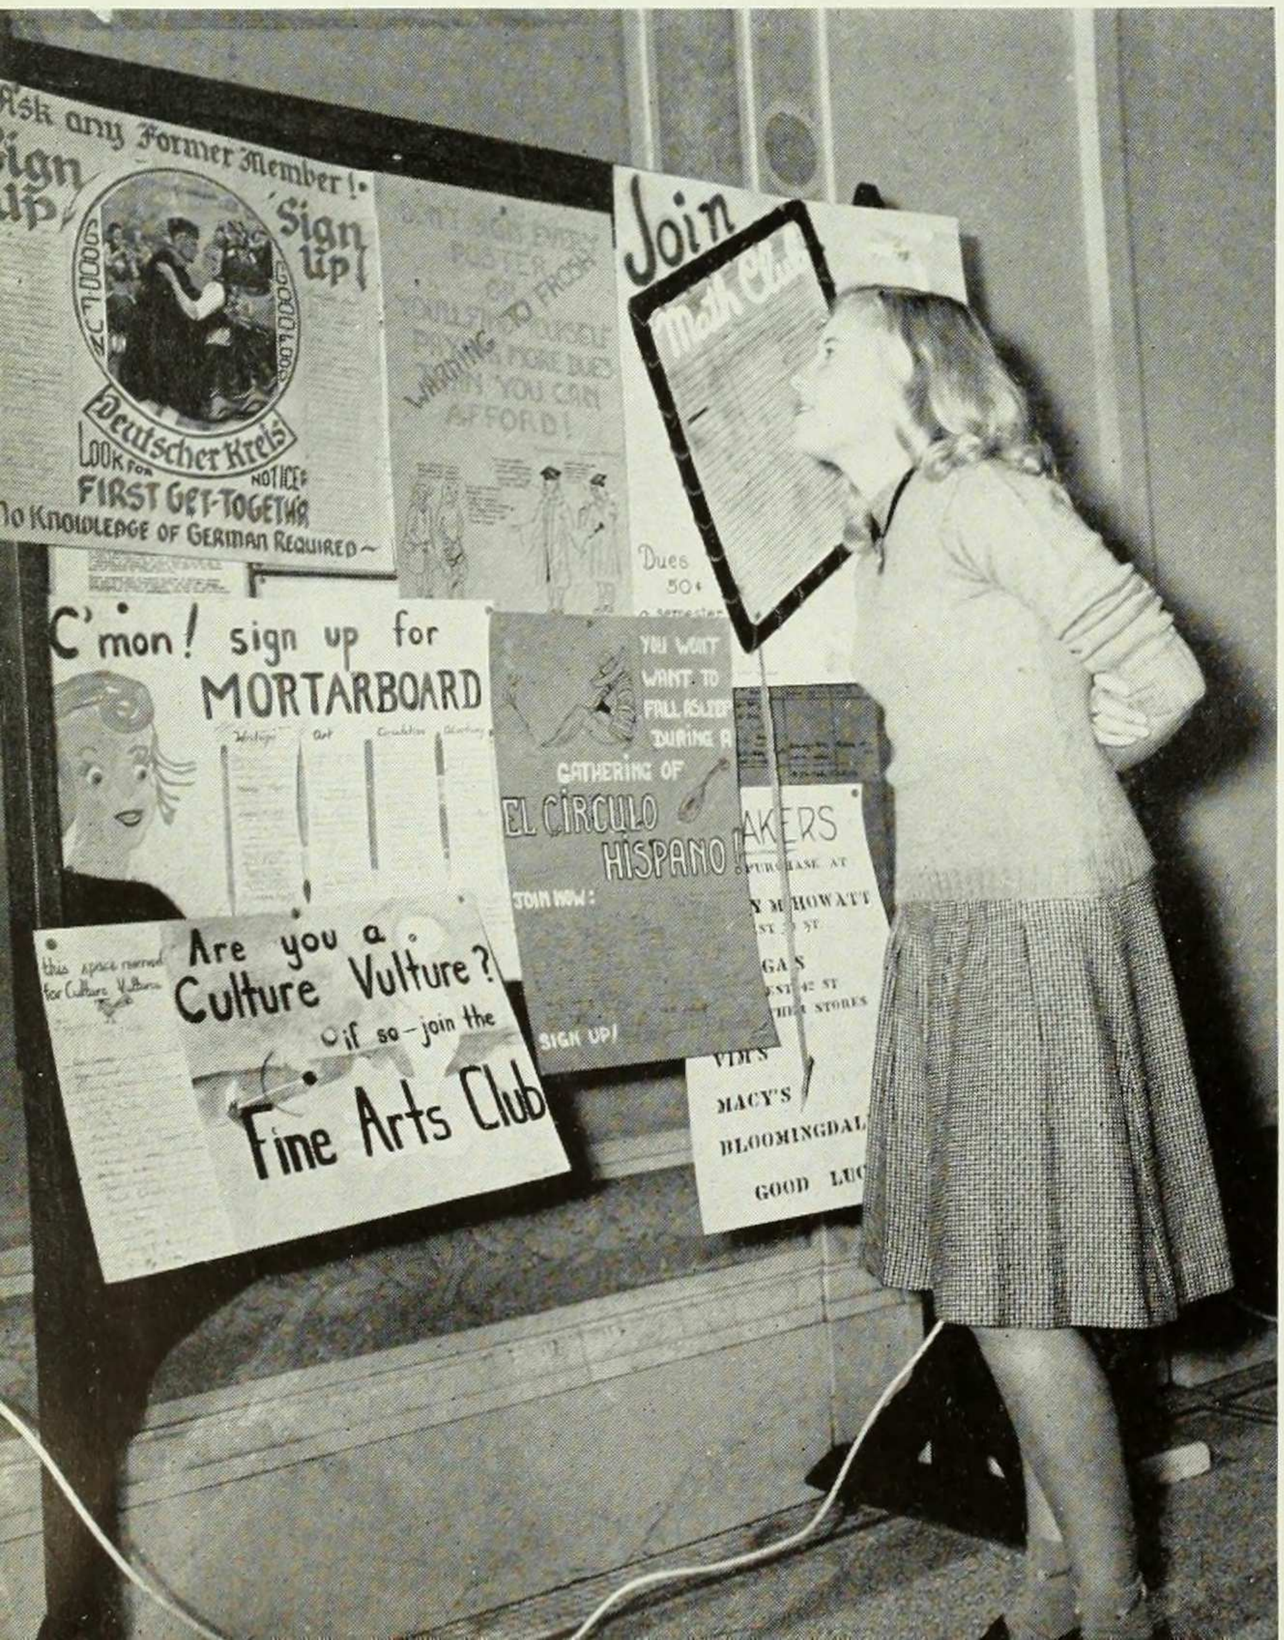
Dear Mom and Dad,

Barnard is an awfully busy school. I don't know which clubs to join. The posters are all so alluring. My Junior Sister met me today at noon on Jake. She said I had better wait before I sign up for anything and told me about eligibility and cuts and Wednesday afternoon teas.

Dr. Alsop examined me yesterday. She made me get into awkward positions and hit me in the back of my knees when I wasn't looking. Between the doctor's Hygiene class and Athletic Association I've become very conscious of vitamins. I eat raw carrots and whole wheat bread every day, and I'm also practising standing up straight.



"Has anyone seen my Junior Sister?"



A.A. sponsors folk dance parties, so you'd better send me Billy's plaid shirt. I'm going up to Camp this week. A.A. is in charge. I hope the other girls can cook better than I can. I wouldn't like to live on eggs for an entire weekend, even though they are protein and very healthy.

Everyone is friendly and I'm busy. There is so much to learn and to do—I'm glad I've four years ahead of me.

You pays your money and you takes your choice.

Dorm Committee

Now Mom, please stop worrying. My room is eight flights above the street and we only hang out for Columbia serenades and the hurdy gurdy—the midshipmen left. We even had policemen stationed at our green gate after the pep rally and snake dance. . . .

The kitchenette is right down the hall and we brew coffee. I could use some sugar . . . also that old iron and a screw driver. I was fined for putting up my "Back Home for Keeps" sign with scotch tape, but so was everyone else. . . .

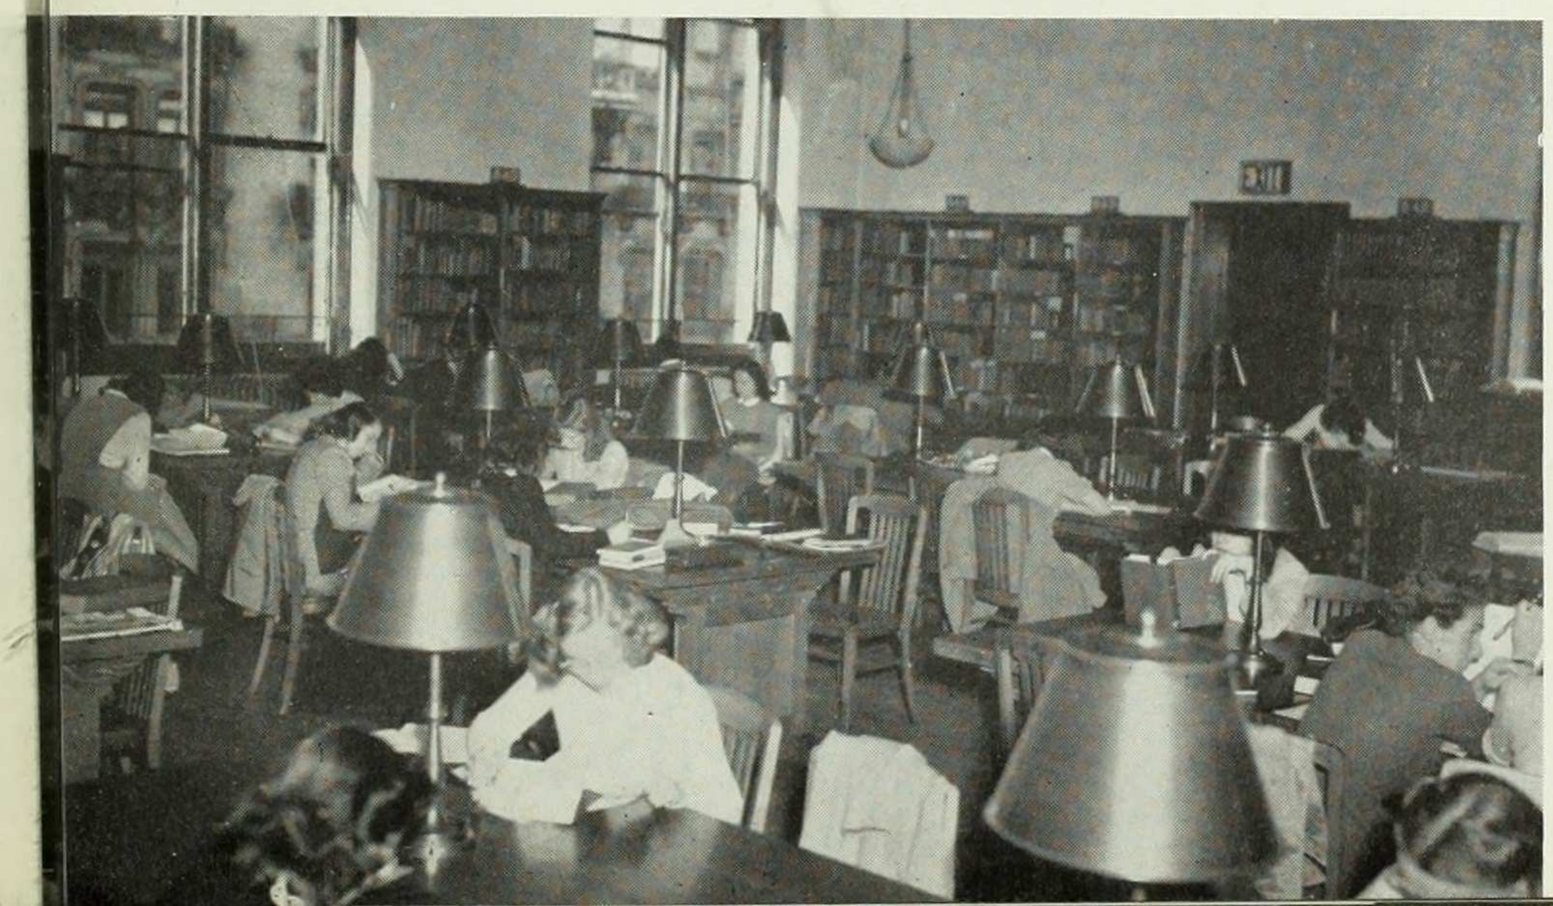
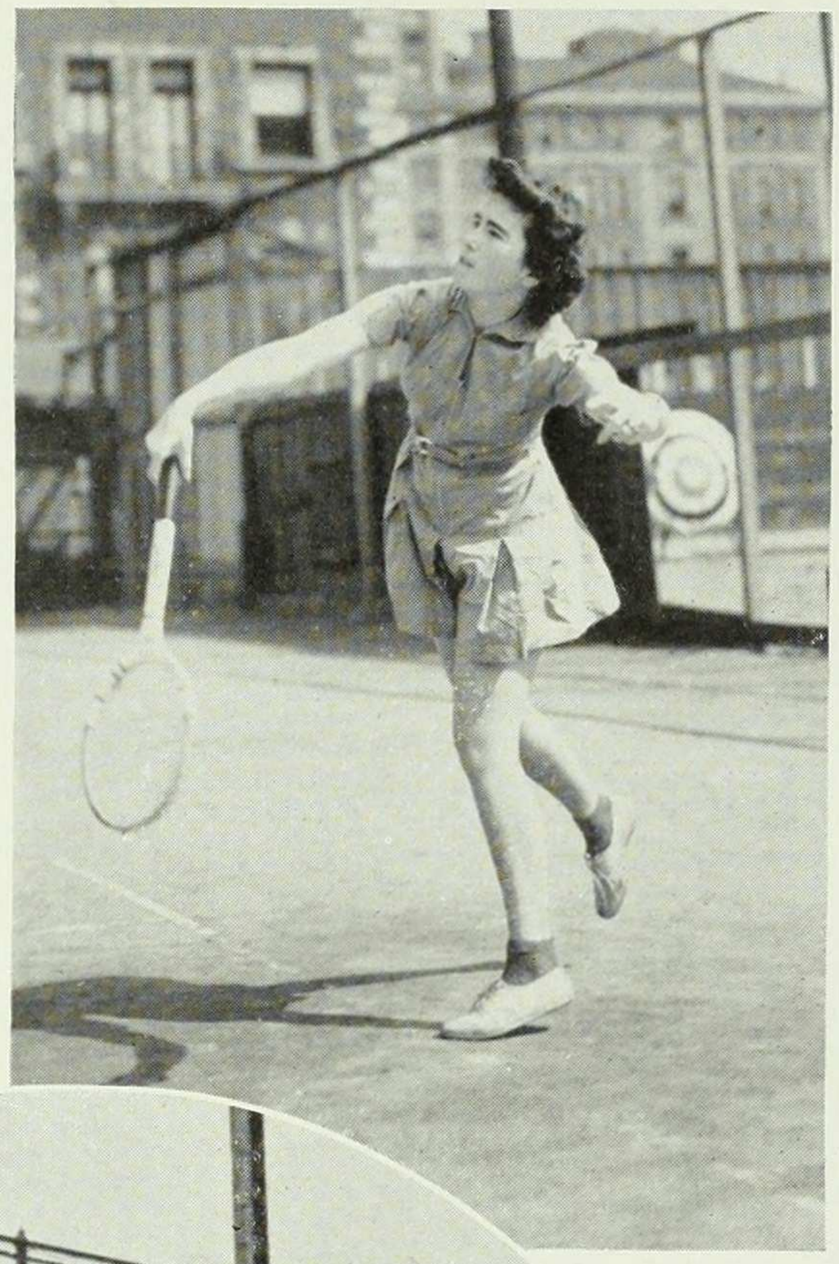
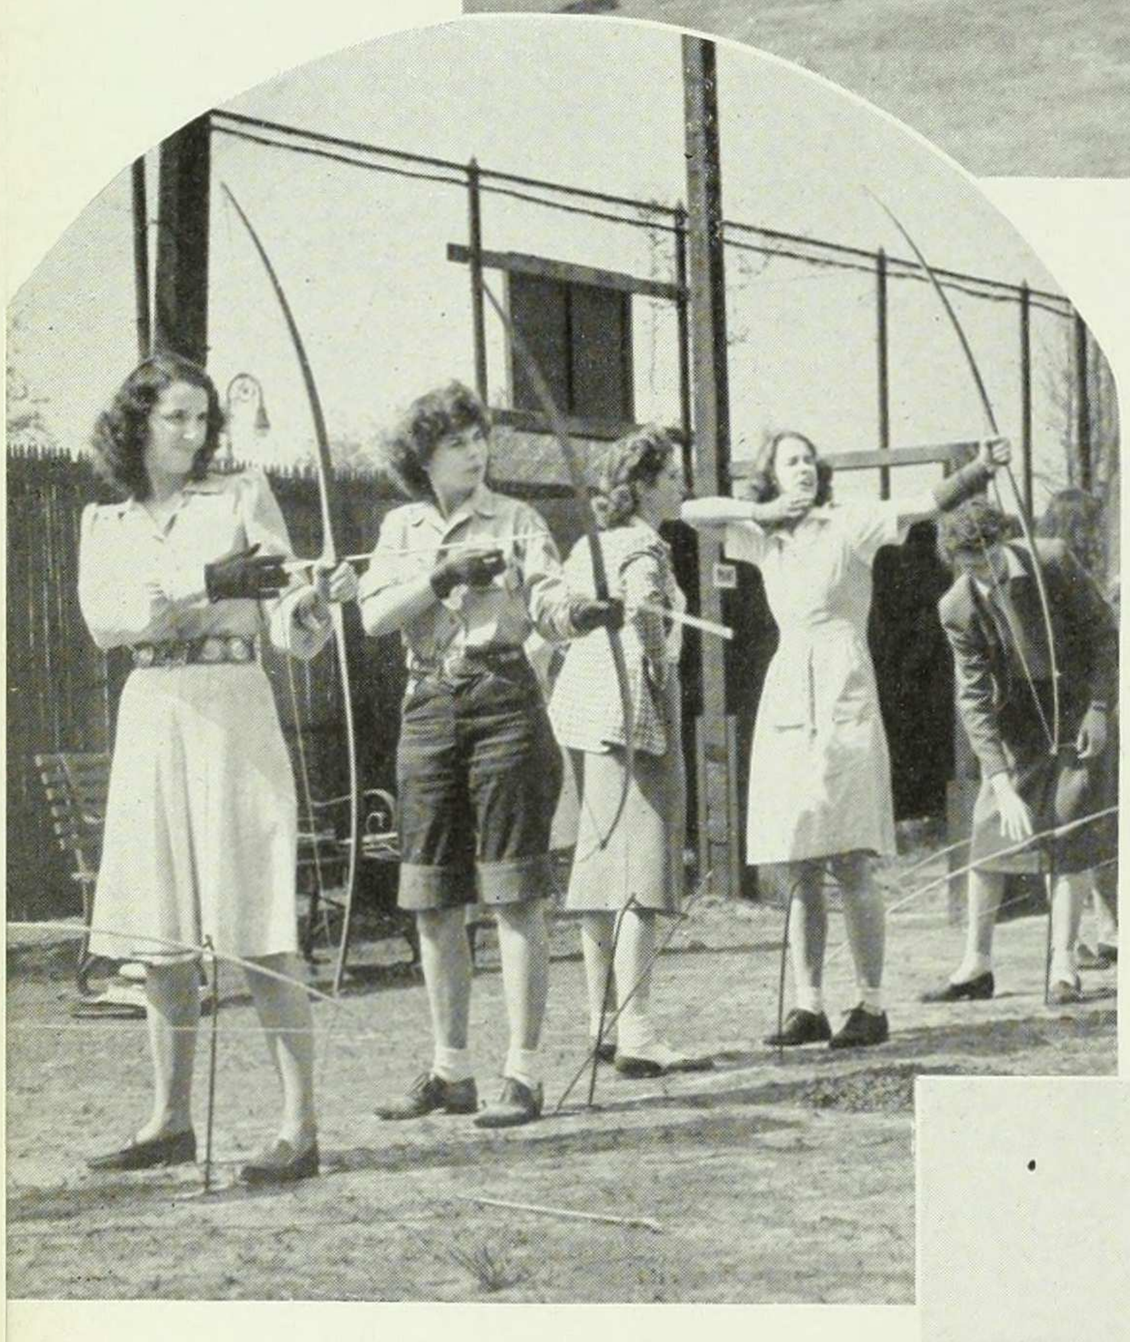
The high and low of it







Corpore Sano

Dear Dad,

I promised to tell you about the gym department. The freshman syllabus said we were after Fitness and Service. Oh, my aching muscles! After Greek Games Athletics and Modern Dance, I discovered six hundred and seventy-five new ones—and every one of them aches. They tell us that we can glamorize and slenderize and vitalize by bending, stretching, chasing tennis balls, shooting arrows, dosy-doeing, passing sixes, pitching soft-ball, dribbling for baskets, falling off horses, swimming and diving. All I do is get stiff. . . . Tennis is my forte, however—you should see my serve. That's what Miss Finan keeps saying, "Let me see you serve, let me see you serve. Please let me see you serve." Our pretty new green courts, courtesy of Elizabeth Arden, are a real inspiration to me, so maybe after two or three years I'll be able to hit the ball.

INTERFAITH

Dear Mom,

The outstanding feature of Interfaith is the chance it gives me to understand people of different religious backgrounds. Each of the five clubs and U.C.A. offers many exciting activities. Besides services in Chapel, there are speakers, discussion groups, radio programs — over CURC and New York stations—dances and teas. That religion is a vital part of every day living is the principle upon which it works.

GREEK

Greek Games, Barnard's fondest tradition, paid two-fold homage to the goddesses of Spring and Hope, Demeter and Persephone. The class of '48 made the Sophomores struggle for their victory which was one of the closest in years,

GAMES

52.5 to 47.5. Parents and friends enjoyed the annual Games during a Tuesday assembly hour. For the first time since their inception the Games had been postponed, in respect to the late President Roosevelt.

1945 ENTRANCE LEGEND

Demeter, Goddess of Earth, withheld from the land its fruitfulness, for she had lost her daughter, Persephone, to Pluto, God of the Underworld. That year was most dreadful and cruel to all mankind; so, to bring relief to mortals, Persephone was allowed to return to Earth for two-thirds of every year. During this time, Demeter, in her joy, reclothed the Earth with the abundance of Spring but again withheld her gifts when Persephone had to return to the Underworld for the remaining months of the year.

LAMENT OF PERSEPHONE

I reach my hand out
And the dark it touches
Clings.
And dank surrounds me
Pressing close.
Dark for me was tulip depth,
Silk of bat wing
Spread for flight, and
Seaweed wet on shining rocks,
A single cypress
On a wind-swept hill,
Curve of cherry, ripe,
The high-piled frown
Of thunder clouds,
The earth new-turned
For my mother's step;
These I thought
Meant dark. And now
I reach my hand out
And the dark it touches
Clings.

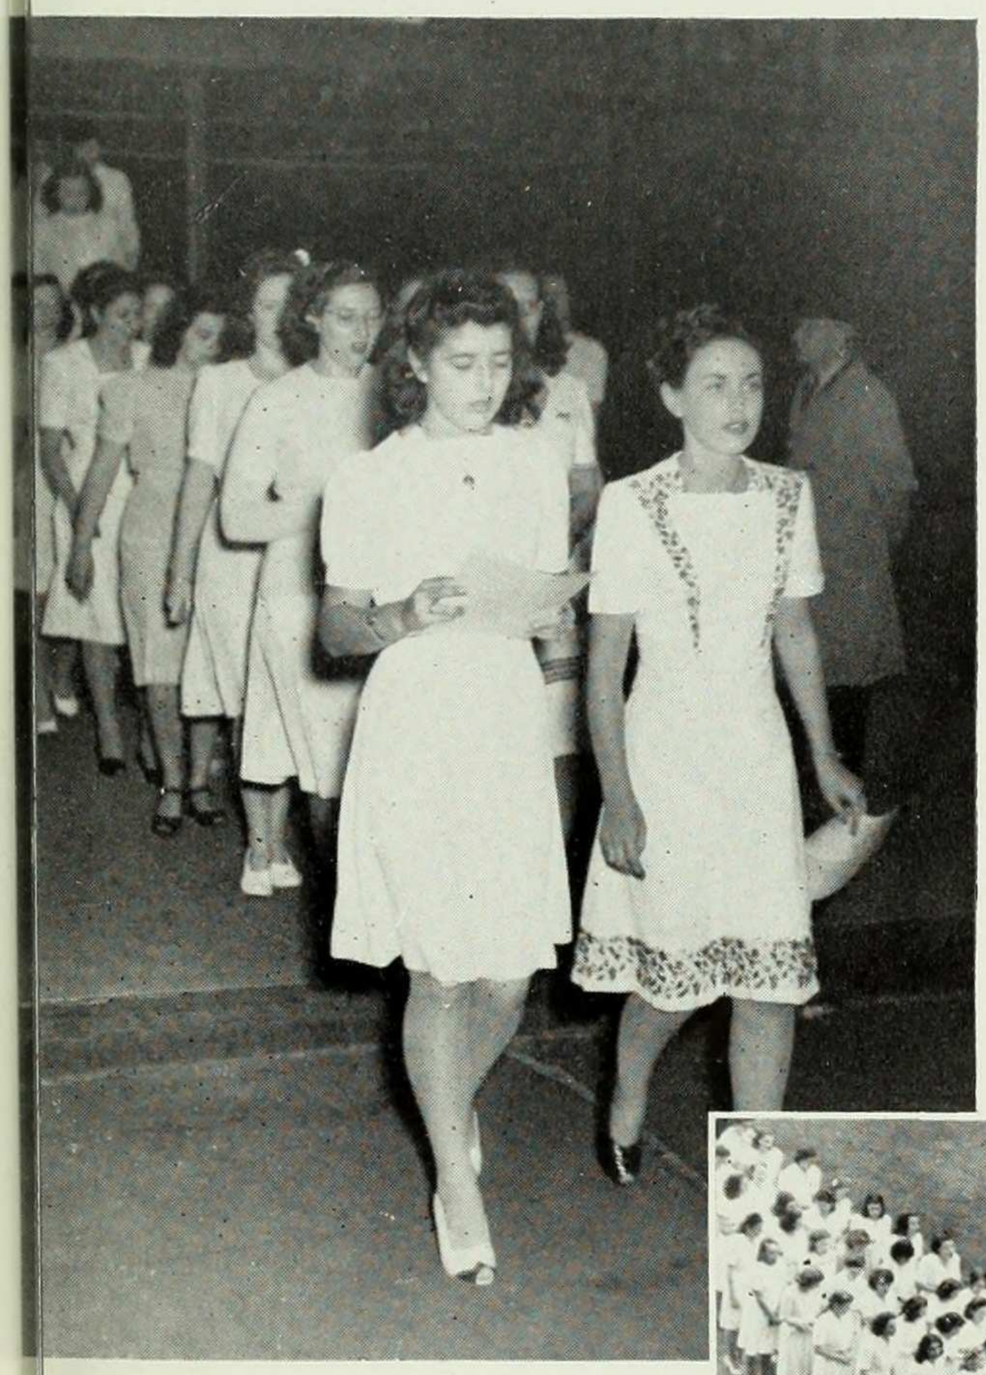
SENIOR MEMORIES

Voices in the dusk . . . Step-Singing.



Dear Sue,

It hardly seems possible that you've completed your studies and are now ready to set forth in the world on your own. I can almost see you standing there in your cap and gown, looking so very mature and dignified for one who wore bobby socks and plaid shirts such a short while ago. Dad and I feel that the four years you have spent at college have prepared you to cope intelligently with the responsibilities that you must undertake in the future. We were thrilled to learn that you were chosen to be a Senior Proctor. We know that you have set about this task, as all those you will encounter after graduation, with earnestness, sincerity and kindliness.

Love,

Mom

Have time for a coke? Why sure! Fruit flies and Napoleon, Spanish verbs and government papers can wait. A gal has to relax once in a while. Or maybe you'd prefer a cigarette up in 302, or, if the sky is sunny and the thermometer high, the jungle boasts a collection of new trees that was just made to sit under and cogitate—dream to you, my friend. What's that? You say you've got a weekend free? Tell you what's good for you—Barnard Camp. Oh that fireplace and that pump, those mountain trails and that super lake . . . Westchester, here I come.

And when you slip out of your shoes for a quick nap up in Odd Study, you can never tell but what the girl who wakes you up to make a fourth at bridge hails from the other side of a) the world, b) the country, c) the city. IRC delegates have attended conferences on international government. The club, under the direction of Ellen Haight, has made an extensive study of UNRRA.

With its motto "a democratic will and a democratic conscience" the Liberal Club, by means of forums, is awakening individual political interest. June Felton is the president.

Political Council, headed by Jane Weidlund, advocates political awareness and activity.

Dedicated to the fight against homefront fascism, Tamara Bliss and Action for Democracy circulated a petition for the internationalization of the atomic bomb.

With Betty Jayne Smith directing operations, the term drive for NWF was highlighted by an exhibition of faculty baby pictures, cake sales, raffles, a carnival and a talk by Fiorello H. LaGuardia.

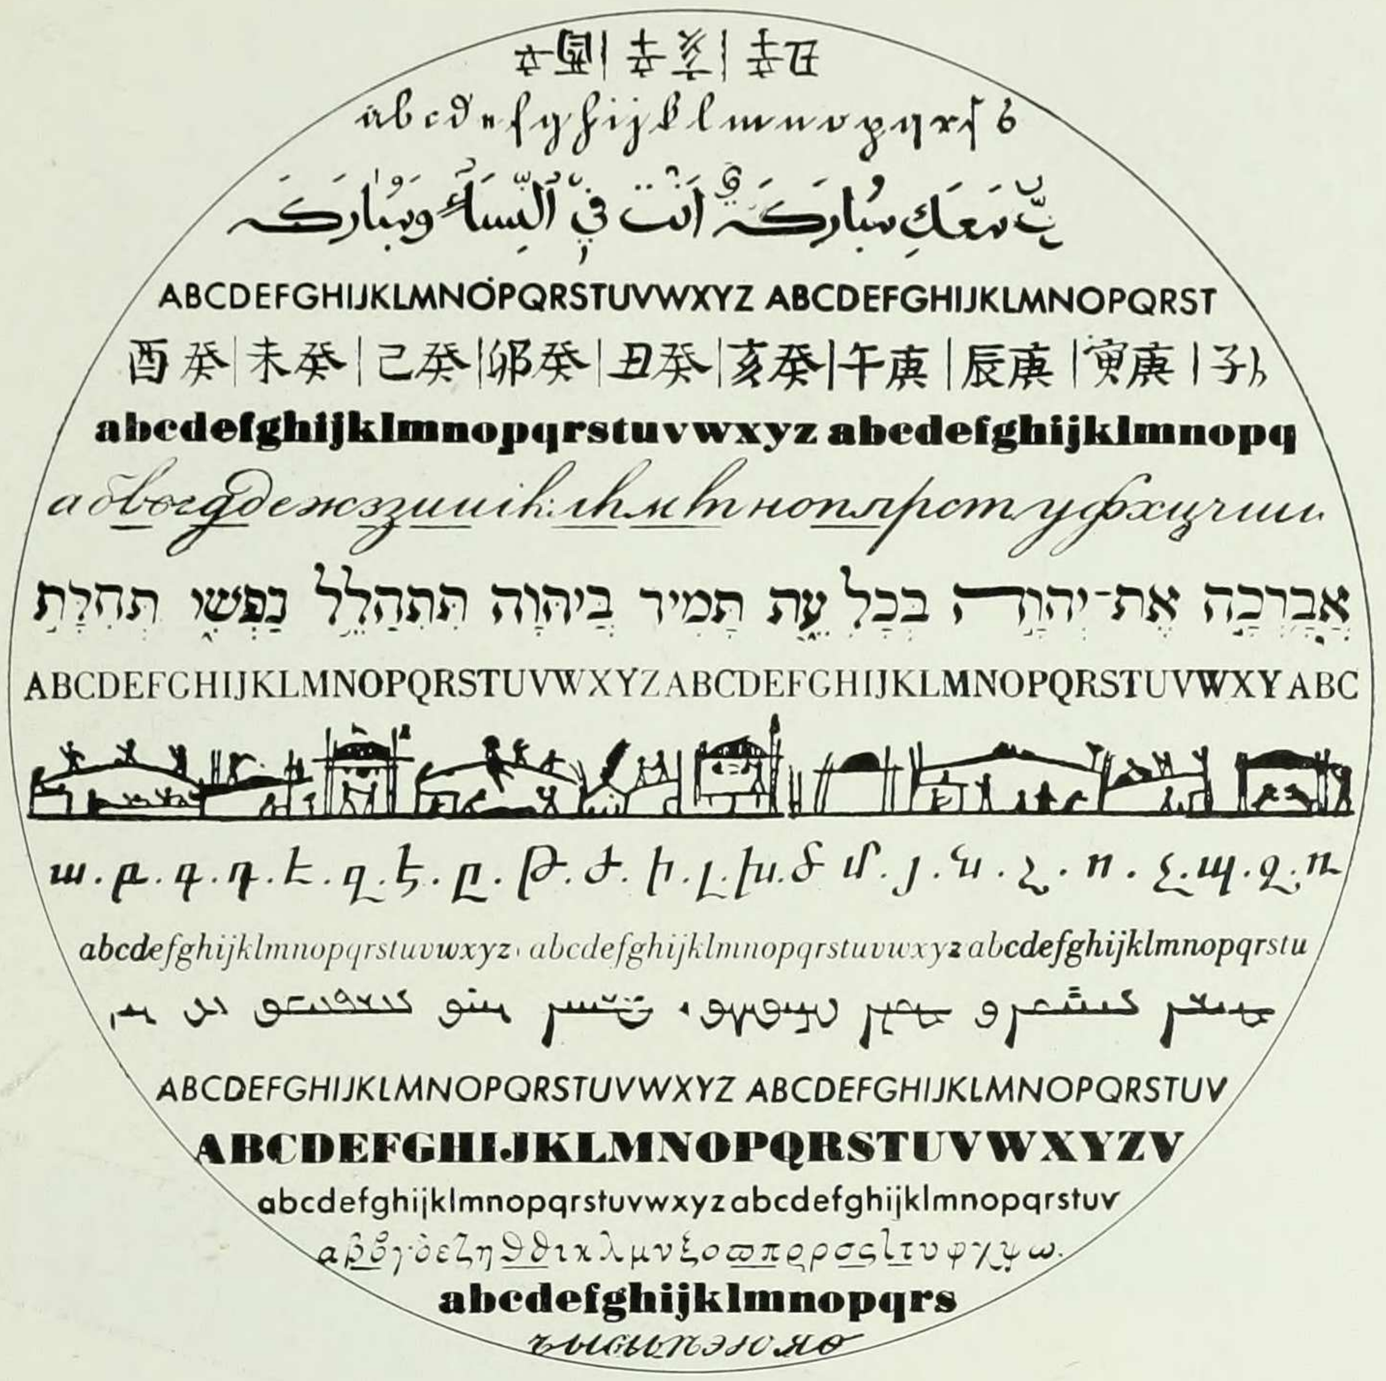
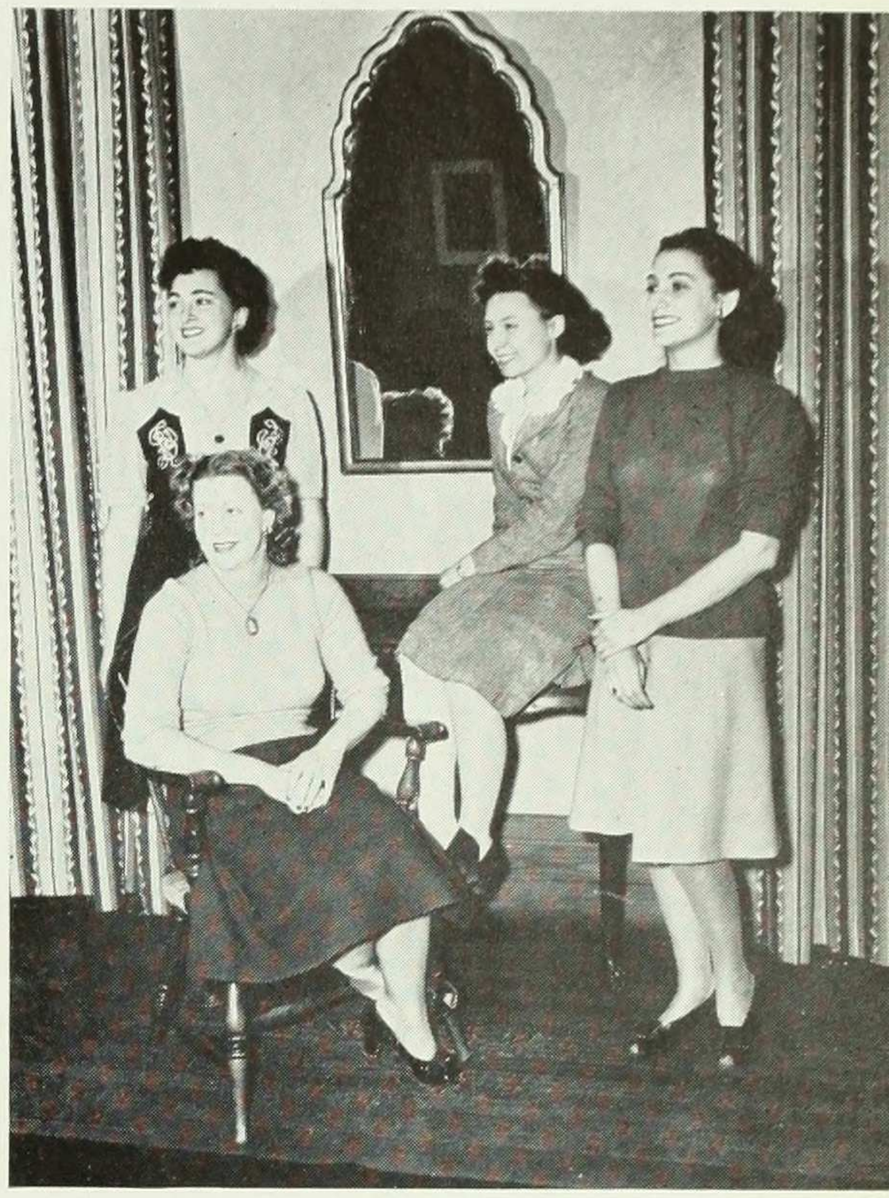
BABEL

Enjoying their sophisticated new club room, La Societé Française, with Lucienne Coen as its president, has held many meetings this year. Distinguished speakers, a Christmas party complete with Santa Claus, plays and informal teas comprised a part of their activities.

The cultures that underlie modern philosophy and ethics are the subjects of study for the Classical Club. The group, headed by Charlotte Byer, is famed for its teas.

Under the leadership of Helen Trevor and an energetic "directiva," El Circulo Hispano planned a busy year of lectures and fiestas. Innovations were a choral and a folk dance group.

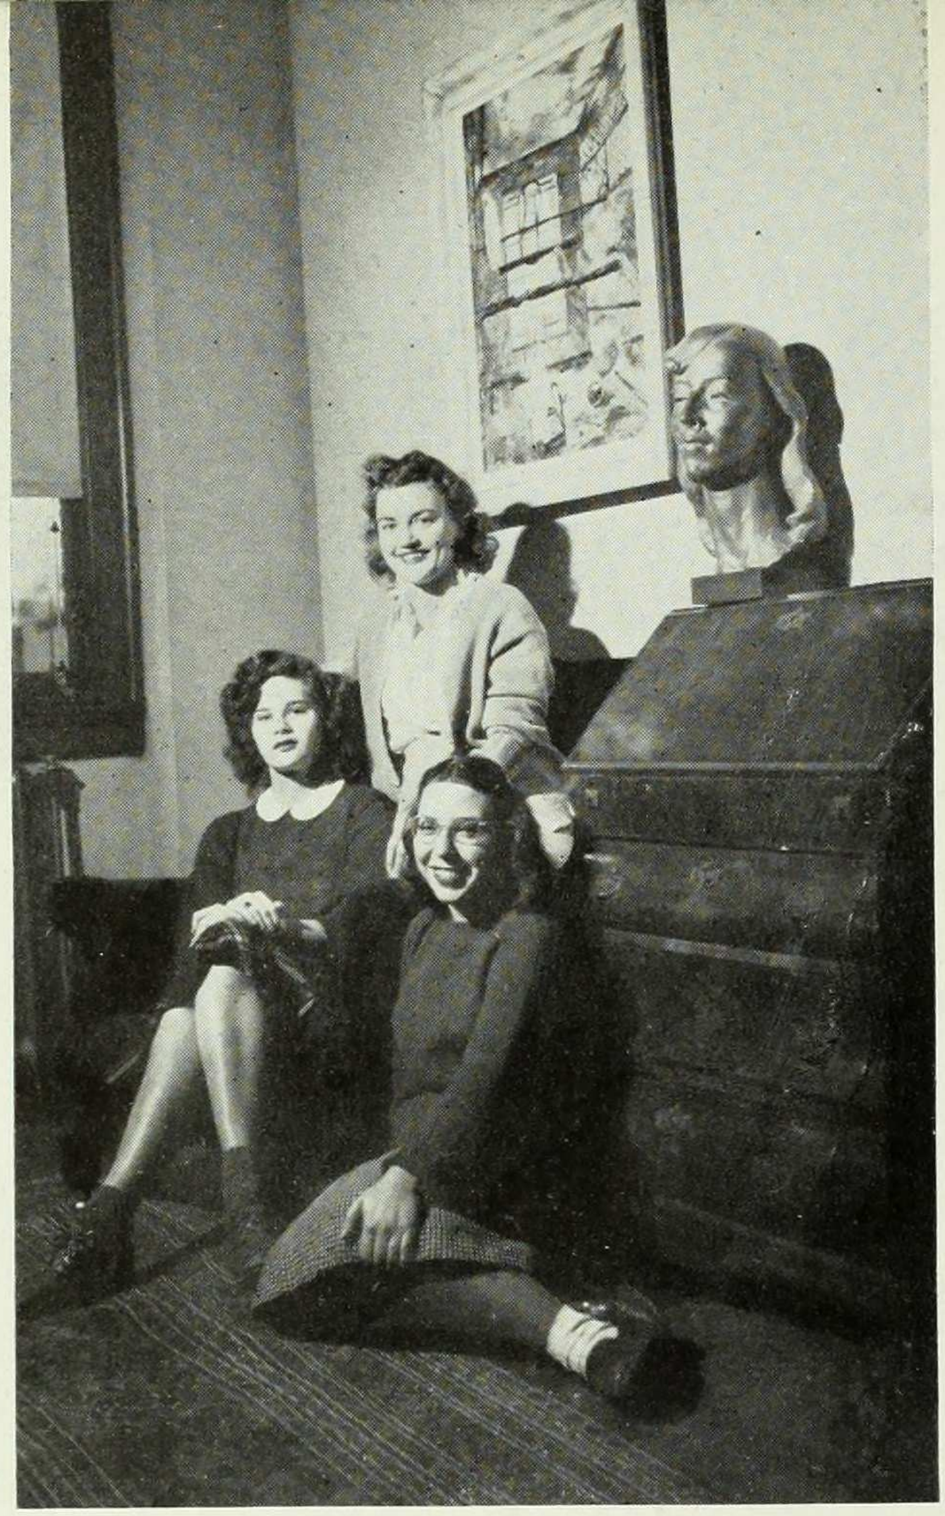




Il Circolo Italiano, led by Mara Goodwin, enticed members to its meetings this year by the use of a clever miniature grocery store, its windows filled with Italian delicacies.

In a world made small by air travel, foreign lands are suddenly brought very near to us. We wish to be good neighbors, and so we study the languages, cultures and peoples of these lands. Native speakers, well known in specialized fields, bring us new and fascinating information. We learn by doing and so we talk, sing and act in foreign tongues until they are no longer strange. Then we relax, dance their folk dances and partake of their native delicacies.

Nancy Chase, president of Deutscher Kreis, has led her group in many projects such as folk dances, a Christmas Tree Party featuring a Nativity play and conversation teas where students gain a speaking knowledge of the language.



The Fine Arts Club with Rena Neumann as president has become famed in Barnard this year by being the first group in the U. S. to exhibit a series of sketches made in a German concentration camp.

For the first time since the war, the Glee Club, under the leadership of Frances Lanza, has given a concert with its brother club across Broadway. In addition it has joined in recitals with numerous other colleges.

Known for its recitals, Music Club and its president Marion Ryan has not only played as a group to an open audience, but lends its talent to other organizations on campus.

Assembly Discusses New Peace Policy

Representative Assembly will eet today at 12 in 408 Barard to draw up plans for this ear's student policy, following the peal of Barnard's War Policy st Monday, Mary Louise Stewart, resident of the Undergraduate ssociation, announced.

The committee that drew up the ar policy will submit a statement n the reconversion year ahead hich will be discussed at the eeting. The members of the comittee are Lawrie Trevor and arbara Hewlett '48, Helen Whiteotton and Ruth Maier '47, Doris cGannon and Dorothy Dieterle 6, Betty Smith, former head of ational Service, and Jane Weidnd, head of Political Council. The atement the committee is to draw will include those aims which e members of Rep Assembly el should be adopted by the stunt body this year.

Name Drive Today

A semester fund drive and a ive chairman will also be selectd at the meeting. Anyone who s an idea as to what the drive ould be is urged to come to the eeting and voice her opinion. Also the agenda will be the selection a four man budget committee quested by the Undergraduate easurer, and the election of two mbers from each class to the cial Committee.

At a meeting last Tuesday, Stunt Council appointed Rosemary llivan and Barbara Keltz, Day d Dorm social chairmen respecely, to the Columbia-Barnard aison Social Committee.

Select Social Committee

The old Barnard Hall Social mmittee has selected part of the w committee members for the ming year. The seniors include rothy Dieterle, Mary Brown, ris Mohr and Emily O'Connor. e representatives of the Class 1947 on the committee, thus far ected are Helen Trevor, Doris nson and Rita Molinelli, while se from the sophomore class Mary Wilson, Mable Brown and n Abrancati.

In previous years Representae Assembly was presented with slate of nominees for the comittee all of whom had been named last year's committee, and then d to vote for a number of the mes on the slate. This year, howr, it was decided to change the cedure and Rep Assembly has privilege of nominating its own ndidates for the committee and cting the members from its own te.

sembly Delegates Wear p and Gown At Assembly

The members of Representative sembly, instead of the Senior ss, will march into the first gular Assembly tomorrow at 0, wearing cap and gown. Since caps and gowns for the Senior's e not as yet all arrived, the ss of '46 will not march in as roup at this Assembly but will so at a future All College embly.

tudent Council members are to t on Jake at ten minutes to while Rep Assembly delegates gather there five minutes rwards. Dean Virginia C. fersleeve will welcome the new dents and Undergraduate Presit Mary Louis Stewart will pre- Student Government plans for year.

Dr. Fackenthal Acting President Of University

It was announced at Columbia University last week that Dr. Frank D. Fackenthal will be Acting President from October 1 until a new President can be elected and installed. The anouncement was made by Frederick Coykendall Chairman of the Trustees, at the close of the regular monthly meeting of the Board. Mr. Coykendall added that the Trustees are giving active consideration to the appointment of a permanent successor to Dr. Butler, but that, pending such selection, the designation of an acting president is necessary.

An erroneous report became current in August to the effect that Dean George B. Pagram was slated to be acting president upon the retirement of Dr. Butler, which report was caused by a misunderstanding of the rule of the University that, in the absence or disability of the president, the Dean of the Graduate Faculties, if he is available, serves as acting president until the Trustees have opportunity to take action. Dean Pegram has for some time urged that the Trustees take the action which was taken today.

The choice of Dr. Fackenthal is a logical one, as he has been closely associated with President Butler's administration for almost forty years and is thoroughly familiar with the organization of the University and the details of its administration.

Dr. Fackenthal had his early education in the public schools of Roanoke, Va., and Brooklyn, N. Y., and was graduated from Columbia College in 1906. As a student he participated in many forms of undergraduate activity.

In March, 1906, some months before graduation, Dr. Fackenthal became a member of the staff of the Secretary of the University in charge of employment. In October, 1906, he was made Chief Clerk of the University and continued in that post until he succeeded the late Frederick P. Keppel as Secretary of the University in 1910.

Dean Talks About Faith At Chapel

Dean Virginia Gildersleeve, in her talk at Chapel last Thursday, told how the San Francisco Conference deepened her belief in the "efficacy of prayer" and the "brotherhood of man."

The Dean defined prayer as "putting oneself into communion with a spiritual force and getting strength from it." At the conference there were people of all different faiths, the Dean pointed out, and though there was no one universal way of prayer, all who were present were in communion—a communion from which arose a new faith. Dean Gildersleeve said that she felt the efficacy of prayer in the many letters and telegrams she received from religious groups all over the country telling her that they were supporting her efforts for world peace with prayer.

Found in all chapters of the Charter drawn up at the Conference, Dean Gildersleeve said, is "a new sense of our brotherly obligations" to all peoples all over the world. This sense of brotherhood was shown especially in the Economic and Social Committee, in which about fifty men of differ race and creed came together were to settle very trying lems.

Miss Gildersleeve told of her friends at the an Armenian Profes nomics from Moscow of high Hindu cast couraging reports London about disag

For those who wish to join the literary staff there will be a tryout consisting of a short critical paper on any poem, play, or book. The paper need not be written especially for the tryout if the student has already written an appropriate one for another purpose, but will be due on Thursday October 18.

Other Staffs

If any students are interested in the art and publicity, or the business and advertising staffs, they should indicate it on the poster and will hear from Anne Attura or Janet Bisland, are editor and business manager, respectively, soon.

Priscilla Block, Ruth Maier, Charlotte Korany and Jean Connors comprise the News Staff, holding the positions of Editor-in-Chief, Business Manager and Associate Editors, respectively. Evi Bossanyi, Rosalind Brueck, Nancy Cameron, Marion Gluck, Rhoda Levine and Ruth Raup are assistant editors in charge of Photography, Art, Advertising, Circulation, Roster and Copy in order of their names.

Mortarboard wants students of all classes to work on it, with a special invitation to freshmen who will be able to gain experience, which, however, is not necessary in order to apply for a position on the staff. There is a poster to sign on Jake if you are interested and there is a choice of four staffs on which to work: Art, Write-ups, Circulation, and Advertising. Juniors are especially requested to sign up for the write-ups. All those who sign up will be contacted.

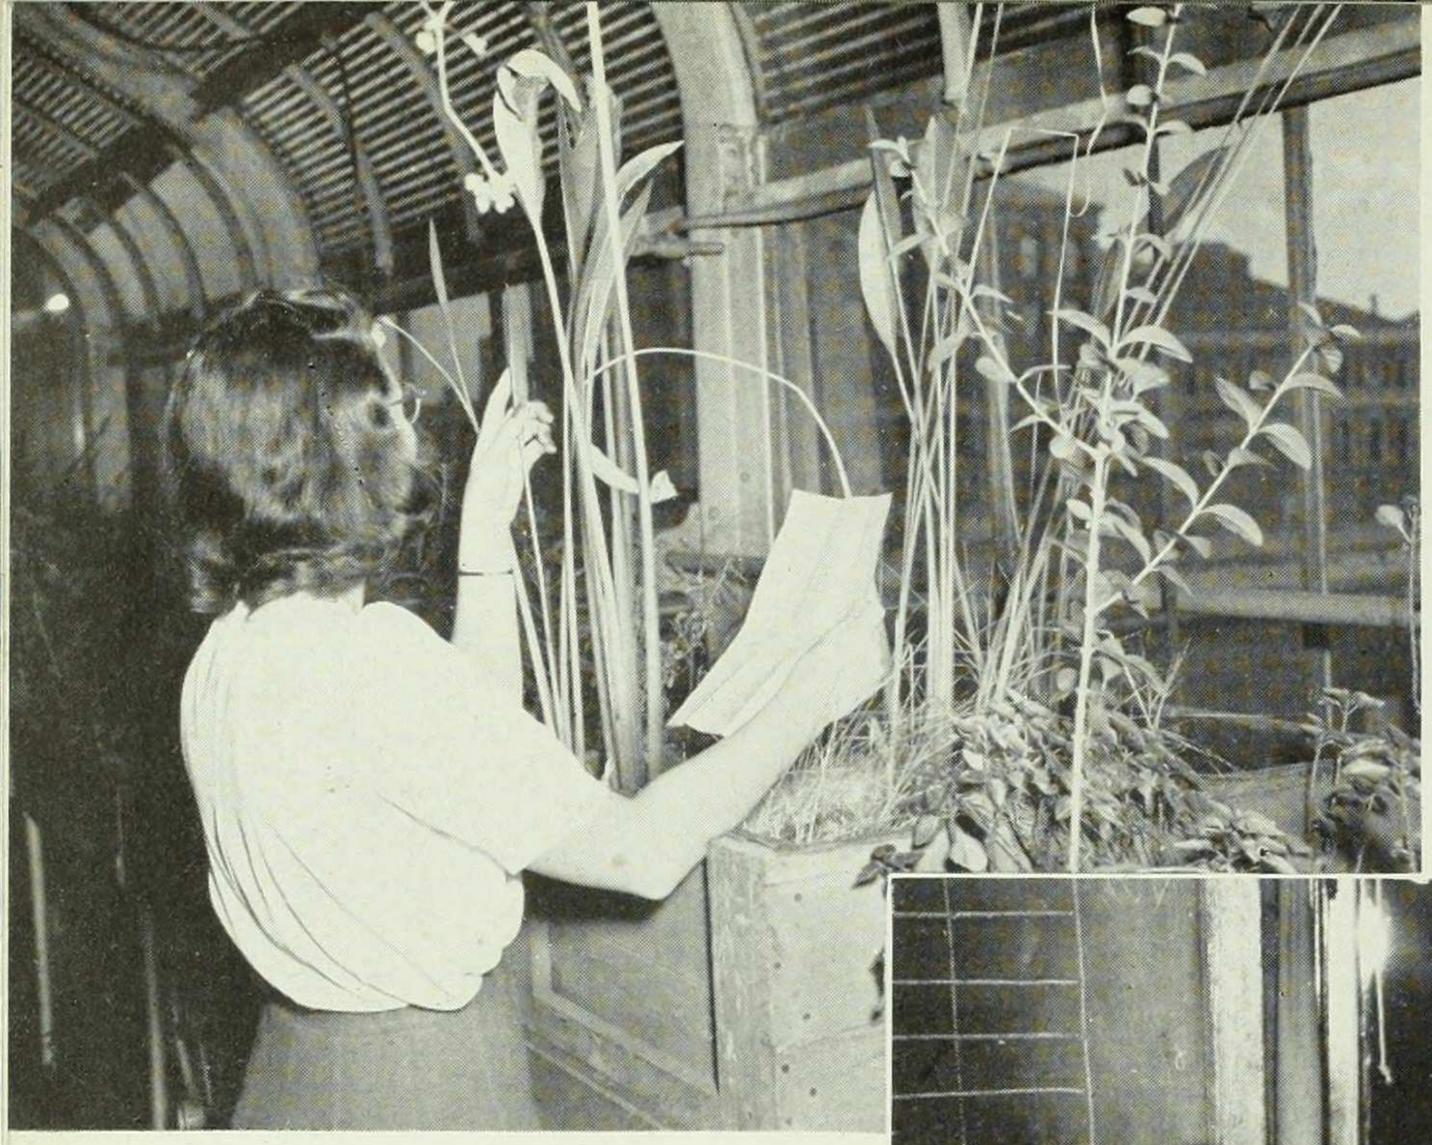
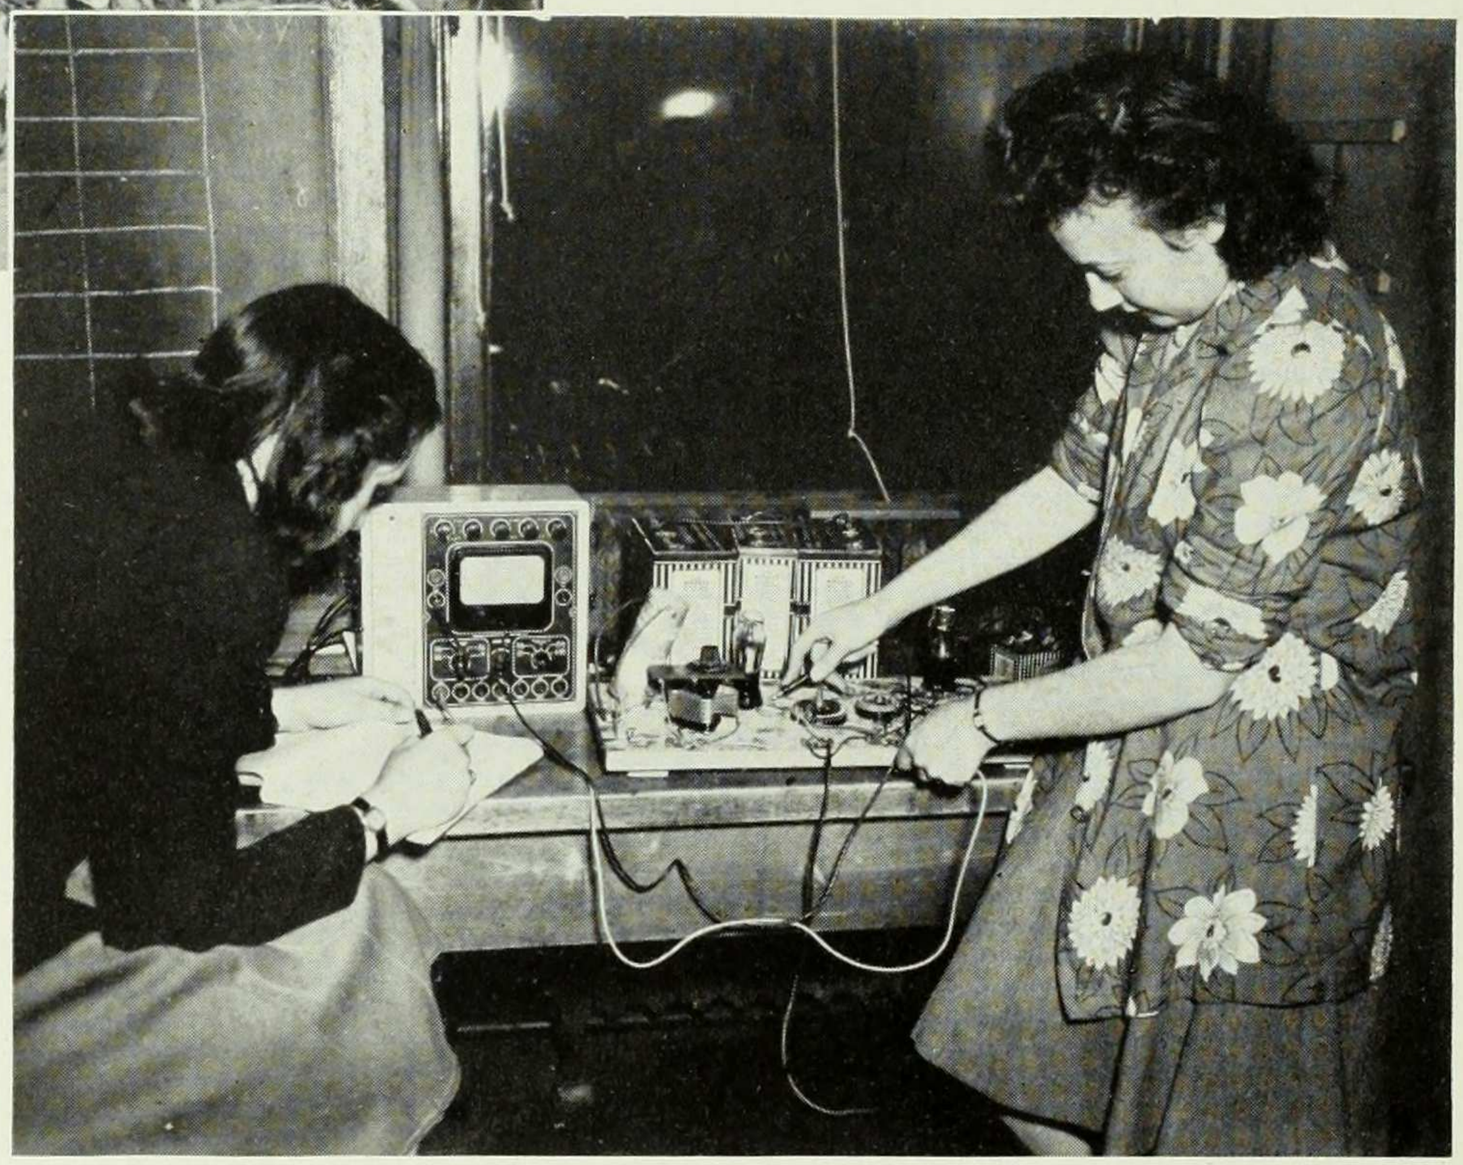
From The Podium



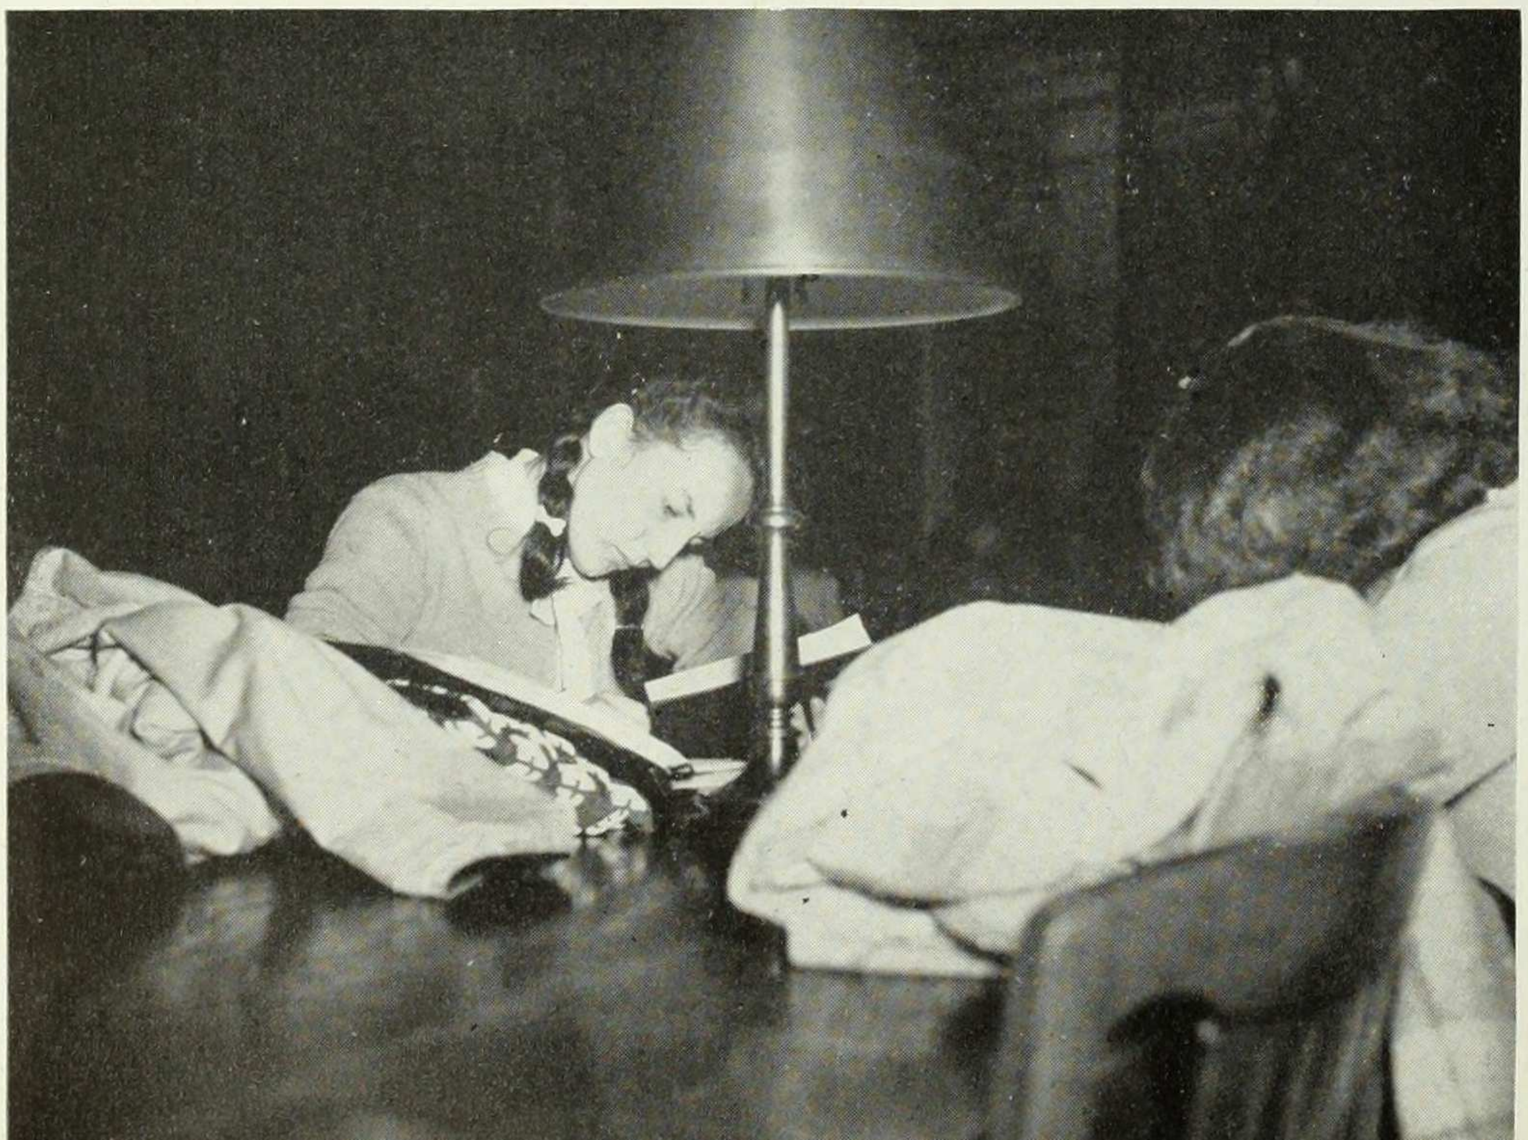


THE FACULTY SPEAKS

Classes, labs, conferences, teas, chance encounters on stairways and along the paths —we meet the students and we like them. We long for the days of the past when all classes were small, and then we rejoice that today so many more are coming to learn. Despite the added difficulties of large registrations and changing hair styles, we pair up names with faces and with work handed in. We make the most of the remaining small classes and plan additional conferences at which we explore the ingenious workings of the undergraduate mind. We read the school news in the Bulletin, follow controversial school issues, are interested in the decisions of the student body, watch the classes enter and graduate. These are our students and Barnard our school.

No explanation necessary.

They all want the same books.

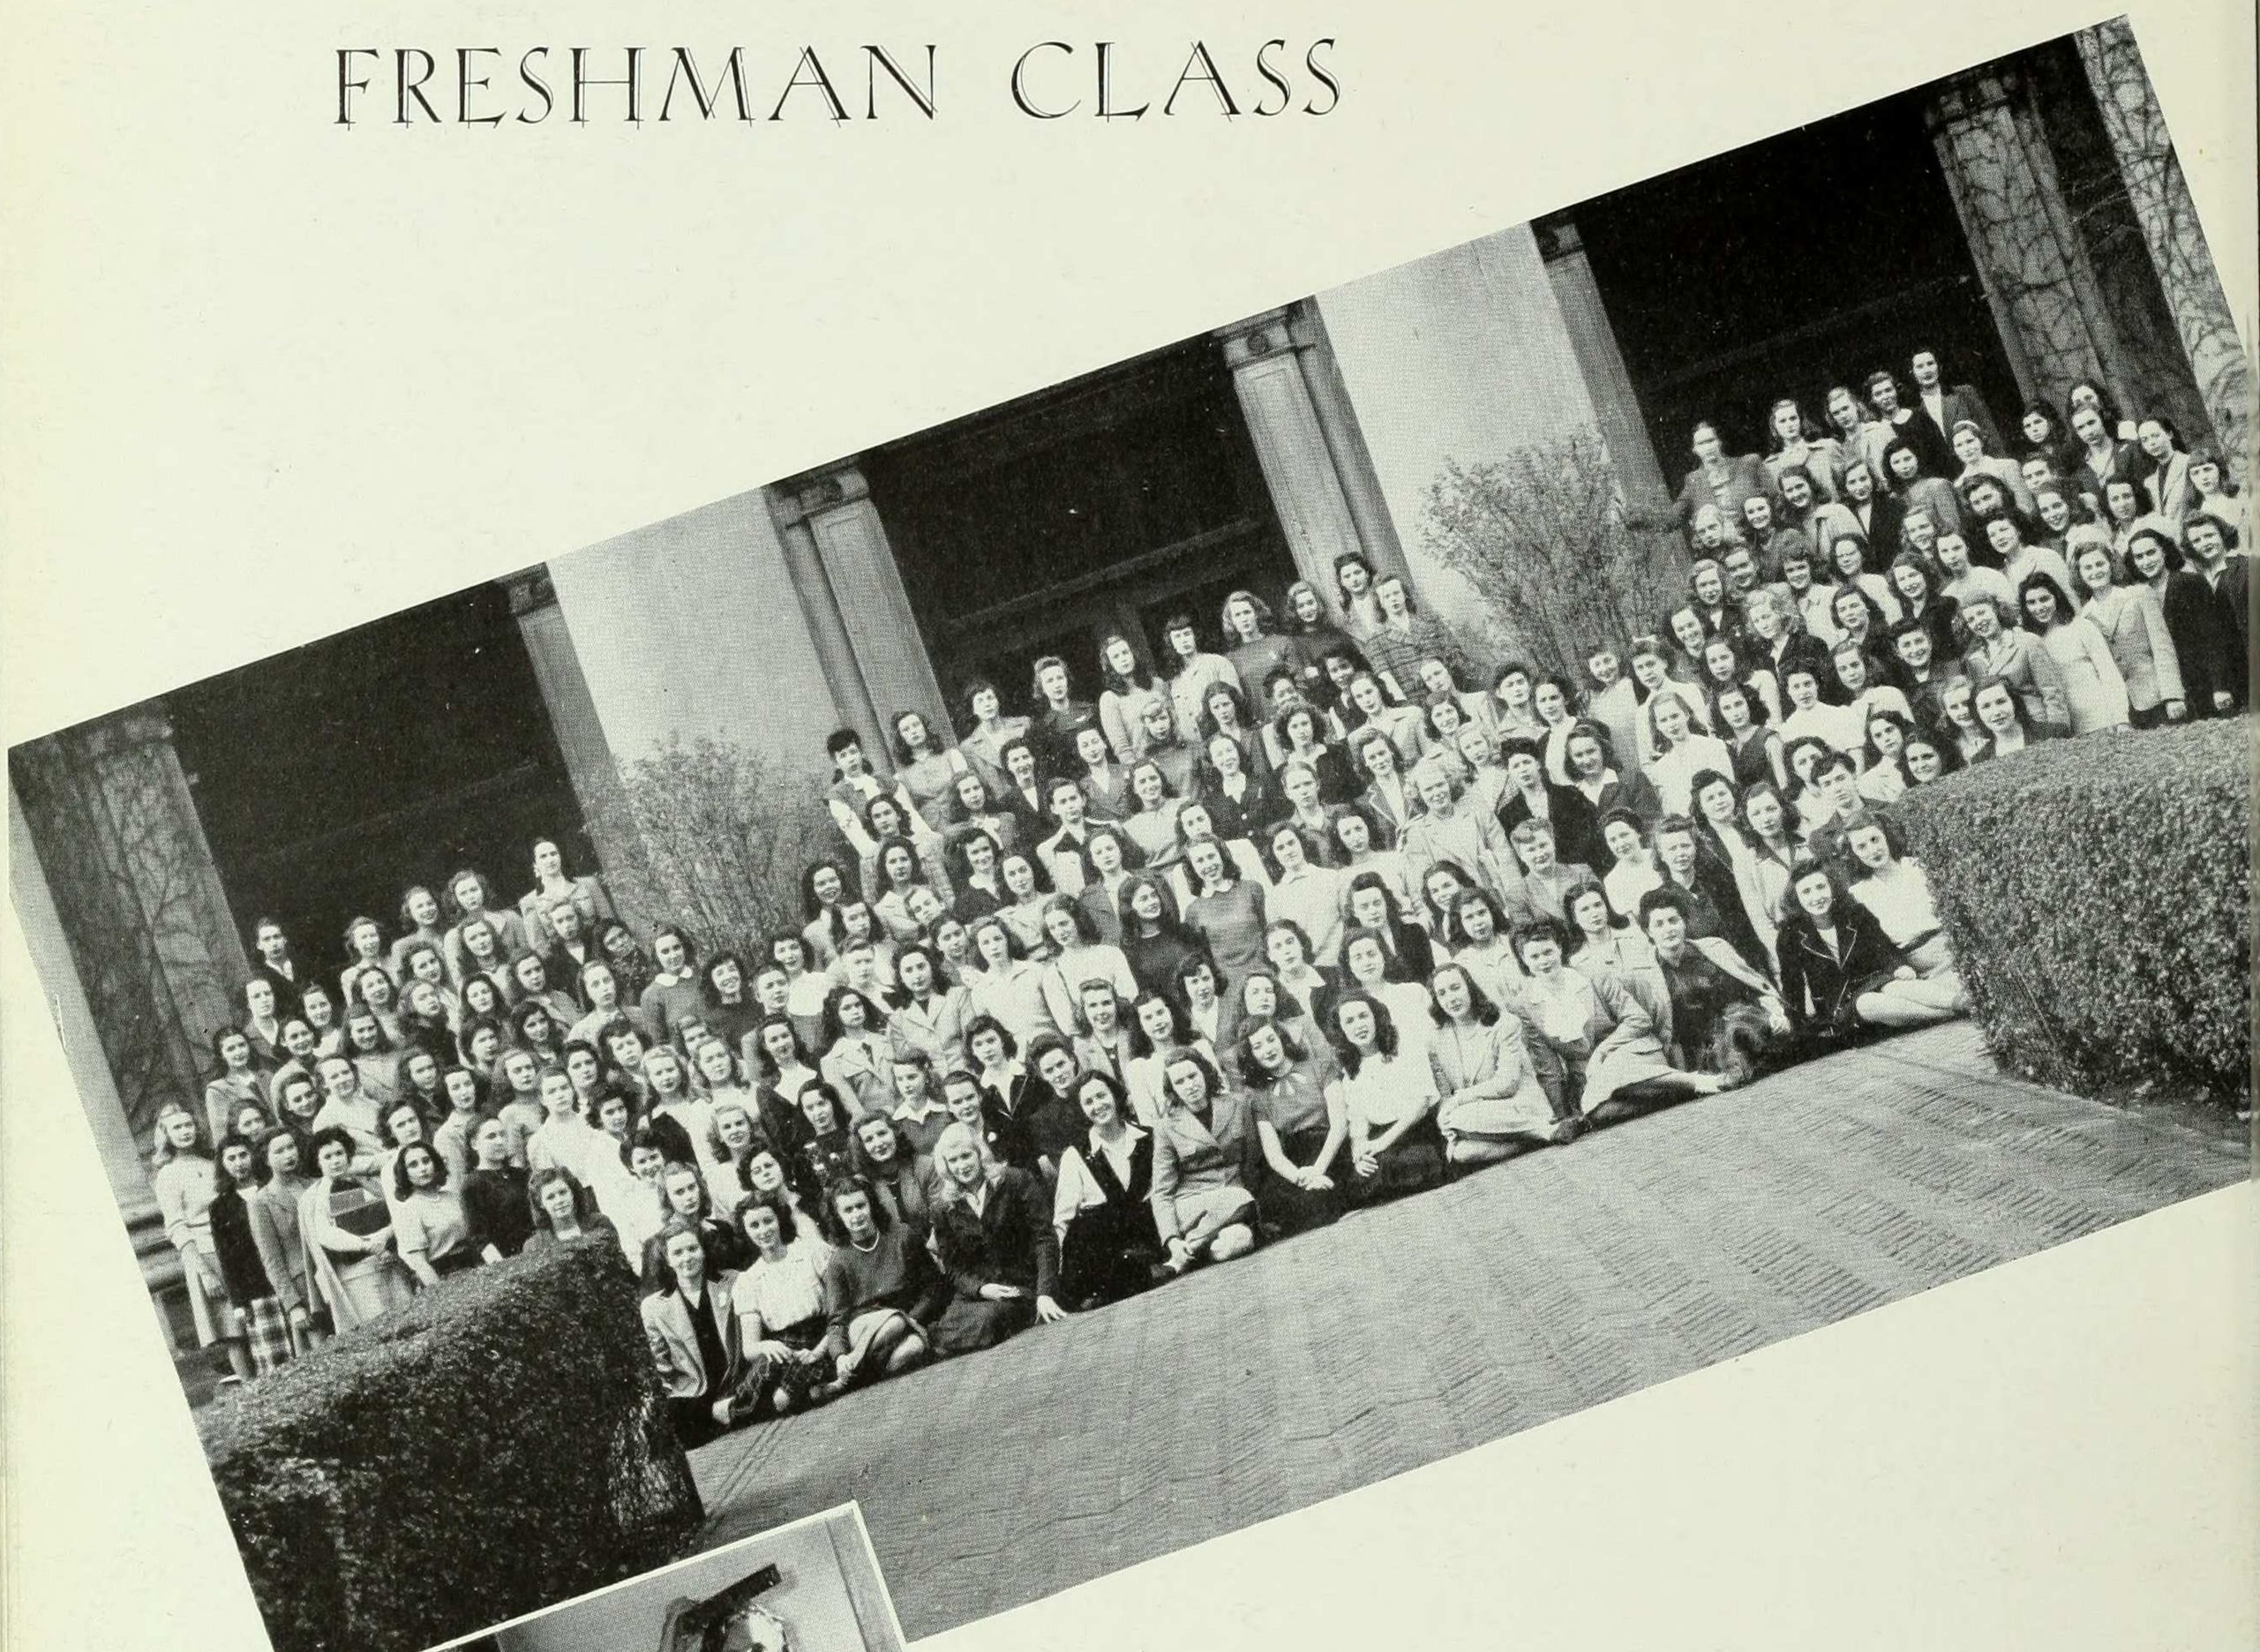


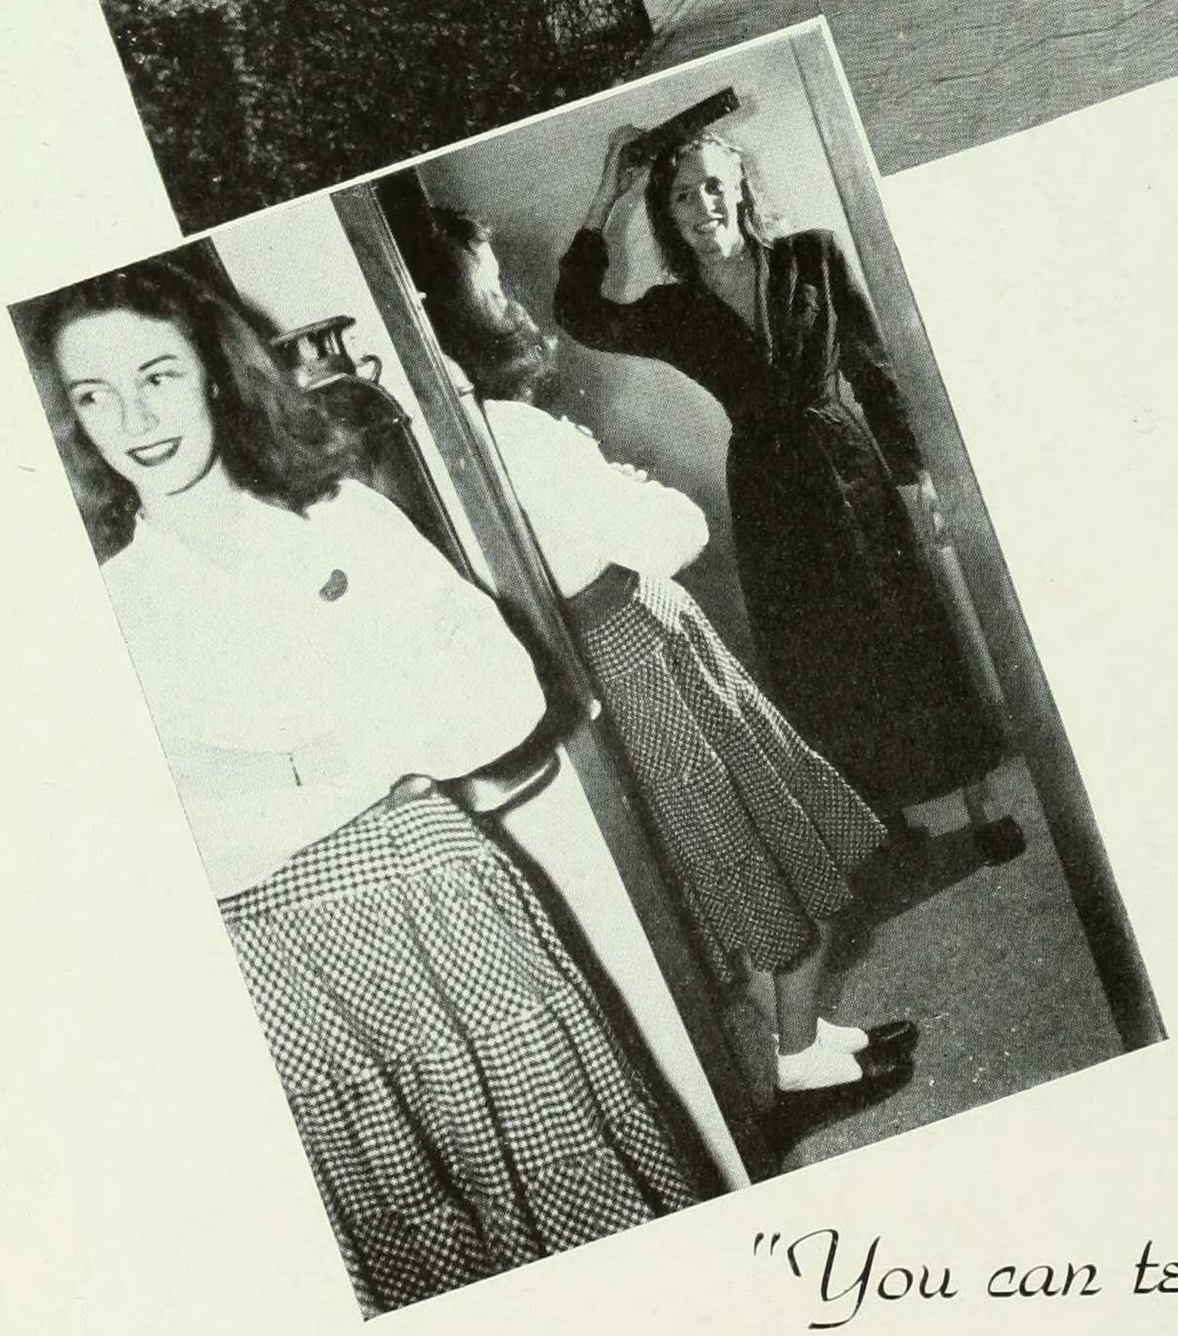
Exams in the offing.

IMPRESSIONS . . .

Here they keep dates with the great minds of the ages . . . Plato at 9, Avagadro at 10, Beethoven at 11 and Shakespeare at 1. Thought is their clay and as they mold it, their minds, at first clumsy, become strong and sure. The library welcomes them. They read as the day slips into night, as the night slips into day . . . and they take notes . . . and they wonder why in the world they came here. We guide them, push them, pull them, argue with them, laugh with them, make their struggles our own. These are the citizens of tomorrow and of the world. They have a rendezvous with destiny . . .

FRESHMAN CLASS

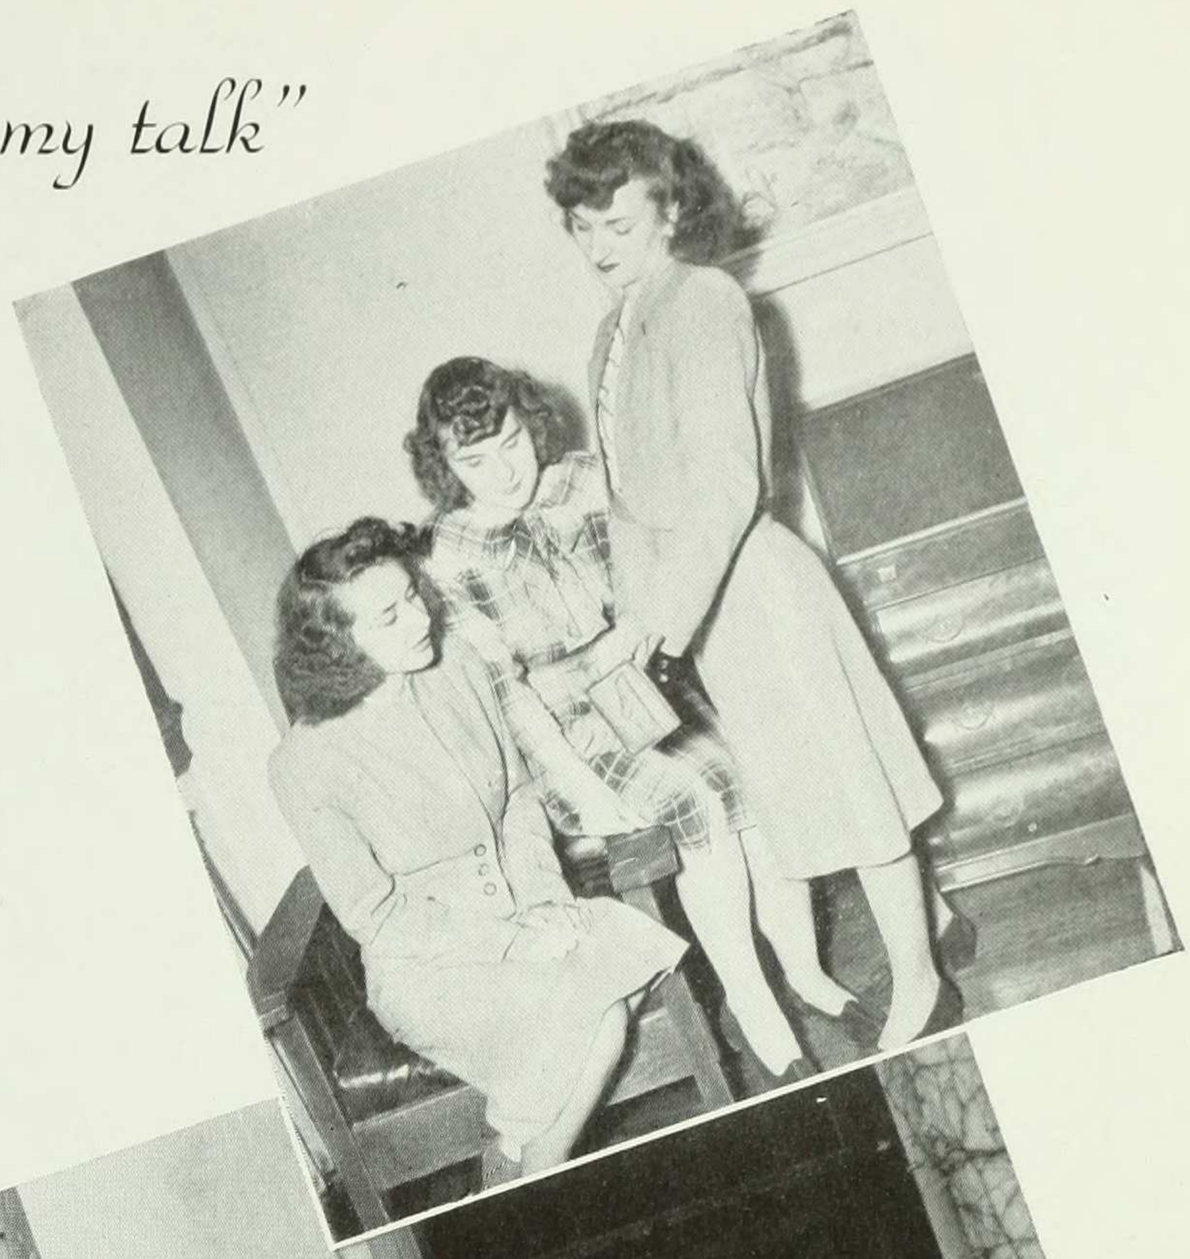




A RECORD-BREAKING "Victory" class of eager, poised, young freshmen pranced around in angel robes, were led from Brooks to McMillan to Chapel to hear Dean Gildersleeve, President Butler and Chaplain Rice, and then settled down to the business of nominating some 40 candidates for president and choosing a score of leaders.

"You can tell by my Hygiene A walk"

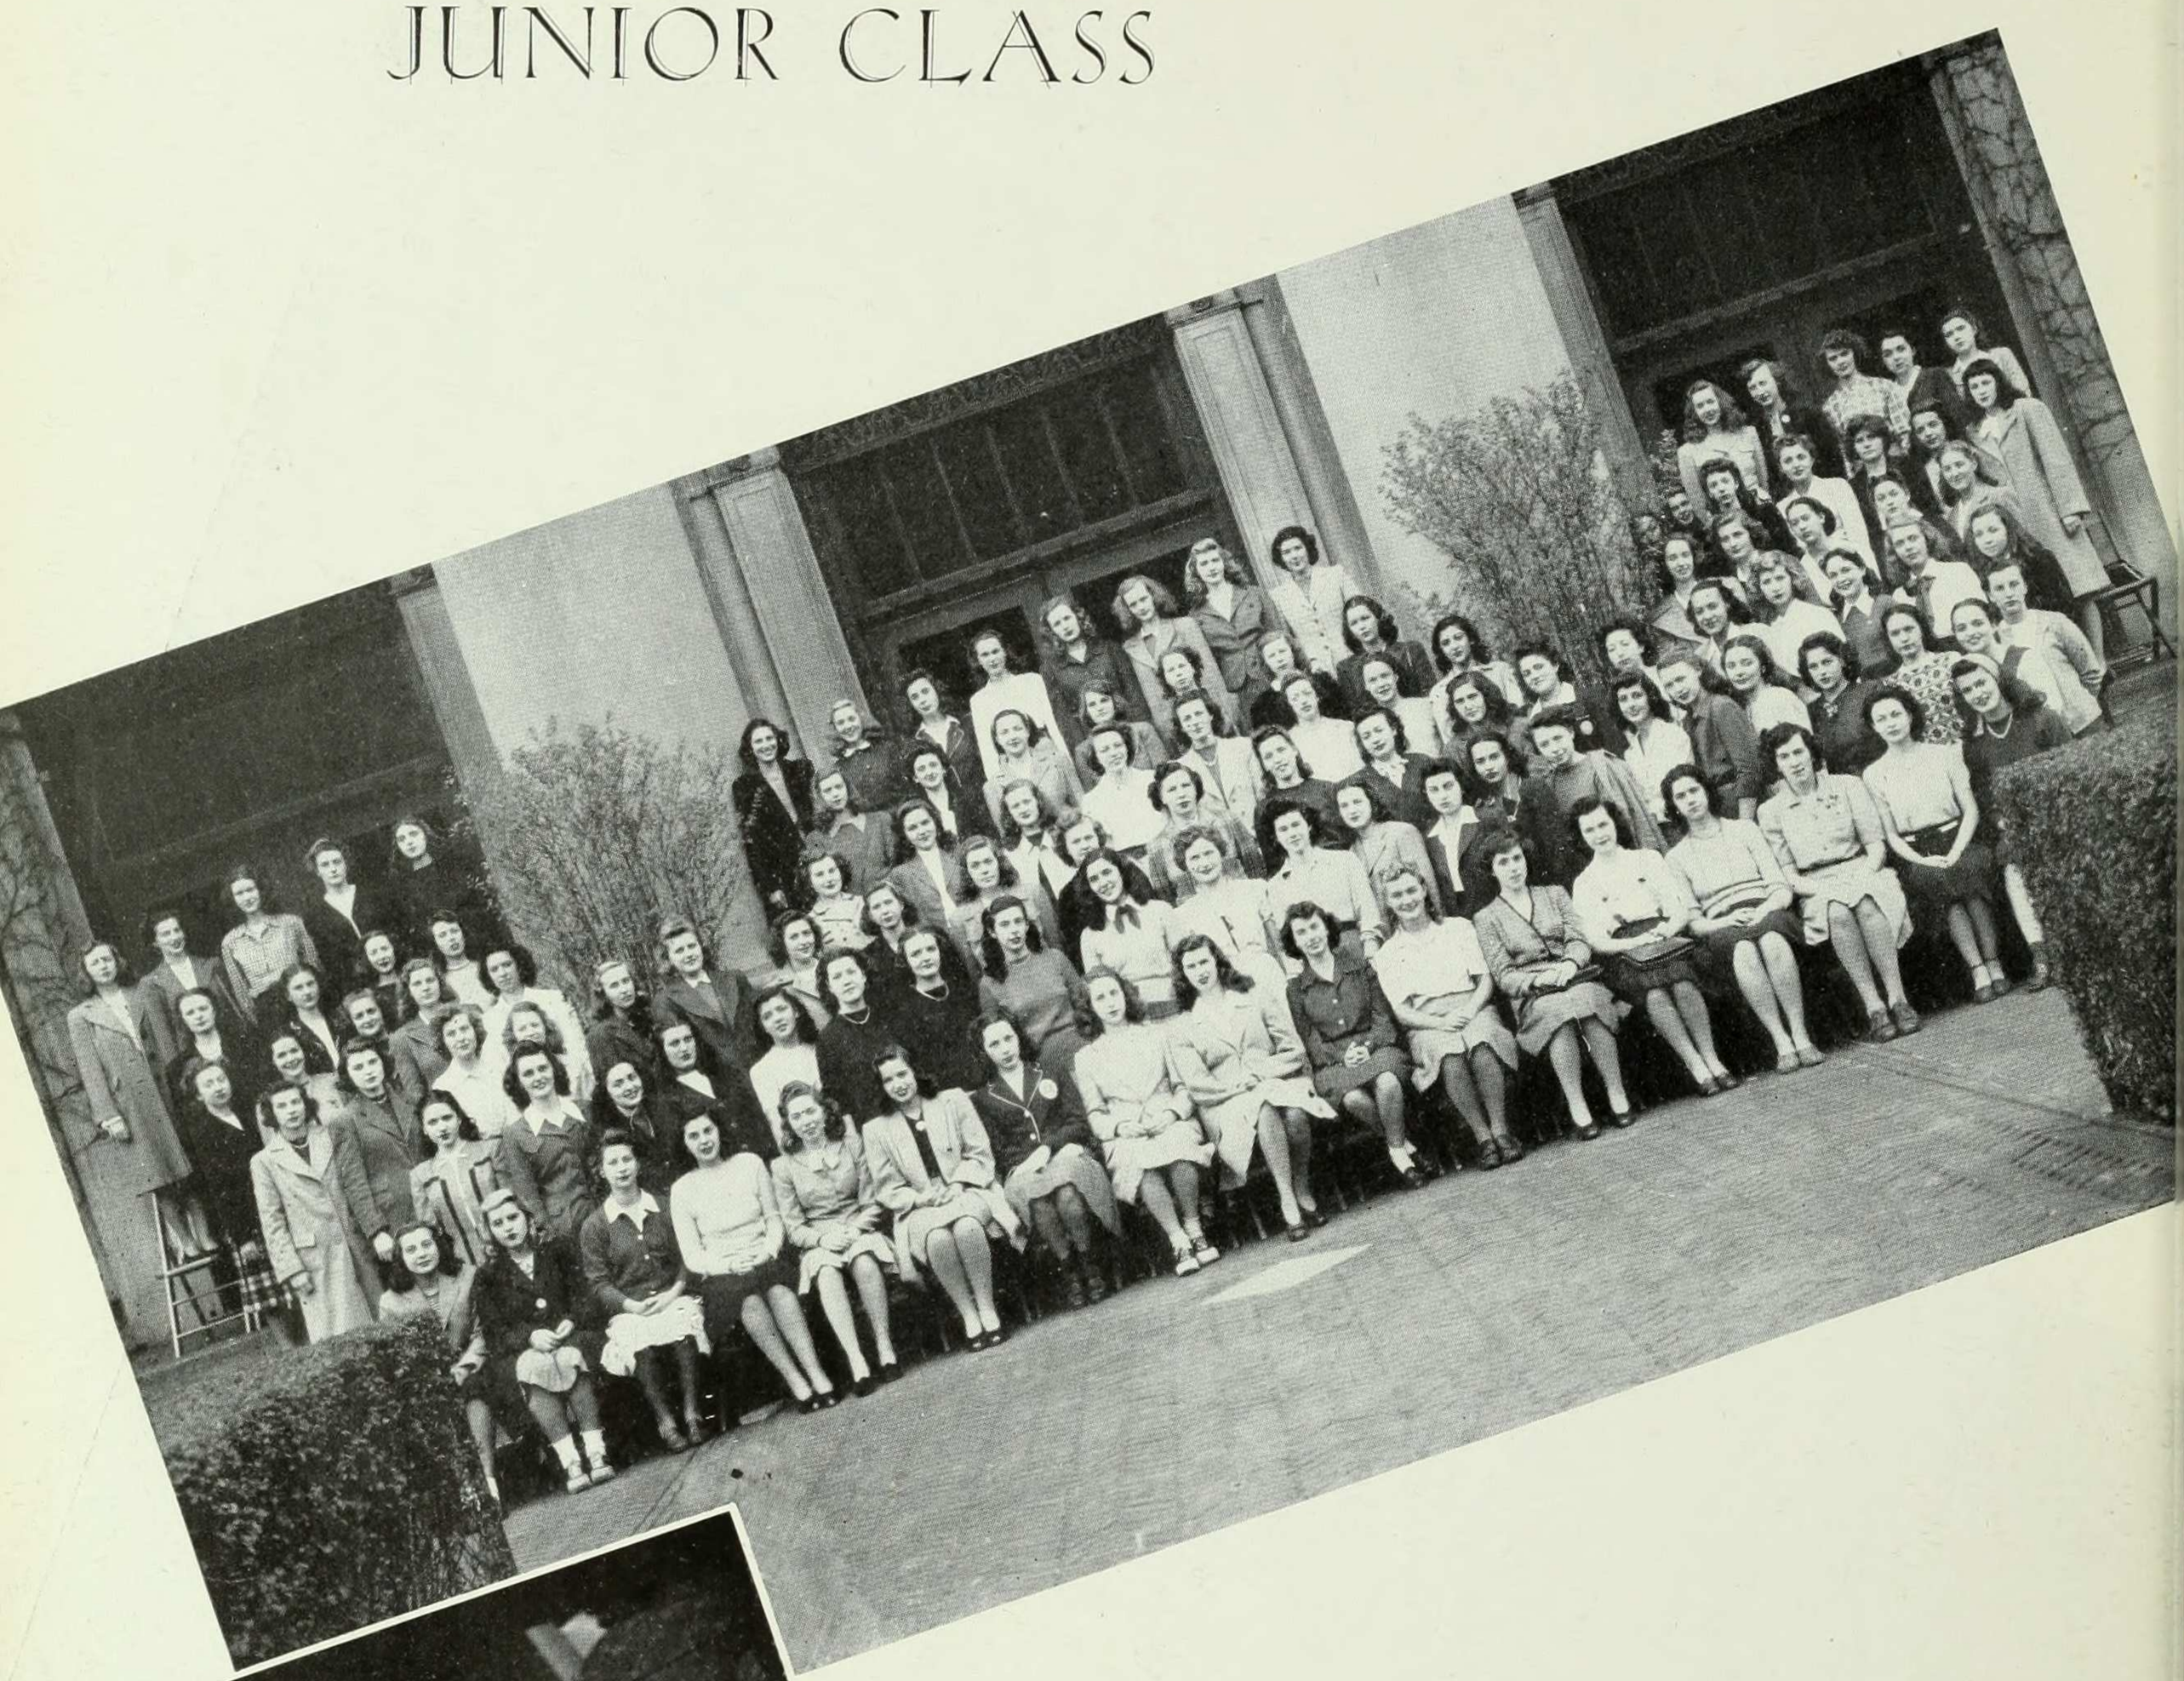
"You can tell by the brag in my talk"

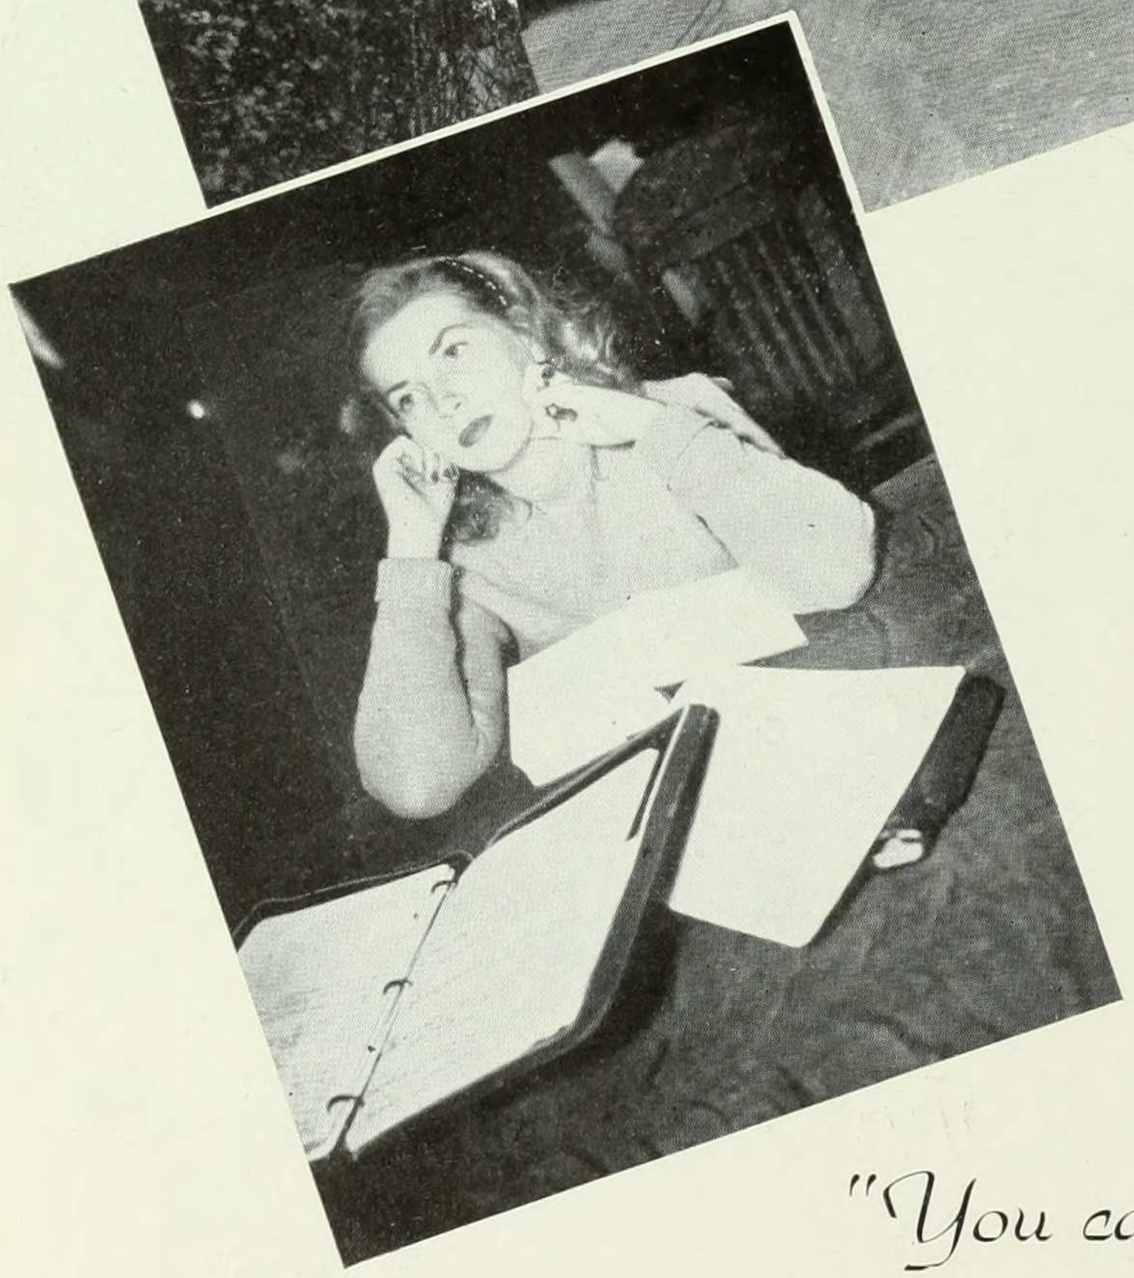


GREETING old friends and exchanging views on V-J day and the atomic bomb made the return of the Sophomore class to school a busy event. '48 filled in group requirements, set about preparing for gala peacetime Greek Games and tore its collective hair out over the momentous problem of choosing a major.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

JUNIOR CLASS





THE retirement of President Butler, the return of Columbia veterans and Barnard's own faculty service people, added excitement to the calm Junior class which had to vote three times before electing its own president. Juniors welcomed their freshman sisters, groaned over the directive that will make them the first class to face "comprehensives" in all subjects and then made plans for a downtown prom and a junior show—the first of both since the war.

"You can tell when I say—
'I've not studied today'"

"You can surely tell when I treat Profs just like men"

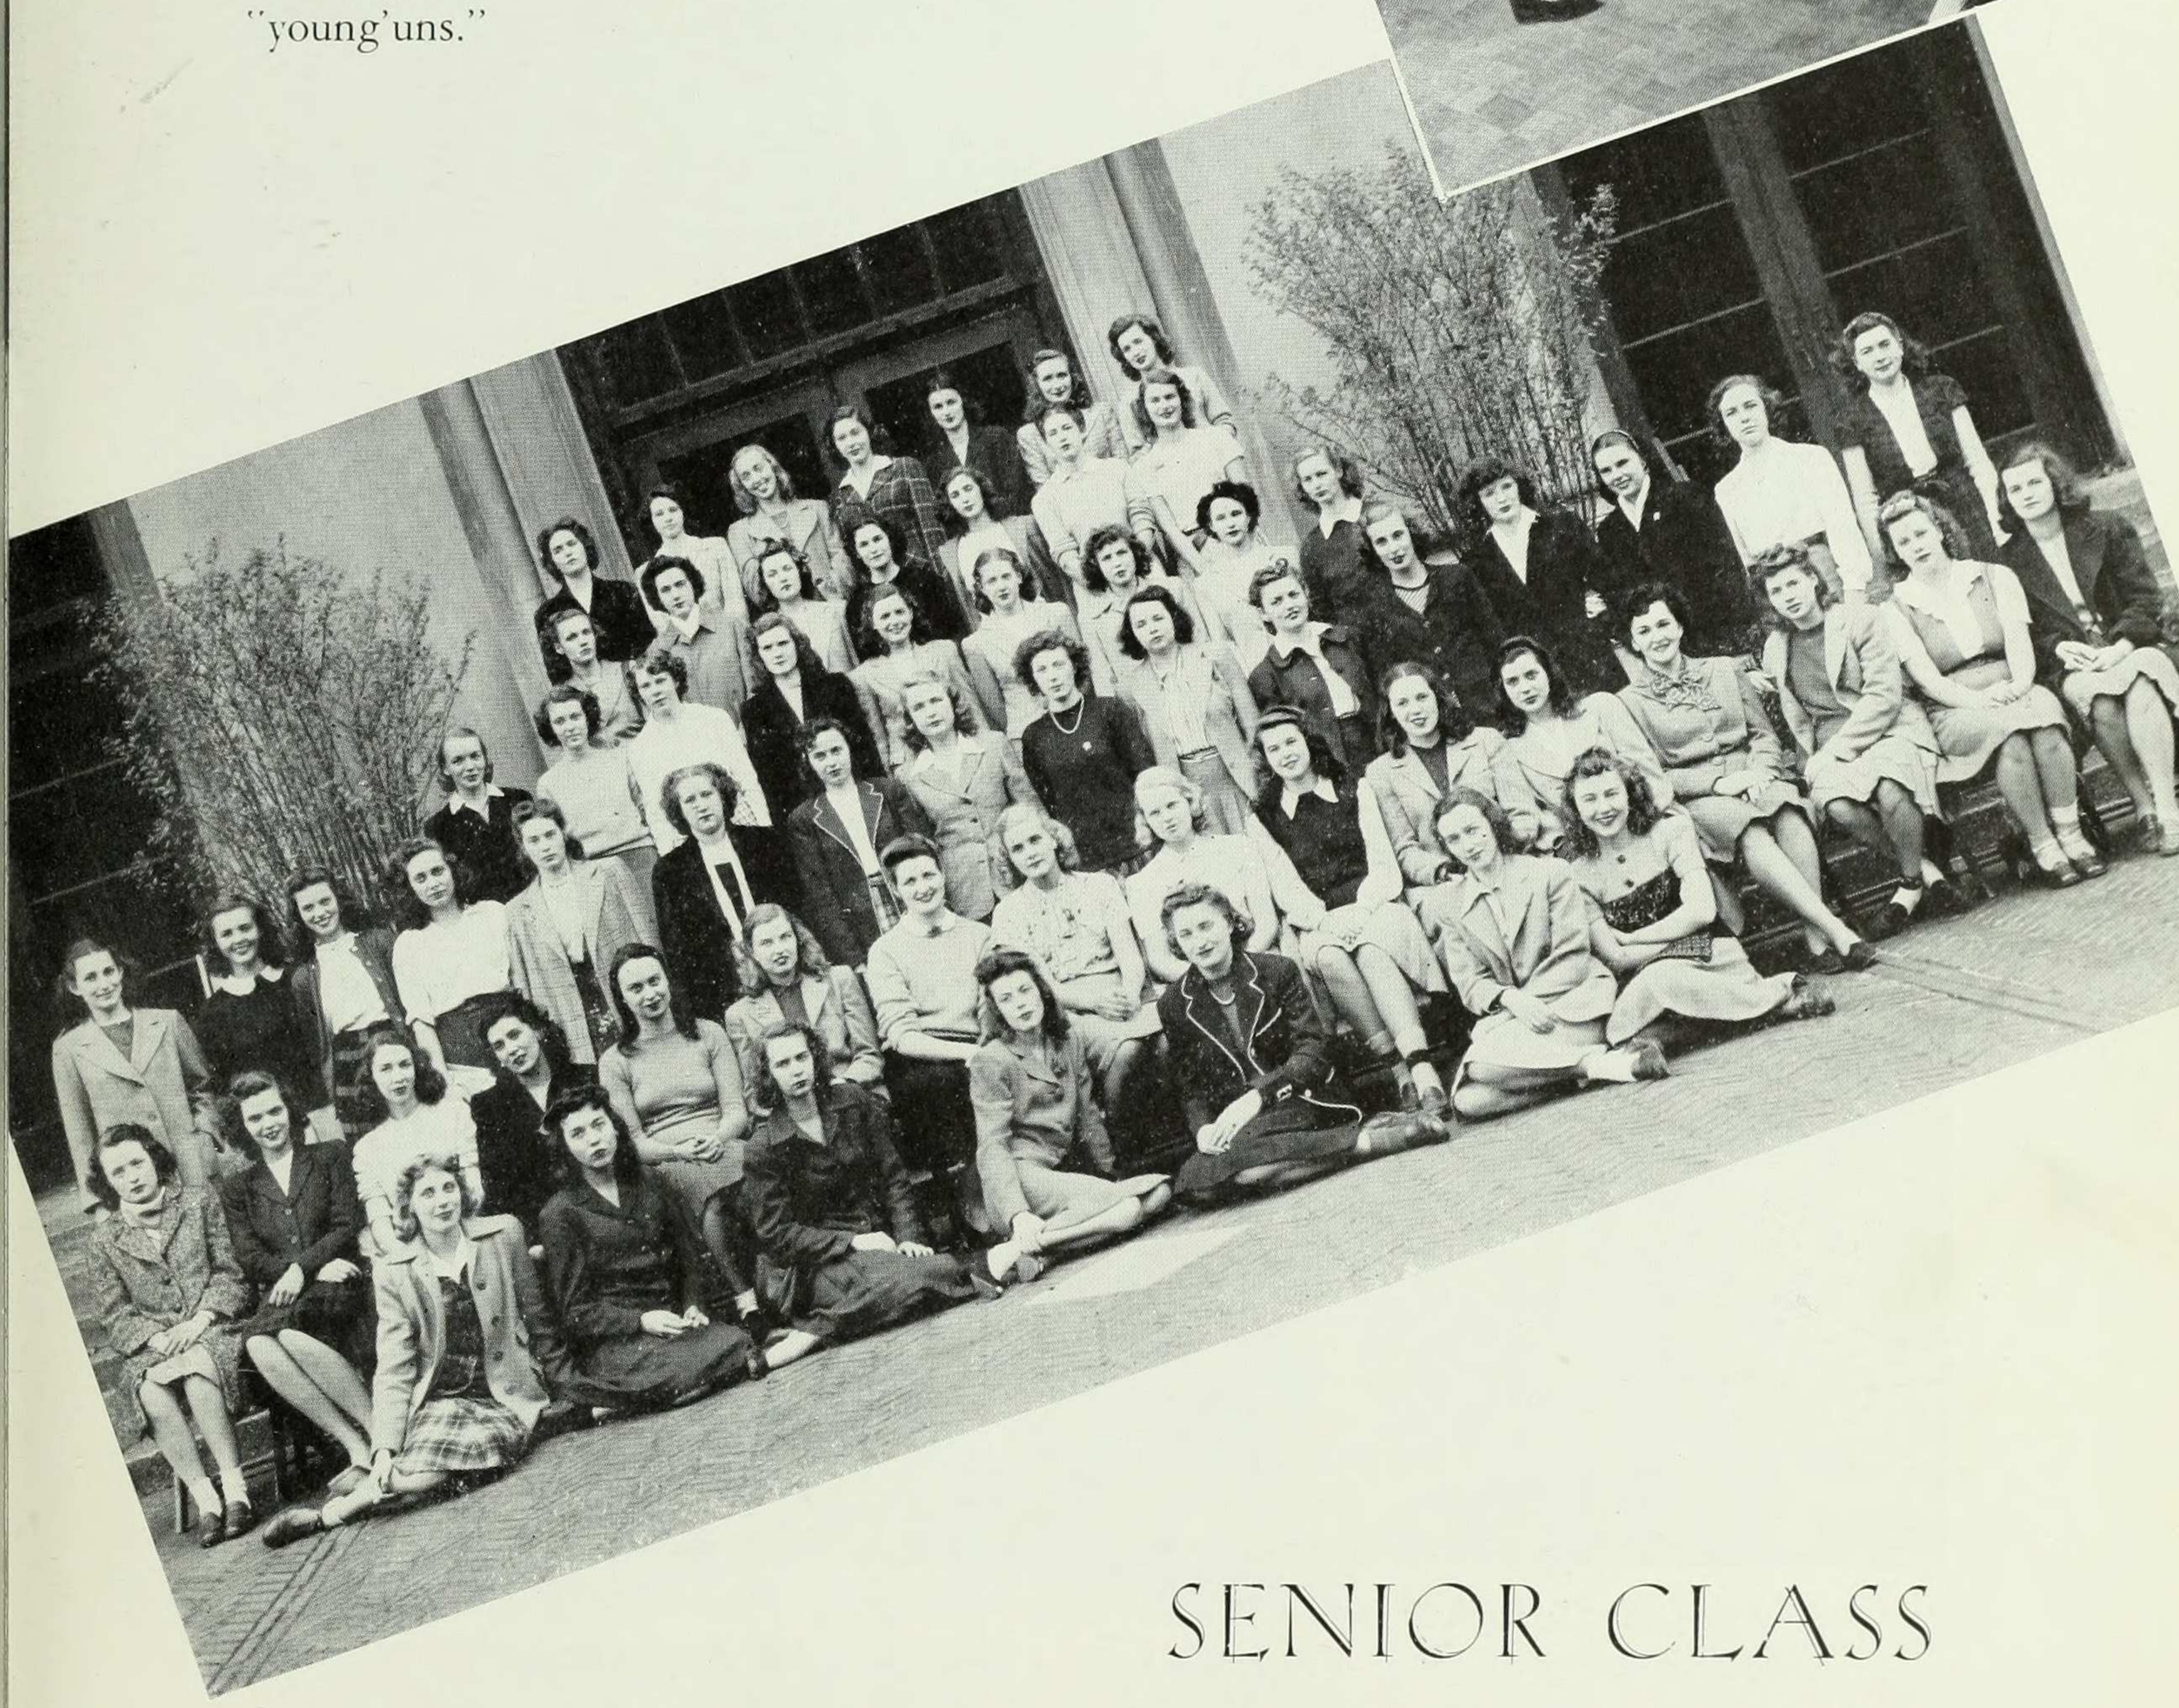
With the traditional Step Singing, Ivy Ceremony, Class Day and Baccalaureate Tea still in the offing for '46, the Seniors are winding up the only peacetime year that they have known during their college career. In the near future are the glowing plans being made for "after graduation" and the dream of a life without exams and term papers—and with career, husband and "young'uns."



SENIOR CLASS

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

When you are close to student government and close to the headlines in the daily paper at the same time, you may sometimes find yourself questioning the importance of holding meetings of intelligent young college girls in order to determine whether or not the Junior class shall give a show. Then you step back and see alert women taking part in discussions and debates, determining the fate of their city and their nation and their world. You realize that student government is democracy in action, that the little unimportant pieces are joined together to make the pattern of the universe.

Honor Board: Annette Warburton; Elaine Ryan; Mary Huff; Ellen Harry, chairman; Isabel Sarvis; Georgia Rubin; Mildred Reed.

Representative Assembly, from a seat in the rear.

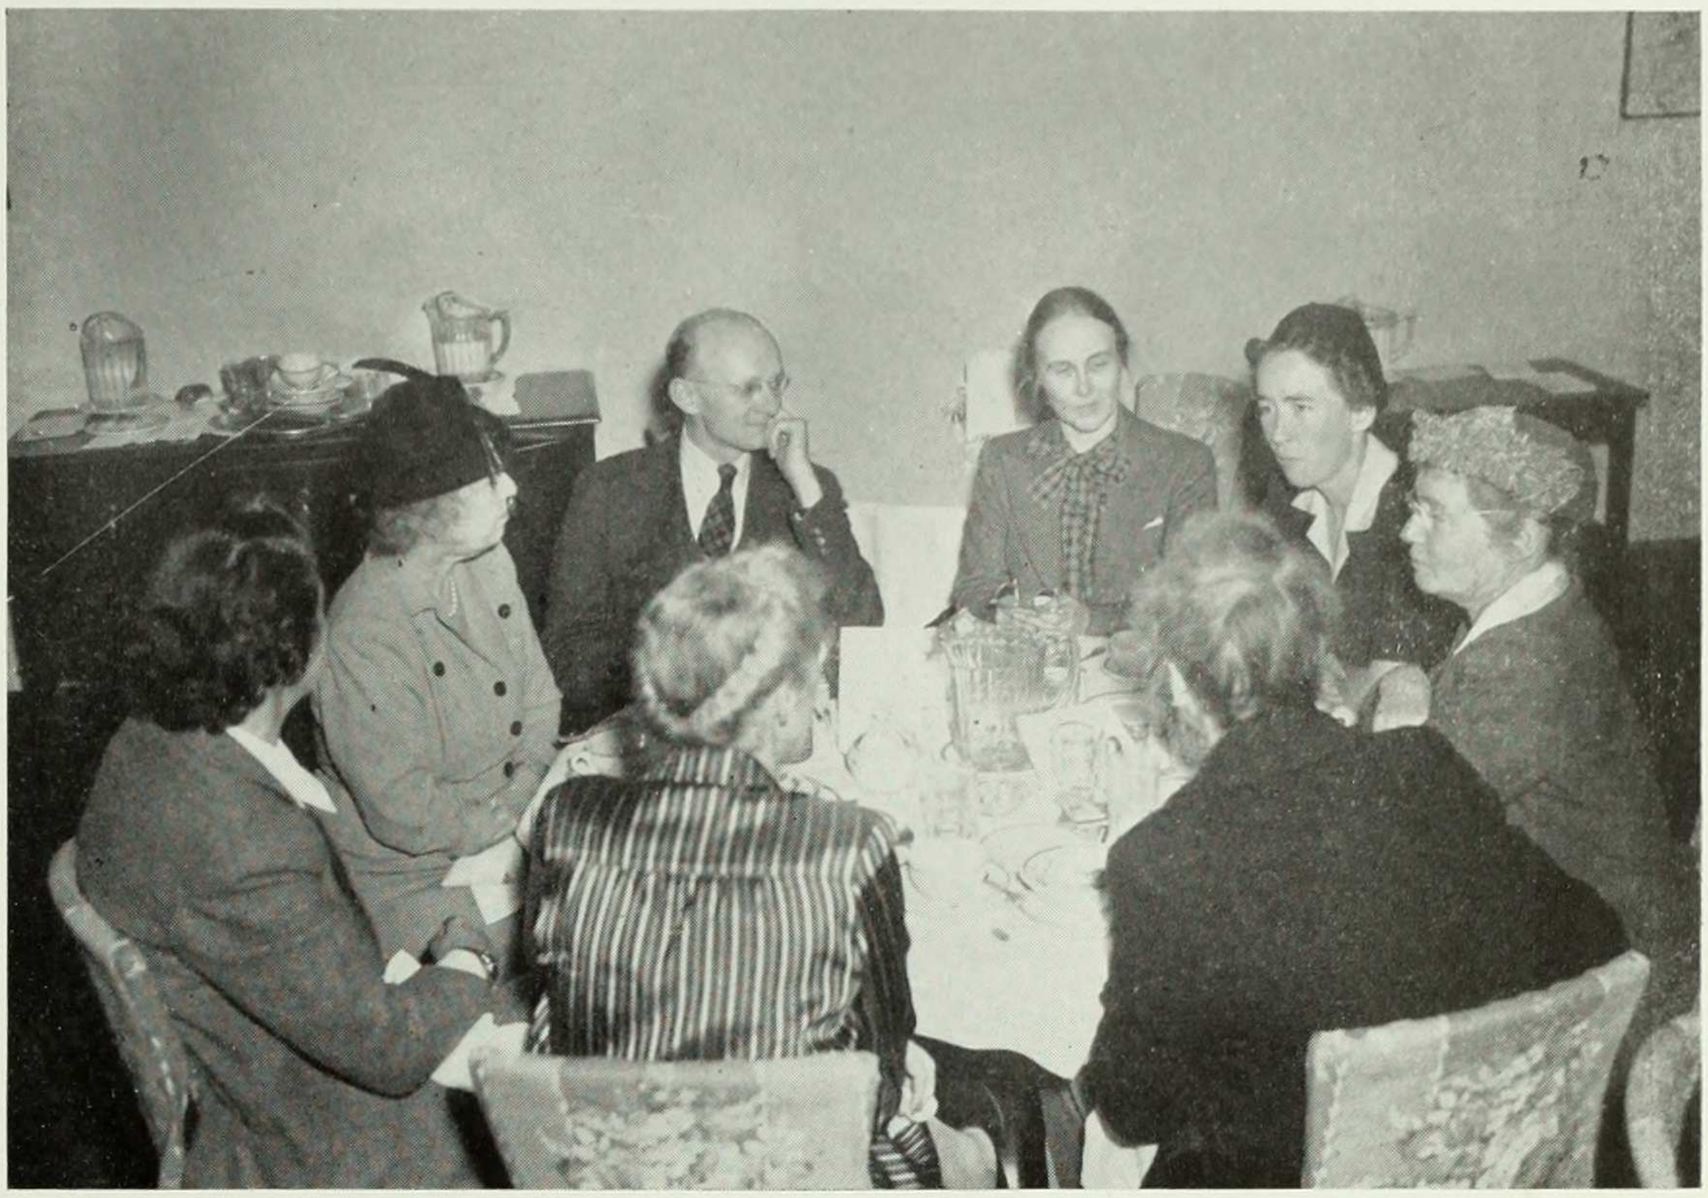
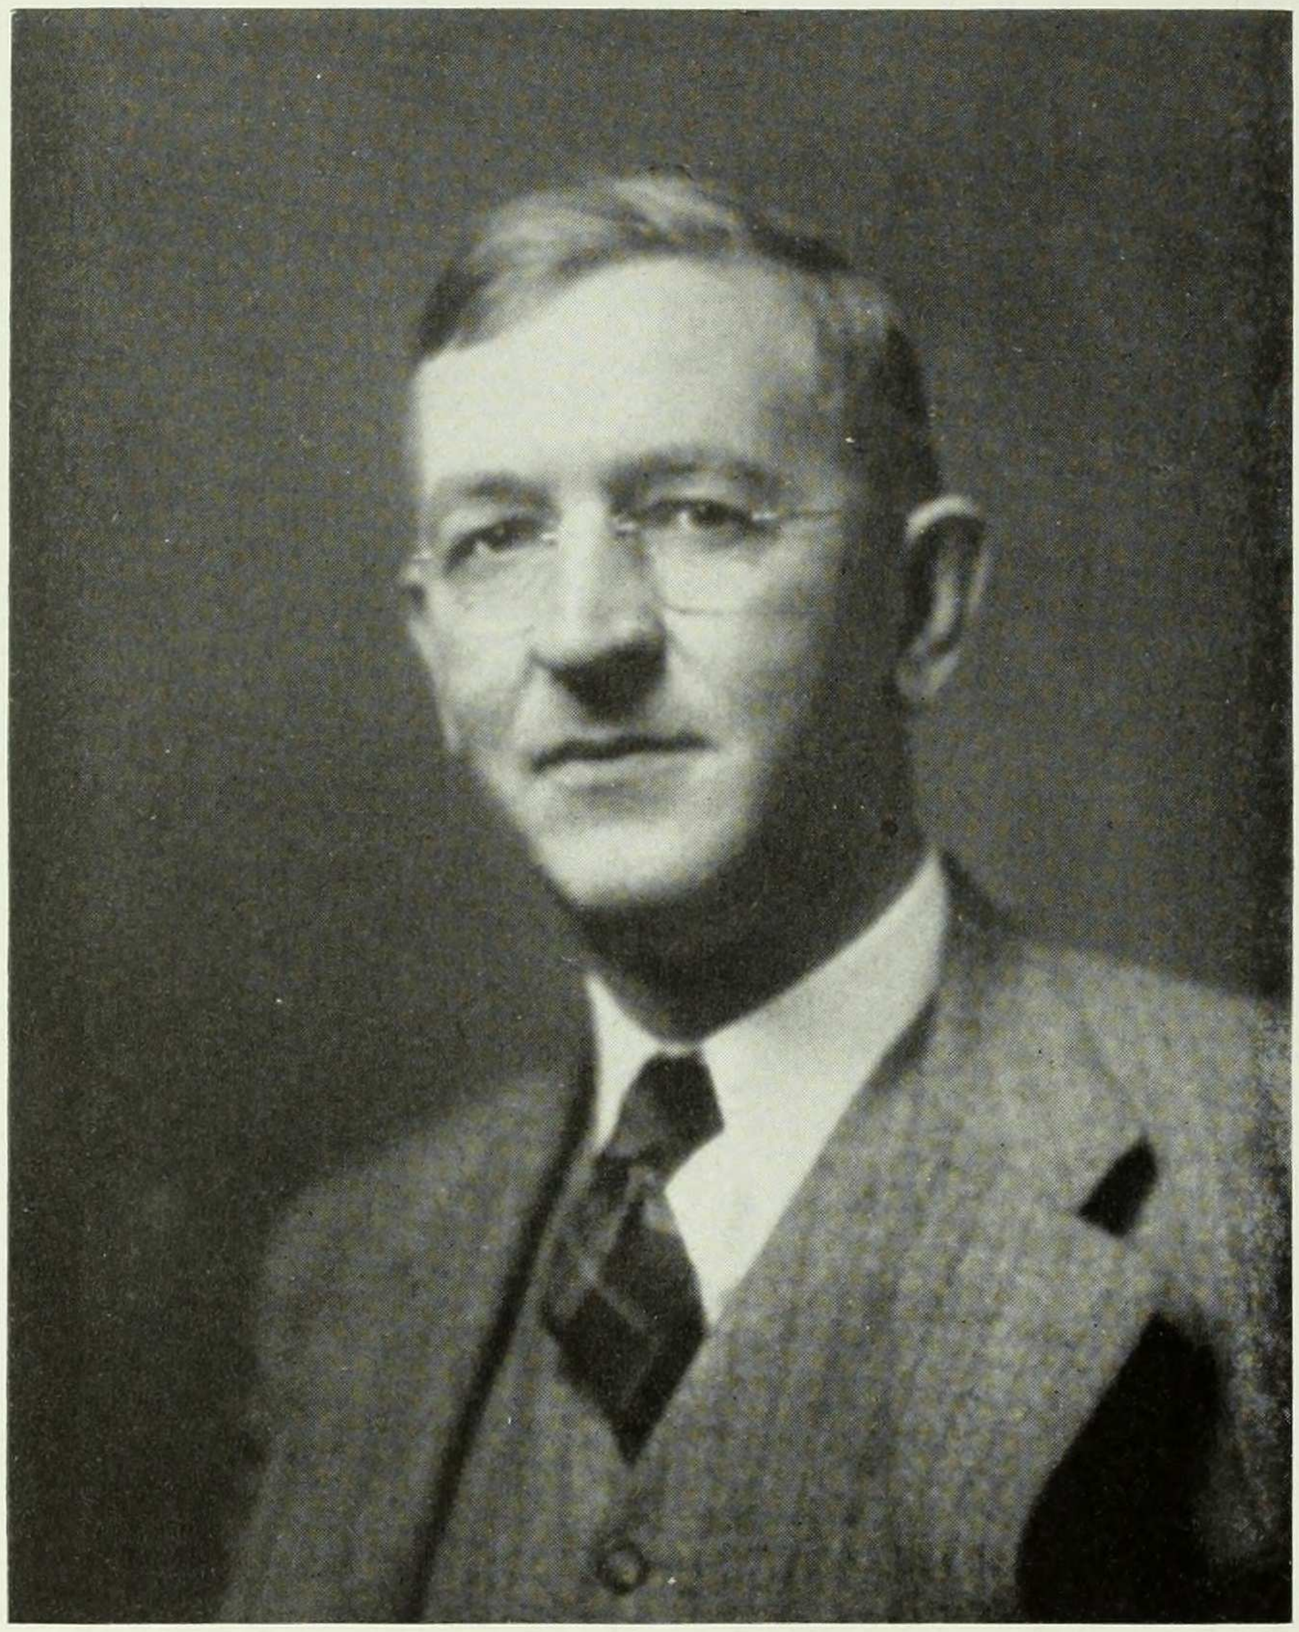
Dean Gildersleeve addresses the college



Storing up vitamins after a hard morning session.

Away from the classroom and up to Camp for an afternoon of chicken and chatter.



WILLARD W. WALLER – 1899-1945

We had a friend—clear of eye and clear of thought.
He was, this he said, "a man full of words."
The tangled skein of experience he studied,
And the threads he sorted out.
He showed us how to weave the rainbow strands
Into a pattern of life which was
Strong and vivid and true—
Even as he.
We had a friend—clear of eye and clear of thought.

Social Committee

Reconversion . . .

A year of peace . . . a metamorphosis in Barnard's social pattern. The Navy left Columbia and the campus felt strange without lines of singing Midshipmen along Claremont Avenue, hordes of V-12s in the Bookstore. 1945-46 witnessed the last of the Midshipmen Coffee Dances and the birth of a Barnard-Columbia Social Committee. The combined chiefs-of-staff inaugurated an era of mutual cooperation as tweed suits and discharge buttons appeared on Morningside Heights . . . Tuxedos blossomed as Rosemary Sullivan's Social Committee moved Winter Ball down town for the first time in Barnard's history . . . Boy met girl at Jake, in Brooks, on campus.

Coffee Dance

CURC

The dial and wire happy radio "hams," the Orson Welles and Helen Hayes of the networks of tomorrow call CURC home. Barnardites and Columbia men work side by side to write, direct and produce five live musical shows each week, a nightly symphonic hour, dramas, news analyses, forums and popular record shows. Highlights of the year were the premier network broadcast over the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System in May, "on the spot" play by play coverages of the football games from Philadelphia and Princeton and programs in French, Swedish and Italian.

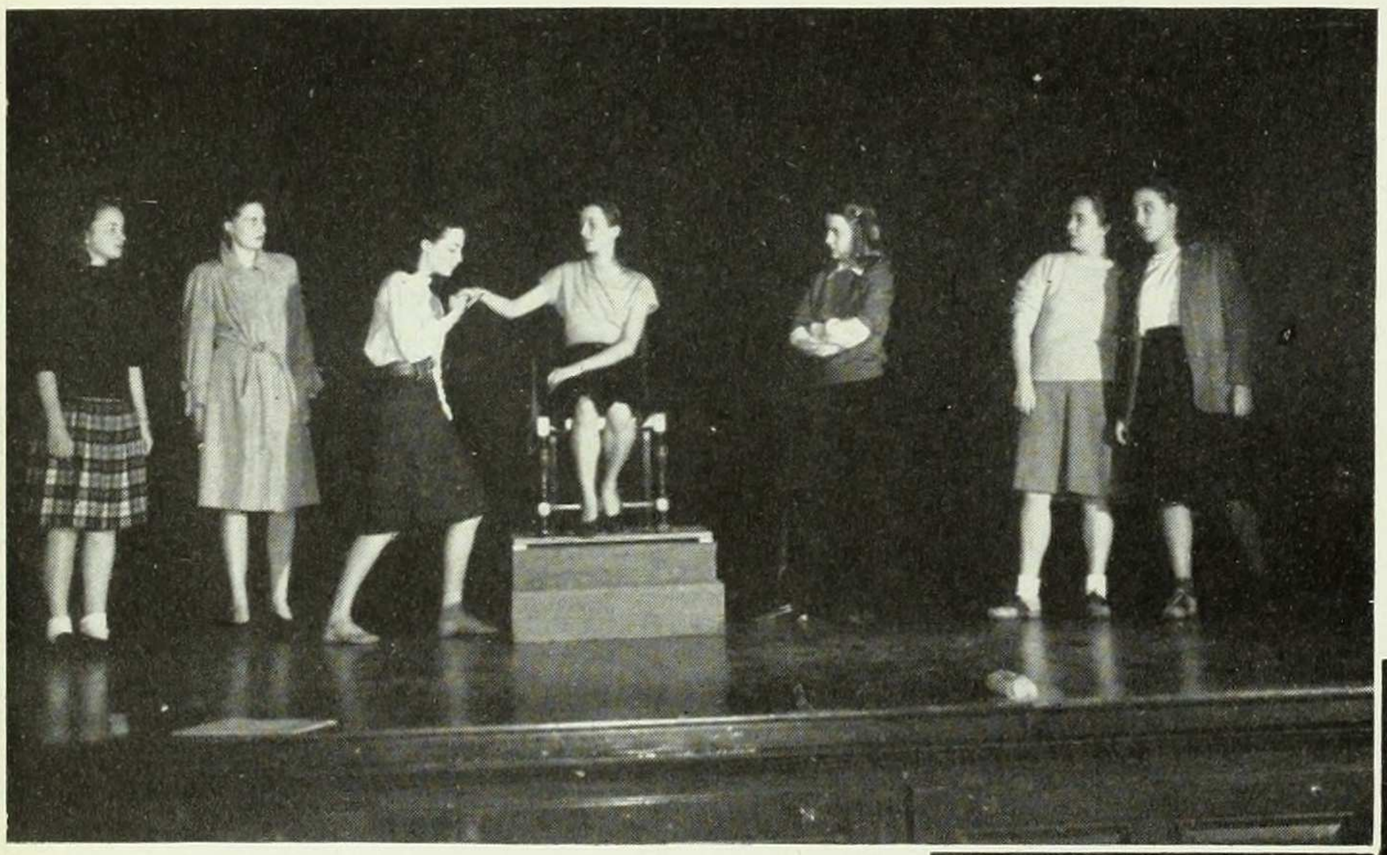
DIVERSION

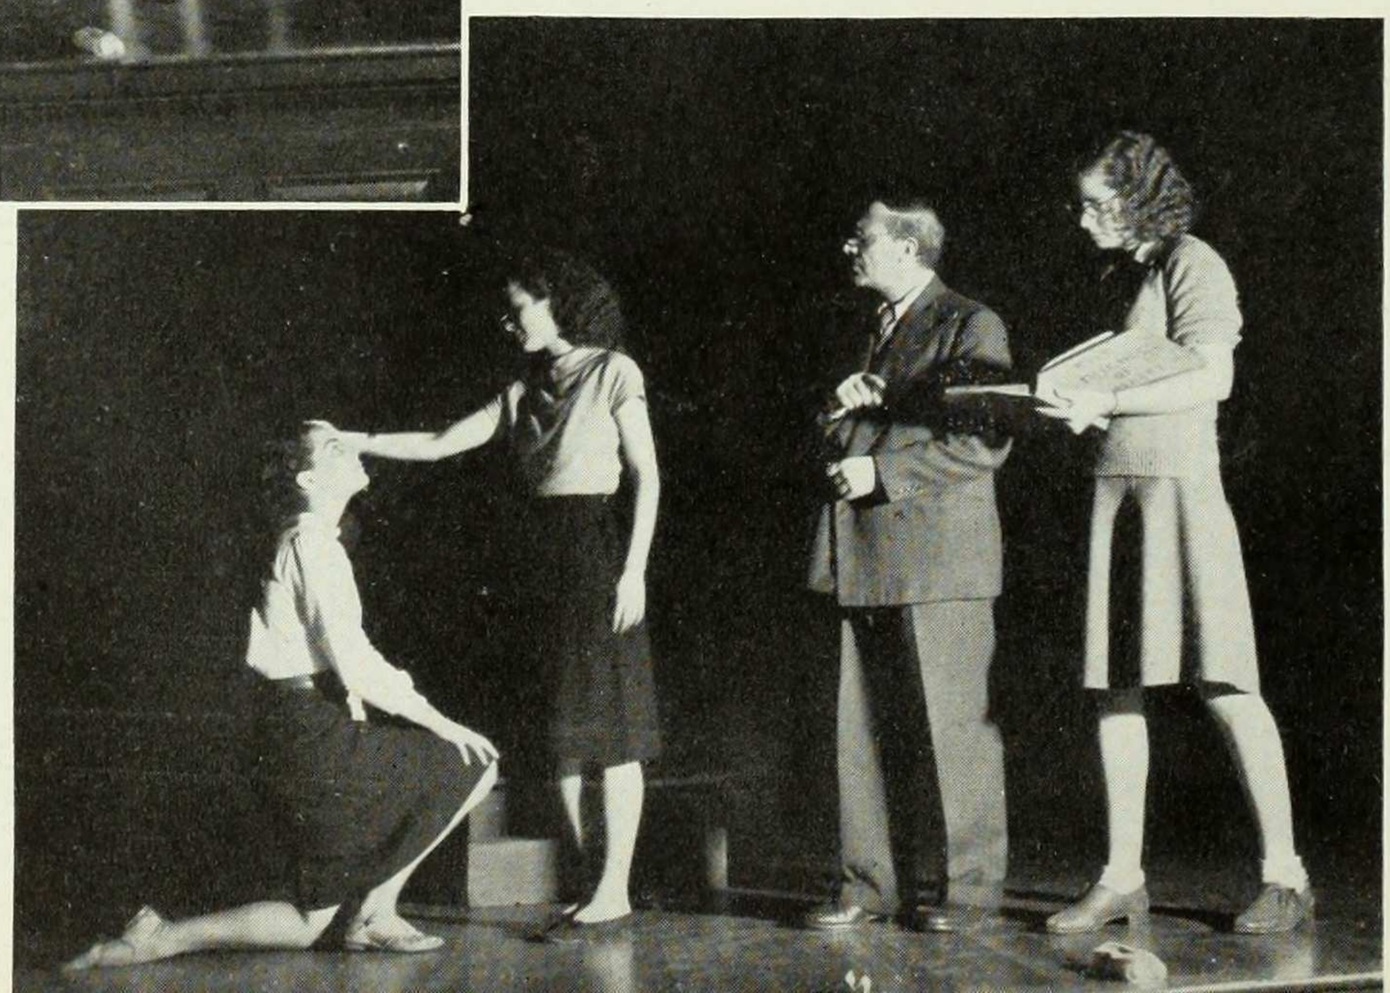
This was a year when a girl waited for that letter to come, saying, "I'll be in next week on terminal leave." It was another year crowded with engagements and marriages. It was a year of making dates that no longer depended on weekend passes, of being able to plan ahead for dances and theatre tickets. School festivities took on added glamour for there was someone with whom to share them. Wigs and Cues, Harvest Hop, Spring Dance, Junior Prom all meant that an eagerly awaited invitation was forthcoming. There were men on campus—learning about Barnard as a school, learning about Barnard girls as individuals.

Midshipmen come to say goodby.

HARVEST HOP



WIGS AND CUES



The "Duchess of Malfi" in rehearsal.

Spellbound

Spellbound . . . the ballroom at Delmonico's . . . punch and cookies . . . one hundred and fifty juniors and seniors dancing . . . Spellbound . . . the first downtown Junior Prom since the war was a great success—with everyone quite bewitched by the original theme song "Spellbound" which was played several times during the evening. Guests were Dr. and Mrs. Clifford and Dr. and Mrs. Raup (Professor Eliot). From 9:30 until 2 couples danced in the ballroom, festive with flowers. White leather bids with tiny gold pencils, gold tassels and seals on the cover dangled from slim wrists. Even after the last dance, when the strains of the theme song had faded away, when the corsages were unpinned, and the wonderful dress was hung again in the closet, the memory of the evening lingered on and the Junior class was spellbound.

Junior Prom Committee: Dorothy Dultgen, hotel; Jean Poffinberger, bids; Betty Green, orchestra; Madeleine Thomas, publicity; Alice Hansen, business; Helen Trevor, chairman; Betty Warburton, floor committee; Ruth Raup, Bulletin publicity; Roberta Paine, secretary; Charlotte Hanley, song.
